MAILMAN COMES . . . A DAY LATE

In Monday's mail Mrs. Jan Stephenson got a notice from the Victoria post office telling her to report for her Christmas holiday job assignment — Sunday.

When Mrs. Stephenson, who lives at 1842 Feltham, phoned the post office to tell them their own mail was too late for her to make the meeting, she was told:

"Sorry, all the day jobs are filled. All we can do is put you on the reserve list."

While there were vacancies on night shifts, Mrs. Stephenson, who is separated and caring for three children, felt she could just work while they were at school.

With experience in post office work, she had applied for the Christmas rush job Nov. 1, the first day applications were being accepted.

A post office spokesman said today there was no way he could account for the notice arriving late.

But after looking into the matter, he said there have been a couple of drop-outs and Mrs. Stephenson will be advised there is a day-shift job for her.

Irish Border Aflame

BELFAST (UPI) — Heavy fighting broke out today along the 300-mile border between Ulster and the Irish Republic, the British army reported.

"It looks as though the whole border has caught alight," a British army spokesman said. "We are fighting gun battles from north and south of the border and we are up to our eyes in it at the moment."

The battles in various border villages started after two bazooka attacks on police posts at Belleek and at Strabane, a border village in County Tyrone 90 miles southwest of Belfast.

There was also an explosion in a Catholic house in the Old Park Road, North Belfast. The blast occurred next to a Protestant school.

An explosion in a house in the Bogside Roman Catholic district of Londonderry killed two youths, police said, and one policeman died in a rocket attack on a police station at Belleek, 45 miles southwest of Londonderry.

The deaths brought the toll for almost 3½ years of violence in Northern Ireland to 643 dead.

Bazooka rockets also struck an army vehicle checkpoint near Newtonbutler, 60 miles south of Londonderry, a border police station at Crossmaglen, 30 miles farther east and an army post outside a school in the Old Park Road district of Belfast.

None caused any casualties, the army said.

The battles began when gunmen operating from across the border in the republic fired a rocket at the station at Belleek. It penetrated steel shutters on a window and struck the policeman, killing him.

The army spokesman said five gunmen had been seen firing on the station from a wood on the republic side of the border. Police in the station fired back but claimed no hits. The battle ended after 25 minutes when Irish troops arrived on the scene, he said.

In Dublin police mounted guard on leading Irish politicians, to prevent any attempt to take hostages in return for the release of IRA chief of staff Sean MacStiofain.

Thousands of soldiers were placed on alert to deal with an IRA threat to fight "in the streets" against new government legislation cracking down on illegal organizations. Police guarded prominent politicians.

Meanwhile Ireland broke its official silence today on the condition of MacStiofain, the alleged leader of the provisional wing of the IRA who has been on a hunger strike for 10 days.

A statement from the Irish department of defence — the first official word on MacStiofain's condition — said his physical status was unchanged and he was "mentally alert and lucid."

Nixon Picks 'New Broom' Cabinet

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon initiated his "new broom" policy today by naming Elliot Richardson to be defence secretary in his second term cabinet and budget director Caspar W. Weinberger to succeed Richardson as head of health, education and welfare.

Nixon also announced that Roy Ash, a California businessman and an expert adviser on government reorganization, would take Weinberger's place as director of the office of management and budget.

The major cabinet reshuffle was triggered by the long anticipated resignation of Melvin Laird as head of the defence department.

Nixon also has another immediate cabinet vacancy to fill, created by the resignation of George Romney Monday as secretary of housing and urban affairs. Richardson, 52, and Weinberger, 55, have been in the Nixon administration since the outset in 1969.

Ash, 54, has been president of Litton Industries and in 1969 was tapped by the president to head his advisory council on government reorganization.

Nixon's press secretary, Ronald Ziegler announced the changes. He said they were "part of the president's broad plan to bring fresh perspective and new vitality to the second four years of his administration."

"The president feels these three men will be strong members of an executive team that has as its mandate bringing about constructive change—change that will work—to build a better life for all Americans," Ziegler said.

Richardson, a native of Massachusetts, was undersecretary of state before being named HEW secretary in June, 1970.

Weinberger first served Nixon as chairman of the federal trade commission, then moved into White House orbit as deputy director of the office of management and budget under George Shultz. When Shultz was named sec-

LONDON TRIP FOR PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau goes to London this weekend for two days of talks with British Prime Minister Heath which will centre largely on Britain's entry into the European Common Market.

He will have lunch Monday with the Queen at Windsor Castle, and likely will return to Ottawa Tuesday.

An aide to the prime minister said that other possible subjects for discussion include the European Security Conference in Helsinki, the Vietnam peace proposals, the next Commonwealth prime ministers' conference and possibly the next conference on the law of the sea.

Job Guarantees Urged by Levi

Levi's plan — relying on dramatic changes in federal-provincial cost sharing — came in a white paper read to the conference.

What Levi called a "two-pronged" program of guaranteed incomes and guaranteed jobs is needed to replace the "gross failure" of the present systems, which have been built on the "free-enterprise myth . . . that poverty is primarily the result of personal weaknesses . . ."

Going to the root causes of poverty, instead of to the surface symptoms, the Levi plan would attempt to eradicate unemployment through a new emphasis on "socially profitable" rather than economically profitable jobs.

Levi said the "billions upon billions" spent on current welfare programs would help create the jobs and result in "a drastic reduction of the welfare rolls."

"Thus a new job creation program could be financed largely out of funds saved through a decrease in present welfare expenditures."

Levi explained later that last year in B.C., a total of $768 million was spent in welfare and income support.

Levi's statements and discussion at the conference indicated there is a new consensus developing around Quebec's attitude to social welfare programs.

Levi later summed up B.C.'s attitude to the use of funds from Ottawa:

"Shared-cost programs have not been effective. We require new arrangements whereby the provinces can acquire, without restrictions, revenue resources sufficient to undertake more effective welfare programs."

Earlier in his statement, Levi said he wants the provinces to start talks with Ottawa with the aim of getting a greater share of income taxes or outright grants replacing

B.C. INTERESTED IN WINTER WORKS

A cabinet committee to look into winter works programs has been established but has yet to meet, Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi said today.

Levi said the government is showing interest in winter works programs of a type used by Manitoba last year.

The programs are usually initiated by Ottawa to lower the winter unemployment rates, but provincial and municipal money is often involved.

Levi said the committee is comprised of six cabinet ministers, but could not recall all the names.

The committee has no budget or agenda as yet, he said.

13 Survivors In Moscow Crash

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Japan Air Lines DC 8 jet with 76 persons aboard crashed in flames at Moscow's Sheremetyevo airport tonight shortly after takeoff for a flight to Tokyo. Airline officials said there were indications it exploded in flight a few minutes after becoming airborne.

A JAL spokesman in Tokyo said he had received telephone reports from Moscow there were at least 13 survivors and that they were hospitalized. Fate of the others was not known. The plane carried 62 passengers and a crew of 14, although normally it has a crew of seven or eight, JAL said.

"Yes, a plane has gone down," a JAL spokesman at the airport said. "I can say nothing more. I am too busy."

Initial reports from unofficial western airline sources said the plane crashed in flames about 500 yards from the end of the runway.

The crash was the second major one at Sheremetyevo airport in six weeks.

On Oct. 13 an Aeroflot IL62 airliner crashed near the airport, killing all 176 persons aboard — the worst recorded civil air catastrophe.

Young Charges Unbased, Lawyer Tells Inquiry

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

CAMPBELL RIVER — Campbell River School Board's formal grounds of dismissal are "difficult to follow, not coherently written in some places and ungrammatical," counsel for high school principal John Young told an official inquiry which opened here today.

In addition, lawyer John Laxton said, the dismissal report, filed at the department of education Sept. 22, listed an apparent 70 grounds for dismissal.

"It will be our submission that none of the charges against Mr. Young or reasons for his dismissal have any basis — indeed, the very number of reasons suggests an inability to find one good one," he said.

"Many of the grounds are transparently inconsequential and trivial, indicating an emotional reaction by the school board," Laxton told a board of reference headed by B. J. B. Morahan.

"This is not merely a case involving the loss of a job or even the loss of a profession. It involves the life-long attempt of a dedicated educator to improve the educational lot of the student in British Columbia and, for that matter, in the whole of Canada."

Laxton said he would submit that the school board had no power under the Public Schools Act to issue a set of rules earlier this year which the board complained Young disobeyed in a "divisive, inflammatory, insulting and insubordinate memorandum circulated Aug. 9."

Laxton said he would argue furthermore that the relationship between a school board and a principal of a public high school was not that of master and servant and the legal precedents related to that relationship would have no application in this case.

He said there is no legal requirement for a person over 15 to attend school.

"The only power a school board has over people of over 15 who do not attend school is to prohibit them from attending school if both the principal and the district superintendent decided the student is beyond reform," Laxton argued.

He pointed out that since April of this year Section 33 of the regulations gave the su-

N-PLAN DENIED

PARIS (UPI) — The French defence ministry said today the government has no intention at present of conducting any new nuclear tests in the Pacific.

A ministry spokesman made the statement after a warning by New Zealand's premier-elect Norman Kirk that he would send a ship into the test zone to block possible resumption of the tests.

"There will be no reaction to Mr. Kirk's statement, the more so since we have at present no tests scheduled," the spokesman said.

CON MAN'S PLAN WAS DYNAMITE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 50-year-old woman was robbed of more than $2,180 in savings by a man who threatened to blow her up by detonating a belt of dynamite strapped to her waist, police say.

What appeared to be dynamite to Erla Mae Williams turned out to be wired flares, police said Monday. Mrs. Williams was uninjured.

He summoned Mrs. Williams, a saleswoman, to his apartment and forced her to put on the belt by threatening her with a pellet gun, police said.

After telling Mrs. Williams he could detonate the belt by radio, the man ordered her to drive to her bank and withdraw her savings, police said. She was left handcuffed in the man's apartment when he fled.

Hanoi Seeks Moscow Aid

Times News Services

North Vietnam, its private peace negotiations with the United States in recess, is arranging for extended military aid from Moscow and Peking, Communist radio broadcasts said today.

A Radio Hanoi broadcast said Chinese Premier Chou En-lai has "severely condemned" the United States for failure to agree to an Indochina ceasefire agreement and signed a 1973 Hanoi-Peking accord on military and economic aid. Communist diplomatic sources in Paris said the Chinese agreed to supply Hanoi free of charge.

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass said a North Vietnamese delegation was in the Russian capital to discuss the "rendering of assistance in the strengthening of the economy and defensive capacity of the DRV (Democratic Republic of Vietnam)."

Negotiations between U.S. presidential adviser Henry Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho were suspended Saturday until Dec. 4.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu strengthened his negotiating team in Paris today with the arrival of his nephew and personal aide Hoang Duc Nha. Nguyen Phu Duc, another Thieu envoy, has scheduled a meeting with President Nixon on Wednesday. Indications are that the talks were snagged on Saigon's demand — and Hanoi's refusal — that North Vietnamese troops be removed from South Vietnam.

ATHENS (AP)—A cold snap has killed seven persons in southwest Greece since Sunday. Temperatures have been below freezing there and in much of northern Greece as well.

Hijacker Faces Life Term

SEATTLE (AP) — Frank Marloe Sibley Jr., who hijacked a United Air Lines passenger jet Aug. 18 and forced it to Vancouver and Seattle before being captured, was sentenced to life imprisonment Monday.

Federal judge Morell Sharp ruled that the sentence was contigent on the results of a complete study of the 43-year-old former navy pilot's physical and mental condition.

On the day of the hijacking Sibley rode up to the Reno airport on a bicycle carrying a rifle as passengers boarded the Boeing Tri-Jet for an early morning flight. The passengers were taken off, and the plane carried only the crew of three and the hijacker on the flight to Vancouver and then to Seattle.

Four hours were spent on the ground in Vancouver, during which Sibley ordered broadcast from radio station CJOR saying he acted in protest against the war in Vietnam.

In Vancouver, his demand for $15,000 in gold bars was met, and in Seattle he renewed his demands for $2 million in cash.

FBI agents shot and overpowered him in the cabin of the plane on a runway at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport after hours of setting up delivery of cash by an agent to distract Sibley's attention.

Meanwhile, negotiations are under way between the United States and Cuba on ways of resolving an air hijacking problem that causes difficulties for both countries.

The latest exchange of communication occurred following the hijacking to Cuba Nov. 12 of a Southern Airways DC-9 by three men.

retary of the treasury, Weinberger was promoted to director.

Laird's departure is no surprise. He publicly announced early this year that he would bow out as civilian head of the nation's defence establishment at the end of Nixon's first term.

Ziegler said that Ash would divest himself of any relationship with Litton Industries as of Dec. 9. The firm is a major government contractor.

The nominations were the first major in Nixon's announced plans to revamp his official family—an intention he announced immediately after his landslide re-election Nov. 7.

He told newsmen at Camp David Monday he interpreted his big victory a "mandate for change" to prevent his second term administration from running out of steam and coasting downhill.

Williams Would Like To Bill Engineers

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Resources Minister Robert Williams said Monday repairs to the dike in the Kamloops suburb of Oak Hills, which burst June 2, will cost about $1,57 million and the provincial government "is not too sure where the money is going to come from."

Williams said he would like to be able to present the bill "to the engineers of the highways department who initially approved plans for the area and its diking."

Several hundred acres and more than 60 mobile homes and 100 houses were flooded when the North Thompson River burst through the dike.

Williams was in Kamloops to open a public hearing into a proposal by a developer to build a 1,400-home subdivision on a flood plain in Brockelhurst, near here.

Levi and Quebec's Social Affairs Minister Claude Castonguay appear to agree on the need to more closely relate the size of a family to income when assessing the need for assistance.

Levi said that a minimum income level must be established as the "general objective of income security programs" through direct cash.

As an interim measure, priority should be given to people outside the labor force consistent with the NDP government's new guaranteed income level of $200 a month for old age pensioners and handicapped persons.

Levi's paper says that the present welfare system has failed "not because it has expended large amounts of public money, but because it has largely ignored the human factors associated with poverty and because it has treated the symptoms of poverty and left the disease itself untouched."

Earlier in the day, Castonguay said Quebec is now willing to accept funds from Ottawa in the amount formerly spent in specific welfare programs.

The statement marked a withdrawal from Quebec's former position in which it maintained the province should obtain complete jurisdiction over all social security programs.

Castonguay said since it did not appear that Quebec's recommended constitutional changes would be implemented "in the immediate future, short term steps should be taken to assure the provinces such authority."

Quebec attempted in 1971 to have certain changes made in the constitution which would give the provinces complete jurisdiction in social welfare matters. Quebec's failure to get these changes resulted in its rejecting the charter for constitutional change drawn up here in June 1971 by a meeting of provincial premiers.

Castonguay said the "legislative primacy" would allow the provinces to change existing programs or to take over their administration. Ottawa would them transfer to the provinces the funds it would have given them under current programs.

Meanwhile, American jet fighter-bombers accidentally bombed a populated area near the upper South Vietnamese coast today, killing at least 19 persons and injuring 29, the U.S. command said.

The command said two air force F-4 phantoms and four navy A-7s dropped "several" 500-pound bombs in an area about 2½ miles west of the town of Hoi An, about 357 miles north of Saigon and about 13 miles south of Da Nang. The command said the jets were flying missions supporting South Vietnamese ground forces at the time.

The command said it was not immediately known how the jets happened to mistakenly bomb the area.

Meanwhile the Washington Post reports that this is by far the bloodiest year of the war for South Vietnamese troops, as their casualties remain high despite the talk about a ceasefire.

Also, just in 1972 alone, American and South Vietnamese warplanes have dropped more bombs on Indochina than the U.S. unleashed all during the Korean War.

These and other statistics indicate a red-hot war for Vietnamese on both sides of the demilitarized zone even though the American focus is on the negotiating table rather than the battlefield as U.S. battle deaths stay low.

—More North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers have been killed in 1972 than in any year since 1969 when the American forces in Vietnam reached their peak strength of 543,000 men. The admittedly rough but only available estimates show 117,255 enemy troops killed from January through October of 1972.

Young Inquiry Opens

perintendent more power over Grade 11 and 12 students.

"It is possible the new regulations resulted partly from the events which took place here," Laxton said.

He said the hearing, which he predicted would be a lengthy one, would show a conflict between two visions of the education that schools should supply in the 1970s.

"You will see a clash of educational philosophies—on one side the traditional and authorative type, on the other side the modern, more humane view as espoused by Young and the staff of his school," Laxton said.

"The conflict is between those who believe children should be made to go to school and made to learn, and those who believe children can only learn if they want to."

"The latter involves the creation of a free educational atmosphere, in which children can be induced and encouraged to learn," Laxton said. "On this issue the reputation of the staff and the prinipal and the regard they are held in here and in the rest of Canada is very material, as we will be able to show."

Young's lawyer said a 40-page report made by an evaluation team was "by and large laudatory to the school."

"Campbell River School Board has seen fit to extract 20 allegations of deficiency from the report to use in their grounds of dismissal," Laxton said.

He said whether the school was good or bad was very much at the root of the case.

Young was fired by the school board Sept. 8 on grounds of misconduct and neglect of duty. The firing brought to a head lengthy wranglings between Young, his staff, vocal members of the community and a strong faction on the school board.

The education department stepped in in 1970 by withdrawing accreditation of the school, which gave graduates no official standing.

Following an official evaluation of the school which Young immediately branded worthless, the school board laid down a set of rules. Young fought implementation of the rules.

If the board of reference accepts Young's appeal of his dismissal, the elegant, silver-haired innovator must be reinstated.

PHILIP, NIXON TOP POLL

LONDON (UPI) — President Nixon of the U.S. ranks with Prince Philip as the most admired man in Britain, a Gallup Poll says.

The poll said both were cited as the most popular man by nine per cent of the Britons surveyed.

Queen Elizabeth was cited by 25 per cent of those surveyed as the woman they most admired.

National Trust's Deferred Profit Sharing Plan and Registered Retirement Savings Plans for small businesses and executive groups.

The new Income Tax Act provides unusual opportunities for employers and employees alike to obtain maximum tax advantages. And a combination of National Trust's Deferred Profit Sharing Plan, operated by the employer, and voluntary Registered Retirement Savings Plans, paid for by employees, can mean total tax exempt contributions up to $6,500 annually per employee.

Incentive to work

With National Trust's deferred profit sharing plan there is also a strong incentive to work. Work for better performance and better profits, because it ensures that employees have a stake in both. And contributions can be directly related to the profit performance of the business.

How the 'combined' plans work

The deferred profit sharing plan provides for the accumulation and investment of employer contributions on the employee's behalf. At the same time, the employee can voluntarily supplement his employer benefits by participating in a Registered Retirement Savings Plan.

A flexible programme

The deferred profit sharing plan is a sensible alternative to employee pension arrangements for small businesses. With the National Trust Plan the employer determines who is to participate as well as the method of allocating contributions. The contribution amounts can be determined from year to year at the discretion of the company or may be geared to a formula setting out the percentage of profits to be allocated. Similarly, the employee can determine the amount he wishes to contribute to his RRSP.

Tax advantages

All employer plan contributions, investment gains and earnings of the trust fund are tax exempt, the employee being taxed on amounts withdrawn. And, at the time of withdrawal, the employee has important options available which may include tax free transfers to his Registered Retirement Savings Plan.

Professional management and total administration

National Trust provides professional investment management of the deferred profit sharing trust fund through participation in its 'pooled' stock, bond and mortgage funds which show an impressive record of investment performance. The plans are handled in every phase by experienced and expert administrative staff. The reporting and accounting phases are automatically taken care of, which relieves the businessman of day-to-day handling. At the same time, National provides the administrative facilities for the employees' own registered retirement savings plans.

Tax advantages for all is just one of the benefits. National Trust's Deferred Profit Sharing Plan in combination with a Registered Retirement Savings Plan represents an excellent way to contribute to an employee's future security while providing strong motivation for work performance and employee interest.

Bormann: $200 Million Payoff?

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Express reported today that Martin Bormann found refuge in Argentina in 1948 by paying $200 million to then-dictator Juan Peron. But a spokesman for Peron said earlier that Argentina's former ruler knew nothing about Hitler's wartime deputy.

The Express published the second of a five-part series of articles by spy expert Ladislas Farago, who in the first article claimed Bormann is still alive at the age of 72 and has been living since early October on a ranch in northern Argentina owned by the Krupp family of West Germany.

Bormann was seen in Berlin in the final days of war, and afterward there were unconfirmed reports that he died in the fighting, died a prisoner in Russia and escaped to South America.

Periodically he is reported seen in one South American country or another, but so far there has been no proof that he is still alive.

Farago in today's article in The Express reported:

Bormann, realizing the war eventually would be lost, secretly arranged for German ships and a submarine to deliver a huge treasure to Argentina in the final stages of the war in Europe.

The treasure-currency, jewels, platinum, art works and gold that was mostly taken from the teeth of Nazi concentration camp victims—was deposited in four Argentine banks under the name of Eva Duarte Ibarguren, Peron's mistress who became his wife in 1945.

Mrs. Peron made a trip to Europe in 1947, met Bormann in Rome and helped arrange his flight to Argentina. He arrived in Argentina by ship May 17, 1948, with a passport issued to Eliezer Goldstein by the Vatican office for stateless persons.

By the end of 1948, Peron surrendered one-fourth of the treasure to Bormann, retaining nearly $200 million for himself and his wife.

Court Halts Picket On Building Site

The decision, which could have wider effects in the 11-week strike by the International Union of elevator Constructors, was made by Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan in an oral ruling.

INJUNCTION

He granted an injunction to Rudolf Martin Enterprises Ltd. banning the union's Local 82 from picketing the apartment site.

The union will file an appeal which is expected to be heard Dec. 7 in Vancouver.

Raymond Cocking, lawyer for the union, said the judge's decision relates only to the picketing at the Burnaby apartment site, and not to the strike as a whole in British Columbia, as suggested by news reports.

ONE UNION

Cocking said the injunction was sought by plaintiffs who are not parties to the strike, which involves one union and five elevator companies across Canada.

"It does not constitute a decision of the court as to the strike as a whole, just to the apartment site and just to maintain the status quo until trial," he said.

QUOTED

Mr. Justice Ruttan was quoted in news reports as saying the B.C. work stoppage is illegal because the parties failed to conclude bargaining under the B.C. Mediation Commission Act, now known as the Mediation Services Act.

Cocking said one of the problems was that the union sought to negotiate a clause allowing it the right to strike, and the employer the right to lockout, during the term of a contract.

This would normally be considered illegal, he said.

The union had also sought to have a new contract applied to Quebec, but this raised a problem with Quebec labor law.

Cocking said the judge's decision had nothing to do with the fact the union is not certified, federally or provincially, as bargaining agent for elevator company employees.

Although the union bargains on a national basis and has had national agreements in the past, this area of work comes under provincial law.

Mutual Funds Fleece Alleged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Securities and Exchange Commission filed a suit Monday alleging that investors in International Controls Corp. and four mutual funds were defrauded of millions of dollars through a complicated scheme carried out by the men in control.

The suit, filed in U.S. district court for the southern district of New York, accused Robert L. Vesco of Boonton, N.J., and 41 other corporate and individual defendants of violating anti-fraud, filing and proxy provisions of federal securities laws.

The suit alleged that Vesco and other individuals involved in the scheme caused the funds to sell a major part of their portfolios and converted the proceeds, exceeding $224 million, for their personal pursuits.

The complaint also sought appointment of receivers for International Controls Corp. and for four mutual funds, Fund of Funds, IIT, Venture Ind. and Transglobal Growth Fund. The receiver would take possession of the voting stock of these funds and take appropriate action to protect stockholders.

Vesco, as the chief executive officer of International Controls, was accused of causing the firm to transfer its stock investments in Investors Overseas Services and two other companies to foreign shell companies that Vesco and others allegedly involved in the scheme controlled. IOS held a group of mutual fund management companies, including the management firms which ran the four mutual funds.

According to the suit, Vesco caused control of the cash and stock of the four funds to be transferred from independent and responsible banks in New York to newly-formed, thinly-capitalized foreign banks which Vesco controlled.

One of the individuals named as a defendant was James Roosevelt, son of former President Franklin Roosevelt and a director of three of the funds. The suit said Roosevelt "chose to acquiesce" in Vesco's fraudulent plans and failed to discharge his duties as director. The complaint alleged that Roosevelt received a $150,000 loan from one of the banks controlled by Vesco, Bahamas Commonwealth Bank.

The SEC said that Vesco, as chairman of the finance committee and member of the executive committee of IOS, controls the company through which international financier Bernard Cornfield was involved.

Crime Crackdown Pledged by Allmand

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Warren Allmand, an advocate of strict controls on firearms and an opponent of capital punishment, took charge Monday of federal anti-crime efforts.

The 40-year-old member of Parliament for Montreal-Notre Dame de Grace was appointed solicitor-general, which includes responsibility for the RCMP.

"The primary goal, in my opinion, of this portfolio is to reduce the level of crime in the country," he said shortly after his appointments.

He said he is most concerned about crimes against the person, although he would not neglect such things as organized crime against property.

Allmand is walking into a controversial post.

His precessor, Jean-Pierre Goyer, was blasted in this two-year career as responsible for changing RCMP symbols, allowing too many convicted criminals to be released on parole and failing to prevent several prison breaks.

Culture and multiculturalism in Canada have been confided to the keeping of a "nationalist" teacher and trilingual physician.

Dr. Stanley Haidasz, 49, MP for Toronto Parkdale, assumes responsibility for the $5 million multiculturalism project Prime Minister Trudeau launched a year ago.

Under Gerard Pelletier the secretary of state department grew from a quiet fiefdom responsible for protocol and culture to the source of new cultural policy and social innovation.

While some people cheered subsidies to Canadian publishers, via the Canada Council, others railed against the department for corrupting the nation's young through the "give-away" Opportunities for Youth program.

Faulkner said one thing he will seek to amend immediately is the public's conception of programs such as Opportunities for Youth.

"Maybe we didn't take enough time to explain in the past," Faulkner said.

He suggested that OFY's social development role, as opposed to the mere creation of jobs, will be stressed even more in future.

Jeanne Sauve, journalist-broadcaster and freshman MP, could face a year of challenge in the year-old ministry of state for science and technology.

Mrs. Sauve, 50, was the only woman of the three elected by the Liberals — all from Quebec — named to the cabinet.

Science is considered a junior ministry, but it is known to have several major policy statements almost ready to be announced.

Several of these are said to be in touchy areas involving either complex interdepartmental relations, federal-provincial government relations or delicate jealousies between government, university and industrial research.

Andre Ouellet was the youngest member of Parliament at 27 when he became an MP in a 1967 byelection and, at 33, he's Canada's youngest cabinet minister as postmaster-general.

As such, he faces the possibility of a nation-wide mail strike just before Christmas.

Negotiations between the government and the postal unions over the last eight months have been fruitless regarding any final settlement of the main issues of automation in the postal service and job reclassification.

Ouellet, MP for Montreal Papineau, has little in his record to indicate familiarity with the postal problem that he inherits from Jean-Pierre Cote, now a senator.

Health and welfare, the department with the biggest budget — nearly $3.9 billion, or one-quarter of all federal tax dollars — goes to a cabinet minister serving his first term as an elected member.

But Marc Lalonde, 43, is no stranger to the Hill, nor to the administrative policies of the Liberals.

He was principal secretary to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau from 1968 until the election was called and policy adviser to the prime minister in 1967-68.

He refused comment until later in the week on any plans for the department, but did say during the election campaign he was concerned about justice for those on welfare and low incomes.

Don Jamieson, who took over Monday as regional economic expansion minister, says the charge that industrial incentive grants have been made on a political basis is a "largely overstated claim."

On the question of grants being given to companies "who don't really need them," he said, the real issue is not the financial state of the company involved but the needs of the area it plans to operate.

Jamieson said he would work toward the goal of equalizing opportunities in Canada as economic expansion minister but would not dispense incentive grants on a political basis.

Canada's 21st agriculture minister, Eugene Whelan from Amberstburg, Ont., is an eastern farmer who anticipates few problems dealing with counterparts in the West.

"I don't think it makes much difference where you come from as long as you understand farming problems," he said Monday.

"I don't think I understand every one of them, but I think I have a good working knowledge of agriculture."

FOUR RUNNING TO FILL TERM

When nominations closed at noon today papers had been filed by Hilary Lewis, 2254 Malaview, Peter Malcolm, 2018 Courser, Larry Gudmundson, 2193 James White Blvd., and Eleanor Sowerby, 9884 Fifth St.

The byelection was necessitated by the resignation of Ald. Hugh Hollingworth announced earlier this month.

Line Repaired

HUDSON'S HOPE (CP) — Repairs were completed Monday on a section of Westcoast Transmission Co.'s natural gas pipeline which broke open Sunday and reduced the flow of gas to the U.S. Northwest by half. Cause of the break in the 30-inch pipe was not known.

Promotion in the Field

Mr. Trudeau's cabinet changes, like most such periodic political manoeuvres, reflect a compromise between policy and necessity, and the recent slim return of the government has given added weight to the latter factor.

The difficulty of finding an equation between geographical, political, racial, and economic considerations, combined with the need to choose a member who has the personal ability to handle a portfolio and who is in addition sufficiently popular with the party and the electorate, obviously presents problems of a high order in naming men or women to the cabinet.

There is the need to bring along new members of ability and ambition who should not be left too long in back-bench frustration. There is the need to drop deadwood quietly without too much political splintering. There is the need to find minds with imagination and foresight to inject new life into some departments. And always, in the background, there is the need to recognize the political demands and rivalries of one section of the country or another.

Mr. Trudeau freely admits that he has borne in mind the "lessons of the election" in making his latest cabinet choices. "We will act in a way that the Canadian people can see that we have learned the lessons," he said. On some widely debated questions, such as the allocation of funds in the regional expansion program, he is holding firm against protests that Quebec gained most from it by arguing that the Atlantic provinces in reality were most benefited. But on the unemployment insurance issue he agrees that the plan was not well administered.

The obvious question, of course, is why flaws and shortcomings in various departments were not sufficiently recognized well before the election and repaired, rather than waiting for a sharp rebuke through the ballot box.

It could have been no secret that many Canadians were unsatisfied with the postal service, from taking the coat of arms off the boxes to experimenting with the collection and delivery of mail. As for the unemployment insurance measures, while it was recognized that something drastic had to be done to meet an unusual situation, the public was aroused by the high cost of plans which appeared to do little but maintain unemployed persons without providing jobs which would produce goods.

The prison system, with the frequency of escapes and the sometimes tragically loose use of parole and prison leaves, perhaps earned as much widespread disfavor for the government as any other item, apart from the deluge of public money put into stop-gap, make-work programs which were organized in desperation. Information Canada, so far an apparently useless appendange to the many departmental and other sources of government information which flood the country, was not so widely known for the heavy expense item it is, but everyone who has experienced the duplication and waste of this new department could only see it as another government error.

The new cabinet appointments may not cure these faults, nor have the other parties exhibited any persuasive evidence of doing better if they were in office. But at least the word has been received in Ottawa. Whether or not a program works is now apparently going to be used as a guideline.

A Dim View of Lights

Light pollution is a form of environmental despoliation that has caused little complaint. In fact the ordinary person would be hard put to see how too much light could harm him. Do we not admire Paris in its radiance as the City of Light? But light pollution is a real enemy of the astronomers, particularly the mercury vapor illumination used on streets and highways.

Addressing the Vancouver Island chapter of the Illuminating Engineering Society here recently, Mr. Murray Fletcher of Victoria's Dominion Astrophysical Observatory spoke of the effect that light pollution was having and would increasingly have on astronomical work here and around the world. He urged that mercury vapor lights be shielded or filtered and spoke favorably of high-pressure sodium vapor lamps. Ultra-violet rays given off by mercury lighting are the chief culprit affecting photography of distant stars.

Mr. Murray is practical and recognizes the costs involved in adapting urban illumination to astronomical work. Equally, the community should appreciate that as it expands into the Saanich Peninsula the observatory's studies will be increasingly affected. That fact should be kept in mind in future street lighting programs, and some compromise solution should be found if possible.

The standard of the professional work at Little Saanich is widely known, and the institution should not be permitted to suffer the fate of some observatories which have been virtually put out of business by the encroachment of urban areas which throw their illumination into the night skies.

MAURICE WESTERN

The Delicate Balancing Act

OTTAWA — The prime minister, introducing the new cabinet team on Monday, indicated that he had two particular concerns at this time; the problems of minority government and the reshaping of governmental policies, taking account of the lessons of the election.

It is apparent that Mr. Trudeau has rejected the advice of those who felt that a smaller ministry would be appropriate at this time. While nothing was said about it at his press conference, the list implies a judgment on the Prime Minister's part that the country is satisfied with a cabinet of 30.

The transfers and new appointments are extensive and may for that reason tend to exaggerate the degree of Mr. Trudeau's discontent with the outgoing ministry. In fact the prime minister was subject to very strong constraints; given the defeats and retirements and the need to replace certain ministers who had become targets of widespread criticism during the election campaign. Considering that one change often necessitates another, it is notable that 11 of the ministers, including such prominent figures as John Turner, Mitchell Sharp, Otto Lang, John Davis, Allan MacEachen, Charles Drury, Jean Chretien, Ron Basford and Donald Macdonald remain in their former posts.

No Favoritism

One of the key changes is the appointment of Don Jamieson as Minister of Regional Economic Expansion. It will be his task to remove the impression that regional policies favor Quebec; a notion owing something, in the prime minister's view, to the fact that Jean Marchand, who developed them, is the Quebec lieutenant.

Mr. Marchand has accordingly been moved to Transport, also a very important economic department. While this preserves the cabinet balance, it may provoke some criticism for the areas most sensitive to developing transportation policies are certainly the West and the Atlantic region. Why not James Richardson who has instead been transferred to the defence department?"

As replacement for Mr. Richardson in Supply and Services, the prime minister has chosen Jean-Pierre Goyer who was regarded in much of the country as one of the government's larger political liabilities. This particular chain ends with the promotion of Warren Allmand, a member from the Montreal area, to cabinet rank. Mr. Allmand is the new solicitor general.

The prime minister had also to fill the gap in cabinet left by the defeated Labor Minister, Martin O'Connell and the outraged Minister of Manpower, Bryce Mackasey, to whom the much-criticized unemployment insurance policies remain as sacred as ever. Mr. Mackasey posed something of a dilemma for the Prime Minister. How was Mr. Trudeau to demonstrate that the government had mastered its election lessons without, at the same time, alienating the NDP which holds the parliamentary balance?

The circumstances of Mr. Mackasey's departure invite myth-building on the left. So conservative a newspaper as The Gazette of Montreal has been helpful in that regard, deploring Mr. Mackasey's resignation from cabinet, paying tribute to his humanitarian qualities and praising him as "the best federal Minister of Labor in modern times."

Mr. Trudeau has perhaps softened the anticipated criticism by appointing John Munro to the labor ministry, a shift which has also enabled him to entrust National Health and Welfare to his former close adviser and expert on federal-provincial relations, Marc Lalonde.

It is of interest that the prime minister has balanced the Munro appointment with that of Robert Andras to the manpower department. Mr. Andras is a businessman and the hope presumably is that the manpower services, under his direction, will operate with greater efficiency than in the past. One of the most severe blows to the government in the October elections was the defeat of Jean-Luc Pepin, an accomplished parliamentarian and generally successful trade minister. In seeking a replacement, Mr. Trudeau took into account his party's deteriorating position in the Toronto area. With Herb Gray of Windsor moving to Consumer and Corporate Affairs in succession to Mr. Andras, two economic Ministries were open and the prime minister filled them with two "low profile" Toronto ministers. Alastair Gillespie, with a diversified business background, becomes Minister of Trade and Commerce; Robert Stanbury, Minister of National Revenue.

BRYCE MACKASEY
. . . something of a dilemma

It can scarcely be said, however, that he made the most of those open to him. Among Liberals elected elsewhere are some with strong prairie associations. Perhaps the outstanding example is John Reid, the able young member from Kenora-Rainy River whose constituency is linked economically with Winnipeg. Mr. Reid is in fact a University of Manitoba graduate. Also highly regarded is Judd Buchanan, now the member for London but a former Edmonton resident. Neither has achieved cabinet rank.

Eugene Whelan, a farmer from the Windsor area, is the new Minister of Agriculture. The appointment may in part reflect a belief that the West nowadays is primarily interested in the Wheat Board, which remains with Otto Lang. But as Bud Olson learned to his sorrow, prairie farmers and ranchers also have strong views about marketing boards. What conclusions the government has drawn from this we do not know but they may have a bearing on Mr. Whelan's prospects in his first portfolio.

Gerard Pelletier now becomes Minister of Communications although he retains whatever degree of responsibility he possessed for the Canadian Radio and Television Commission. In his place as Secretary of State is Hugh Faulkner, the highly respected member for Peterborough.

Structural Change

An interesting structural change — one of the very few — is to be noted here. There was formerly a Minister of State, Pat Mahoney, appointed to assist the Minister of Finance, John Turner. In place of Mr. Mahoney, defeated in Calgary, the prime minister has chosen Dr. Stanley Haidasz of Toronto.

His responsibility, however, has nothing to do with finance; he is to advance the government's policy on multi-culturalism, an assignment for which he seems well qualified. He will thus be associated with Mr. Faulkner, the new Secretary of State.

Mr. Trudeau continues to regard Information Canada as an important agency which will some day serve its purpose, ensuring that government will not become "remote from the people." What it has accomplished up to now is a mystery; what it will accomplish in the immediate future depends on John Munro who is presumably to think up something if he enjoys any idle hours between labor disputes.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Capital Punishment

Re your editorial in last Monday's Times, should not the decision on the retention or abolition of the death penalty be up to the Canadian people as a whole? I have only met one person in hundreds that I have spoken to on this subject who is in favor of abolition. To get the true feeling in this regard all Canadians should have their say, not just the few in Ottawa. Too often Ottawa's decisions run contrary to those of the people.

The so-called punishment meted out today for cold-blooded murder is in itself almost an invitation to murder. What has the murderer to fear today? He will not lose his life or much of his freedom. He will be pampered to the point where he can be enabled to have a chance to repeat his crime.

A wife-strangler freed to re-marry and take off to Spain. A murderer-rapist released on pass to foully murder another innocent child, and so it goes. The victims get no justice, in fact they are almost forgotten in the concern for the murderer. The parents of the victim can never be sure that the person who caused them so much grief is not roaming around loose.

The religious will say that the evildoer will get his just deserts on judgment day. Few people will be comforted by that thought today. So let us have a popular vote on this subject. If hanging seems archaic and brutal, the firing squad is not, and moreover no one man knows if his bullet was the fatal one. Let's vote on it. — Pro Bono Publico.

Poppy Day

On behalf of the Poppy Day Campaign Committee, may I express our thanks to you, and, through your paper, to the many volunteer workers and particularly the citizens of Greater Victoria, who assisted in making our 1972 Campaign a success.

To date, we have achieved 95 per cent of our objective and are confident of 100 per cent when all returns are received.

This result could not have been attained without the publicity given by your paper, the radio and television stations—W. C. Wilson, Manager, Poppy Day Campaign 1972.

On the Trails

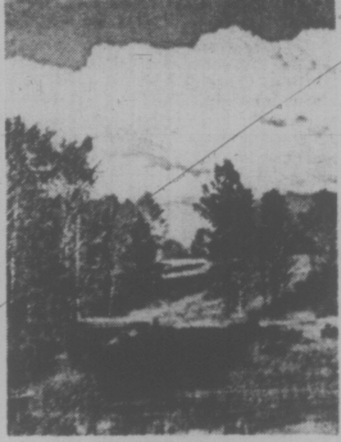
Here we go again! Now, according to Mr. W. G. Burch of B. C. Forest Products, those of us who do indeed care that wilderness areas are preserved in this Province are labelled "Urban idealists" — "devoted to the idea of wilderness like a religious fanatic". (Times, Nov. 16)

People such as Mr. Burch refer to people like myself as if there are very, very few of us, and as if the wilderness areas that do exist receive almost no use. To former cabinet ministers and MLA's who spoke of armchair recreationists and to Mr. Burch I say put on your boots, borrow one of my family's packs and go out on the trails and see for yourself.

Where good wilderness areas have been set aside for foot and horse travel and good trails developed they will find a very substantial number of persons of all ages enjoying the land in its natural beauty.

For heavens sake stop writing the wilderness hiker off as some kind of nut or, worse still, as some "urban idealist" who never sets foot on a forest trail or an alpine ridge. If Mr. Burch thinks we are a "small vocal minority of idealists" he just doesn't know what he is talking about and might think of obtaining some relevant information from Park Rangers here in B.C. or, better still, in Washington, which continues to develop excellent wilderness areas.

By all means let's have more parks and campsites such as provided by B.C.F.P. and well used by campers, but let's not assume the wilderness traveller does not exist in any appreciable numbers just because you cannot count him in your multiple-use campgrounds. If you have the boots, Mr. Burch, I have a pack for you. — P. C. Atkin, 2241 Pacific Ave.



For Recreation

Our Name

A report states that the Esquimalt branch of the N.D.P. plans to push for the word British to be removed from the name of our great Province, and Canadian be submitted.

So it seems we are going to have a minority breakaway group like Quebec, with all the chaos involved. Does the N.D.P. want to join with Quebec?

This smacks of outside sources like Communism or the Mafia, and the sooner both our Premier and his grassroots convention put an official denial on it the better.

So let all British Columbians see that this group does not infiltrate official positions. — Garnet Young, a native son of B.C., 1436 Richardson St.

I have a foreboding that the Oak Bay Council in its pursuit of a recreational centre at no cost to the tax payer is about to rob Peter to pay Paul.

At one time the proposed site was to be one opposite Safeway. If it is imperative we keep up with the Joneses and have a new centre for the furtherance of organized activity, this site would appear to be a sensible one. It is in the middle of the most densely populated part of Oak Bay and near the high school, the nurses home, apartments, and more important, fairly well serviced by public transport. This site, it seems, is to be sold to commercial interests — so much more profitable?

Now the new recreation centre will be up in the North end of the municipality. The richer end where people can afford to belong to the nearby raquets club, or have access to the University facilities. It is a position not too well serviced at the moment by busses, especially for citizens living south of Oak Bay Avenue.

We have had no assurance that the whole area won't be "developed." That whole area includes the only remaining natural woods in the whole municipality. True, more people might enjoy woods had woods been allowed to remain in the central or southern portion of Oak Bay. Many people don't even know about these woods, and the council with money bags in their mind will not be advertising its charms. Still, several people do enjoy recreation there, unorganized recreation to be sure. Dogs are walked there and so far the council hasn't passed a bylaw prohibiting them. Small boys have a swinging branch, and I have noticed at least one tree house.

Bird watchers know of these woods, but somehow bird watchers aren't considered as vital to society in the mind of council members as, say, an ice hockey fan, or a future Marilyn Bell. Of course horseback riders use the woods too and as every councillor knows horseback riding isn't recreation.

Soon, I suspect these woods will be a well ordered, manicured, antiseptic subdivision. This and the site opposite the Safeway will pay for the recreational centre. After all, the richest area in Victoria with the lowest taxes can't be expected to suffer, not now. When the new subdivision goes up and more of Oak Bay becomes apartments, there will be more pressure for services — and nothing left to sell. — Monica Oldham, 511 Victoria Ave.

Scott Family

My wife, Sarah, our family and myself would like to thank everyone who helped us get on our feet again, following the tragic fire that destroyed our home Nov. 16.

A thank you to all those individuals and organizations who contributed to the fund for our family. We hope that our situation will be a lesson to one and all. Be more careful, teach your family escape routes from the home, and be well insured against such an accident as the one that happened to us.

All the Scott family would also like to thank those who have extended enquiries concerning our late brother, Gordon Scott. Your messages of sympathy and care are deeply appreciated.—Ed Scott, 581 Dumeresq.

Fridges

I listened to the news right along from the time the little 9-year-old boy was missing until he was found. He was a retarded boy and it seems from what was being said that, because he was retarded his death in an old fridge in a back yard was something to be expected.

The next child that crawls into an abandoned fridge or freezer may not be retarded — then what? — Mrs. S. Bozman, Vernon Lake, Beaver Cove, B.C.

Dangerous

It always takes a tragedy before we wake up, as it has with the death of little Ernie Whitcomb. Perhaps no matter how many laws we pass there will still be some of these child-killers left around, but we intend to do all we can and hope that many other people will write their members of Parliament, Mayor Pollen and Premier Barrett and if they know of any fridges left, contact our police.

Last January a house at Skinner and Alston burnt. To this day the house still stands as it was left after the fire. Is there no time limit on these homes being repaired or torn down? All the neighbors have made repeated phone calls to the police about the dangers of the house as children still continue to go in it. Enclosed in the walls of this house are several refrigerators.

The police have promised to see that something is done about them, but we shudder to think of the many times our four-year-old and his friends have wandered over there in the past. Children are curious and it is up to us to protect them. Let's all pitch in and help, before it takes another tragedy to make us open our eyes. — Mr. and Mrs. C. Sitar, 929 Catherine St.

Auckland, N.Z. — That there will eventually be established a Pacific fleet of the Imperial navy, comprising divisions from Canada, Australia, and New Zealand, was the declaration made by Admiral King-Hall, commander of the Australian navy, who spoke at a banquet last night. In discussing the present question of the navy policy of the overseas dominions, the admiral said that Auckland must be the secondary base of that fleet.

A Shattered Cambodia Nixon's Asian Legacy

By LISA HOBBS
The Sun

U.S. President Richard Nixon's true legacy to Southeast Asia is not the hoped-for success of his attempts to bring about a ceasefire in Vietnam. His true legacy is the destruction of Cambodia.

Facts place the blame for it on Nixon's head alone.

Nixon cannot be blamed for the destruction of Vietnam, in the sense that the tragedy was well under way when he achieved the presidency. But he alone opened the way for the destruction of Cambodia, a small neutral country that asked only that it be allowed to retain its sovereignty, independence and neutrality.

Nixon did this in two ways:

- He supported the illegal seizure of power by Lon Nol, on March 18, 1970, when the elected chief-of-state, Norodom Sihanouk, was away in Moscow.
- He decided to invade Cambodia, and on April 29, and May 1, 1970, he sent 20,000 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops across the South Vietnam border into Cambodia.

Bloodshed Goes On

The bloodshed and destruction that followed Nixon's support of Lon Nol and the invasion continue to this day.

According to a recent issue of the International Herald Tribune, the capital of Phnom Penh lives with the nightly rumble of artillery. "The countryside looks more and more like Vietnam, dotted with ruined towns, shattered bridges and abandoned farms. Communist troops hold most of the country and there is no prospect that the Cambodians (of Lon Nol's army) can get any of it back."

The Far Eastern Economic Review of Sept. 30 tells of unemployment, galloping inflation, food shortages, corruption and waste. Other wire services and diplomatic sources speak of rioting, looting by Lon Nol's hungry troops, chaos, and in all reports there is a double theme.

One theme is the destruction of the country and culture since the combined U.S.-South Vietnamese invasion of April 29 and May 1, 1970. The other theme is the degree of corruption of the Lon Nol government, its scandalous handling of $250 million in U.S. aid, and a widespread longing for the return of Sihanouk.

Little Publicity

In the North American press, however, little is said about Cambodia. After the 1970 invasion there was a flurry of student demonstrations but they died out quickly owing to lack of popular support.

As Nixon continues to push for a peace treaty, it is worthwhile reviewing the facts, for even a president of the United States should not be allowed to disembowel a neutral nation with impunity.

I was in Cambodia a few months before the U.S. invasion. There were some Viet-Cong and North Vietnamese troops in the northwest border provinces of Cambodia, and Sihanouk — who had once been king but had abdicated so that the country could be run more democratically — was trying to get rid of them with the aid of his Royal Khmer Army.

For the majority of people in Cambodia's 66,600 square miles, life was peaceful, food was plentiful, the land was rich and arable, and families were together.

Hated Enemies

The government was not only doing its best to keep out the Vietnamese, who were their hated enemies for centuries, but it was also trying to push its program of industrial development and social reform.

Because the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese Army had infiltrated the provinces of Rattanakiri and Modolkiri in the northwest, the U.S. kept accusing Sihanouk of being pro-Communist.

Siharouk denied this and pointed out that he was no more responsible for the North Vietnamese presence than he was for American combat troops who were constantly chasing the enemy over into Cambodia.

The U.S. Army in Vietnam denied any such border crossings, but many times when I was in Vietnam near the Cambodian border I met U.S. troops who had been inside Cambodia.

Time and time again through the international press Sihanouk told the great powers what he wanted — to preserve the Khmer kingdom in all its beauty and to keep it neutral and independent.

All this did was to earn him the wrath of both great powers. The U.S. government kept insisting he was pro-Communist, the Communists within Cambodia kept insisting he was "an accomplice of the United States."

Propaganda portraying Sihanouk as pro-Communist was widely disseminated in the American press, even though the daily newspapers in Phnom Penh were displaying pictures of Viet Cong who had been beheaded by Sihanouk's Royal Khmer troops.

One might have thought that the president of a country that was founded on its fight for independence would have understood Sihanouk's dilemma. On the contrary, American foreign policy apparently found it totally intolerable that a small Southeast Asian country would dare to declare itself independent of the United States.

In March, 1970, when Sihanouk was visiting Moscow, a rival politician and army general, Lon Nol, seized power. The seizure was illegal in that Sihanouk had been elected as head of state by the Council of the Throne. But within hours of Lon Nol's seizure of power, he and his government had been officially recognized by Washington.

Incited Genocide

It was not too long before this particular leopard showed his spots. Within days of achieving power, the government incited genocide: mobs of Cambodians, who had lived side by side with Cambodian citizens of Vietnamese ancestry for centuries, turned on those people and slaughtered them by the hundreds of thousands.

"The Pandora's box which was held shut by the leadership and diplomacy of Prince Sihanouk is now wide open."

The storm was just beginning. Six weeks after Lon Nol took power, Nixon went on television and announced that he had ordered U.S. and Vietnamese troops into Cambodia. Such an "incursion" was necessary, he said, to protect American troops in South Vietnam as they withdrew from that country.

SIHANOUK
. . . ousted

By June 1, 1970, all the American troops had pulled out of Cambodia. But the South Vietnamese, hated by the Cambodians, remained. One press story followed another, telling of South Vietnamese troops raping Cambodian women, destroying towns and looting stores.

In the latter part of 1970, the U.S. gave $250 million to Cambodia, or rather, to the government of Lon Nol. Nixon claimed in December of that year that it was "probably the best investment in foreign assistance that the United States has made in my lifetime."

The results of this investment were those usually associated with American aid to Asian military regimes — waste and corruption in the government, inflation, food shortages and moral degradation.

The Far Eastern Economic Review of last Sept. 30 calls it "an open secret" that much of the $8.4 million worth of drugs and medical aids imported with U.S. help in 1970 and 1971 have been sold to the Viet Cong for hard cash.

The article goes on to say:

"By the end of last year the U.S. had funnelled $172 million into the country in equipment for an army in which more than 20 per cent are phantom troops. There have also been heavy imports of luxury cars, air conditioners, television receivers, electric typewriters and color movie films and equipment." None of this would surprise Sihanouk. He told me in late 1969 that if the Americans entered Phnom Penh they would turn it into a brothel and if the Communists took over the countryside it would be virtually destroyed in the bombing by U.S. planes that would follow.

All But Capital

All this has come to pass. The Communists control all of Cambodia except the capital city, and from his exile in Peking, Sihanouk says they can take that any time they wish.

Sihanouk himself is now totally supported by the Chinese communists and he has thrown all his weight to the side of the Khmer Rouge, the Cambodian communists whom he tried, while struggling to keep his country neutral, to eliminate.

And through all this the people, of Cambodia suffer where once they lived in peace.

This is Nixon's legacy to Southeast Asia.

TENSION EASES ALONG SUEZ

Brotherhood Across the Canal

By TERENCE SMITH
New York Times

ISMAILIA, Israeli-occupied Sinai — In the dark, moonless night, the voices carried easily over the still waters of the canal.

"She went south today," the Israeli soldier replied. "She'll be back, Ali."

This exchange and others like it have become part of the nightly routine in recent months along Israel's most placid cease-fire line: the Suez Canal. Fighting the boredom that afflicts them both, the Israeli and Egyptian soldiers manning the positions along the clogged and unused canal fill the still night with idle conversation.

The tenor of the talk has changed in recent months, according to senior officers here, and the change reflects the more relaxed atmosphere that has prevailed along the canal since July, when several thousand Soviet advisers and missile technicians were withdrawn from the Egyptian bank.

"The rancor has drained out of the conversations," a regional commander explained. "Before they used to curse one another and sometimes the arguments led to shooting. Now, it's small talk about their girl-friends and their homes. The tension is gone."

In some cases, the soldiers have come to know each other well. The Israeli called Abraham (that is not his real name, but the name he uses with the Egyptian, who is probably not named Ali, either) told a visitor the other day that he has gradually learned a lot about Ali's family and life.

"He says he has eight brothers and sisters, which I believe," the soldier said, "and two girl-friends, one in Cairo, one in Alexandria, which I don't believe."

Illana, the Isreeli explained, is the name the Egyptian has given to an Israeli woman soldier who visits the outpost frequently to give the bored soldiers instruction in leathercraft. She is a trim young woman, he said, and has caught the eye of Egyptian soldiers along the length of the canal.

Although there has been no fighting along the canal since the American-sponsored cease-fire went into effect on Aug. 7, 1970, the Egyptians have been waging a propaganda war across the waterway in recent months.

Using huge loudspeakers across from the Israeli strongpoints, they have been broadcasting polemical messages in Hebrew designed to weaken Israeli morale.

Most of the messages dwell on such issues as the conflict between the dark-skinned Oriental Jews and the lighter-skinned Ashkenazi, or European, Jews, and on the harsh weather in the Sinai peninsula.

Recently, however, the broadcasts have become more sophisticated. Tapes have been played that purport to be the voices of some of the 10 Israeli pilots and airmen who have been held in Egypt since before the cease-fire.

The psychological-warfare effort seems to be having little or no effect on the Israelis. Most seem to regard the clumsily worded messages as comic rather than persuasive — a mild form of entertainment in a spot where amusement is scarce.

One colonel, a regional commander, dismissed the broadcasts as a farce. "These are highly motivated soldiers, many of whom fought hard to get to this bank of the canal," he said. "They're not going to be talked off it by recorded messages."

NO FLIES ON US

MANCHESTER GUARDIAN

Animals have for some time been pressed into service to aid the American war effort. The U.S. Navy has trained dolphins, sea lions and whales for underwater military roles.

Some reports have suggested that skunks, seagulls and bats have also been used willy-nilly in defence of the fatherland. The military monthly magazine of the Algerian armed forces, El-Djeich, recently went one better. It claims that the CIA has recruited files to which have been attached microscopic transmitters to act as spies.

These winged agents have, of course, the advantage of being able to penetrate innocently to the innermost circles of the enemy's governmental and military establishment — or at least to the kitchens and dustbins.

It is known that they have a touch of the kamikaze about them, which even China's kill-a-fly-a-day drive (instituted as part of the National Program for Agricultural Development in 1956) would not be able to beat.

Our gallant fly heroes are able to fulfil their missions by continuing to transmit from beyond the grave, after being swatted.

From this it may be safely assumed that we shall soon be seeing President Nixon awarding the widows of these selfless patriots transistorised Purple Hearts on the White House lawn.

Charisma Finds His Way

By RICHARD NEEDHAM
The Globe and Mail

Once upon a time there was a rather devious man named Charles Charisma, whose great ambition was to go into political life — not for such sordid purposes as righting injustice, or helping the less fortunate but for the truly noble one of making $25,000 a year, and eat a lot of expensive food, and going on free trips all over the world.

Charles realized there were many tricks of the political trade and found one of them when he was going through election leaflets of various candidates. A great many of them, he noticed, stressed the ideal domestic life of the man concerned, e.g., "Gerald Gerrymander has been happily married for 20 years, and has three lovely children," a statement proved by a picture of him playing croquet with them on the back lawn.

Or again, it might have a picture of a candidate and his wife holding hands on the steps of St. Sacroiliac's, following the christening of their newest baby. Or it might say, "Percy Payoff has a lovely wife who makes clothes for herself and their four children in their cosy converted farmhouse near Port Mope."

When Charles finally ran in an election, he remembered this particular tactic, but found himself hesitant to use it, because he didn't have any wife, let alone children. "Oh, well," he thought, "a politician doesn't have to tell the truth all the time, or indeed any of the time," so he got out leaflets which said, "Charles Charisma has the ideal marriage with a wife who sings, dances, plays the harmonica, and makes apple dumplings like you wouldn't believe. They have five lovely children, one of whom was born in a somewhat revolting fashion, the rest being found under a raspberry bush. They also have three happy gerbils, two happy budgerigars and a happy Skidoo. In Charisma's household, every day is a festival of living and loving, of sharing and caring."

Accompanying this vile untruth were equally untruthful pictures taken in Detroit with a professional model and five children kidnapped at random for the purpose. Charles was pleased with the leaflets and thought they would win him many votes; but, alas, they seemed to have the opposite effect.

Half of the people reading them said, "So he's happily married, eh? What right has he got to domestic peace and tranquility when my old man is always trying to drown me in the swimming pool, or cut off my arm with the electric carver? As for my children, the only time I ever see them is when they want money for hash, which they get by standing over me with a baseball bat."

The other half of the people said, "Happily married, eh? That's a hot one. I bet they do the cat-and-dog bit just like us decent normal people. That picture was probably retouched to cover up her black eye, and the deep cut she made when she brought down the gin bottle on his head. As for those kids, they look to me as if they're headed straight for reform school." A wise old lady said, "Charles Charisma isn't married at all. I can tell by the happy, confident look on his face, and that gleaming white shirt, and those well-pressed clothes." But of course no one paid any attention to her.

Losing that election, Charles Charisma decided he had learned a useful lesson for the next one. Four years later, with another campaign on, he put out a leaflet saying, "Charles Charisma has been married three times, and divorced twice, in each case for parsimony, didacticism, and lane-hopping. His current wife is said to be working as a waitress in Pepsicola, Fla., and his daughter was last heard of in Marrakesh."

Charles lost that election, too, because people said, "I would not want a scoundrel like that representing me on Parleyvoo Hill," or "Just imagine him going into schools and corrupting the morals of our fine young people. It could easily lead them to smoking cigarets, or playing poker, or dancing the Argentine tango." Thus Charles lost the election and learned still another lesson — to play it straight.

Accordingly, when four more years had passed, Charles got out a leaflet saying, "Charles Charisma is a beaming bachelor on account of he's much too smart to be a miserable married man." All the voters loved it. Women said, "Isn't he handsome? He can put his black attache case under my four-poster any old time. I wonder if he kisses hands, feet or whatever." Men said, "A guy who has enough sense to stay single has enough sense to conduct the nation's affairs, not to mention his own."

Yes, Charles was elected by a landslide. He is now the honorable member for York-Shinbone, lives it up on his $25,000, and flies with other MPs to investigate the poverty problem in Acapulco, Honolulu and St. Tropez. Every time he gets a letter from a constituent, he throws it away without opening it; and if one tries to get in to see him, he calls the police.

Saanich Counting on Greenbelt Plan

Plans for a greenbelt system to combat urban sprawl in Saanich may become a reality under the New Democratic Party government, Saanich town planner Tom Loney said Monday.

"We are optimistic if we can take a number of things that various cabinet ministers have said at face value that we can really move ahead," Loney told 20 persons attending a Monday noon forum in the Provincial Museum.

Without the proposed greenbelt system, Saanich can expect "an urban build-out from here to Swartz Bay," he said.

The Saanich greenbelt plan was presented to the provincial government last April, but still awaits approval. The plan emphasizes preservation of stream valleys and flood plains from developers, and would involve the purchase of some $6 million worth of land.

Loney is concerned with ending the "helter-skelter" development that characterized Saanich in the past.

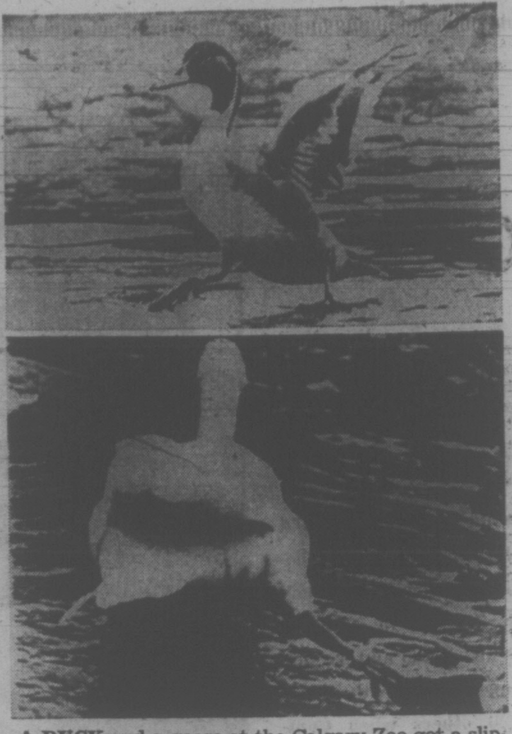
All over the municipality there are little urban pockets in rural areas, such as Pearce Crescent in the Blenkinsop Valley, he said. These pockets have all the disadvantages of rural life and none of the advantages, he added.

"What we want to do is to fill (the Gordon Head area) up to a pretty fair density before moving farther out."

Loney said his department can discourage development of certain areas by refusing to put in municipal services, but it can't stop a developer putting houses on five-acre lots and putting in septic tanks.

"We will undoubtedly lose some" of the proposed greenbelt land to developers before the plan is approved, he said.

Monday's forum was the sixth of a weekly series sponsored by the museum and by Camosun College community services division.



A DUCK and a goose at the Calgary Zoo got a slippery surprise this week as cold weather introduced them to the joys of a frozen pond. The duck slithered along with a fancy step as it came in for a landing and the goose moved in an unbecoming fashion.

HYDRO 'RAIDERS' TO GET OAK BAY ESCORT

If B.C. Hydro "raiding parties" infiltrate Oak Bay to hack at trees an official adviser will be on hand to keep mutilation to a minimum.

Oak Bay council's parks and recreation committee was angry Monday after reading a letter from B.C. Hydro's electrical superintendent J. R. Pogson, which said:

"It is unfortunate that some trees are planted in line with our poles and are of a species that is not compatible with overhead distribution lines.'

Ald. Douglas McLelland likened the Hydro crews to "raiding parties," coming in to the municipality on blitzes.

McLelland suggested that Hydro must have some sort of program and that the municipality should appoint someone to check trees and assess what pruning was necessary before the "blitz" began.

The committee will recommend to council that it consider appointing a tree surgeon to advise the Hydro crews.

At the same meeting Aldermen disagreed with Chief John Green who said it was unnecessary to put in a crosswalk on Cranmore to protect students who dash across the road after leaving the high school. The matter was raised because a girl was recently injured by a car on the street.

Green contended the accident would not have been prevented by a crosswalk, the girl having stepped into the path of a car travelling at 10 mile an hour.

Green said high school students should be able to look after themselves; that setting speed zones and crosswalks would set a precedent that other schools, particularly elementary schools, would want to follow.

Goult contended that council's responsibility to minimize danger on streets must be met. Ald. Douglas Watts agreed.

The committee will recommend to council that a 20-miles-an-hour zone, crosswalk and sidewalk be put in on Cranmore near the driveway to the school.

New Chief By Weekend

Sidney is expected to appoint a new fire chief by the end of this week.

About 20 applications were received for the post, created after Sidney broke away from joint-service with North Saanich when the latter would not agree to hiring a full-time chief for the Sidney firehall.

Monday, an agreement was signed between the two municipalities giving Sidney ownership of the fire hall and equipment. Sidney will pay $42,000 for the North Saanich share of jointly-held assets over the next five years.

Land-Use Talks Now Under Way

Negotiations began today on a land-use contract between the municipality of Central Saanich and Western Canada Recreational Resources for construction of a $1.3 million multi-use recreation centre.

The plan, which is to be financed entirely by private funds, includes a skating rink, eight curling sheets and a 50-metre swim pool. The steel building can also double as a convention centre.

Central Saanich council reacted promptly to a presentation made one week ago by company spokesman Alex Izaat and gave final reading Monday to a bylaw designating the 18-acre parcel on Mt. Newton Cross Road a development area.

According to Izaat, work on the centre could begin by the end of December if the land-use contract and public hearing are cleared within the next few weeks.

Although the scheme is financed privately, the complex will not be operated as a club. Admission prices will be on a par with similar facilities in Victoria.

Revenue projections indicate afternoon rates will be 25 cents for children, 35 cents for students and 50 cents adults. Evening rates will be 35 cents children, 60 cents students and 70 cents adults.

Saanich School Board gave the plan approval in principle on Monday after an informal presentation by Izaat.

Trustees were enthusiastic about the potential improvement of physical education programs in local schools which would be made possible by establishment of the centre.

Coffee Meeting For Candidates

All eight candidates in Oak Bay's aldermanic race will attend a coffee meeting 7 to 9 p.m. in the Windsor Park pavilion Wednesday.

A question-and-answer period will follow the candidates' speeches, and is expected to include questions on apartment zoning for Beach Drive.

Woman Seeks Sidney Seat

Eleanor Sowerby, 9884 Fifth St., will stand for election to the one-year aldermanic term on Sidney council left vacant by the resignation of Ald. Hugh Hollingworth.

Mrs. Sowerby is secretary of the recreation commission and has been involved with young people's activities since coming to Sidney four years ago.

For those of you who thought a Toyota wasn't big enough, or powerful enough, or luxurious enough, we've got good news for you.

The new Toyota Mark II.

The Mark II is the biggest Toyota you can buy. And while you couldn't exactly call it a big car, it has all the things you'd expect to find in a much larger car.

More Power.

The Mark II comes with a powerful six cylinder, 2.6 litre, overhead camshaft engine. The biggest standard engine you'll find in its class. It produces a healthy 140 gross horsepower.

That's powerful.

More Luxury.

The Mark II even has a few things you wouldn't expect to find in a big car. Power steering for instance, isn't an expensive option. It's standard equipment. As are power front disc brakes and a manual 4-speed transmission. So, amazingly enough, is an AM/FM radio. An electric clock. Wall to wall carpeting. An interior that includes rich vinyl and fabric upholstery. A stabilizer-controlled suspension for a smooth, stable ride. You can also have an optional automatic transmission, for even more luxury.

More Room.

In the Mark II, legroom and headroom abound. Rear seat passengers aren't belittled either. The back seat is four and a half feet wide from door to door. A six footer can relax without his knees touching the back of the front seat. All round, that's roomy.

More Comfort.

The Mark II gives you a smooth ride. The seats were designed to fit the shape of your back. Contoured for comfort. Firm enough to support you while you're driving. But they also recline all the way back so you can relax when you're not.

More power. More luxury. More room. More comfort. 2-door Hardtop, 4-door Sedan, 5-door Station Wagon. All in all, the Toyota Mark II is a whole new kind of Toyota.

It's the most Toyota.

Saanich Gives Approval On Apartment

Three applications to rezone property in Saanich — including nine lots on Quadra for a $1.5 million apartment — were approved by aldermen at a public hearing Monday night.

The 108-suite, four-storey block proposed by Park Pacific Apartments Ltd. for land between Quadra and Glasgow north of Tolmie, was opposed by two residents. Council imposed street improvement and traffic conditions before agreeing to draw up a bylaw permitting medium density apartments.

The new building will cover 110,000 square feet of what is now single family residential land, or 27 per cent coverage of the total site, provide underground parking for 66 cars and surface parking for 98 others, and feature a park on about one acre of land on the north side.

Robert McAdams, president of Park Pacific Investments, said the building would be architect-designed of timbered stucco and mansard cedar roof style and provide two-bedroom flats for $150 a month and three-bedroom suites for about $200. No younger children would be permitted, "but perhaps the odd teenager under certain circumstances" would be considered, he said.

"From experience, this type of development is not the kind that caters to younger children," he added with questioning from Mayor Hugh Curtis.

Donald Cosby, 3222 Glasgow, was concerned about sewerage capacity, the lack of developed street, parking hazard and an increase in thefts in the area since Scotia Green family housing projects was opened.

Planner Tom Loney said sewer pipe capacity was adequate to handle the increased flow from 108 suites.

George Metson, 2274 Glasgow, said he was opposed because he feared homeowners would be taxed out. "When the developers move in, the improvements start," he said.

"I reject that," Curtis said. "In many cases it's the developer that pays the cost."

Robert Stevenson, 3217 Quadra, said he was concerned about any increase in traffic hazard on an already difficult hill.

Ald. William Campbell said council should insist the company rebuild Glasgow along all its frontage up to Tolmie, including curbs and sidewalks, to which council agreed.

In other matters, Robert C. Madson, 4085 Prospect Lake Road, was granted rezoning for 10 acres of rural land to rural-recreational to permit construction of an 11,200 square foot riding ring and stables for a maxiumu of 30 horses at Munns Road, enabling horse breeding and training to be carried on.

And John A. Chapman, 962 Lovatt, was permitted to build two dwellings on each of two parcels of land on Meadowbrook Road northwest of Prospect Lake, for other members of his family. The adjoining parcels are 18.5 and 20 acres each in area.

Neither of the two applications was opposed.

$16,000 SPENT ON CRAIGDARROCH

Craigdarroch Castle has received more than $16,000 worth of renovations and improvements in the last year.

James K. Nesbitt, president of the Castle Society, outlined some of the improvements, such as the brass chandeliers that now light the staircase, at the society's annual meeting.

He announced that three large oil paintings and a Chinese bronze vase have been willed to the castle by Vincent Clinton Maddock of Vancouver.

Mayor Peter Pollen attended the meeting and toured the castle, including the newly-restored dancing hall on the top floor.

Nesbitt, vice-president C. C. Wyatt, secretary-treasurer Gwladys Welsh and other executive members were re-elected.

Tax 'Monster' Needs Reform —Accountant

Special to the Times

TORONTO — The president of the Canadian Institute of chartered Accountants, A. J. Little of Toronto, Monday urged tax lawyers and his colleagues to waste no time in starting to reform the government's "unnecessarily harsh and complex" Tax Reform Act, as part of their "great responsibility to the Canadian public."

The act came into effect in January, although amendments introduced last spring by Finance Minister Turner have still not been passed by Parliament.

Little, along with other lawyers and accountants speaking at the opening of the three-day Canadian Tax Foundation conference, referred to the act as a "monster" from which individuals now need to be protected.

The new law, said Little, "tries too hard for equity in matters that are essentially trivial, imposes harsh penalties for innocent mistakes, and is filled with loopholes, anomalies, and unintended results."

The vice-president of the Canadian Bar Association, Neil McKelvey of Saint John, N.B., urged lawyers to make the effort to understand the "incomprehensible monster," and so protect their clients, and taxpayers generally, from "potentially awesome state powers" over individual Canadians.

As an example of increasing government intrusion into individual lives he noted that the department of National Revenue increased its staff by 40 per cent between 1961 and 1971, more than half of it within the last five years. This compares with a 23-per-cent increase over the 10-year period by the public service as a whole.

W. E. P. DeRoche, a Toronto lawyer and CTF chairman, has branded the act as "tremendoulsy skillfully drafted, but unreadable."

Another critic has called it "the product of the embittered mind of an unsuccessful designer of Chinese puzzle fortune cookies."

"Tax practitioners have emerged from the long uncertainty of tax theory into the certainty of a not necessarily understandable tax act," DeRoche told Monday's meeting.

But the man primarily responsible for drafting it, Associate Deputy Justice Minister D. S. Thorson, admitted Monday the act is unlikely ever to be readily understood, even by lawyers and accountants except those who "by virtue of sheer hard work have gained some special understanding of its basic principles."

Chances of the ordinary taxpayer ever being able to digest its complexities are nil, he added.

The reason, he said, is the "innate complexity of any income tax law in a modern industrial society, particularly its detailing of capital gains tax."

Suggestions for simplification have been advanced by people outside the government. These include: incorporating examples of how the act would work, into the legislation; adding footnotes to explain particularly complex sections; using type of various sizes and intensities to highlight certain sections; and even color-coding, which Thorson suggested might result in "a somewhat psychedelic act."

But the most likely attempt at simplification — too late for the present act but possible in future amendments — may be from a new drafting style that would state purposes and general principles, rather than attempting to detail legislation for every conceivable situation.

The result, said Thorson, would be a "discursive" law, in the style of some American statutes, rather than the "enunciative" legislation which is the Canadian tradition.

Dental Training Okayed

Development of a training program for auxiliary dental personnel was given first approval by Camosun College Council's curriculum committee Monday night.

The program, which requires the approval and financial support of the provincial government, would establish a one-year dental assistant course by September, 1973.

Additional courses for training and upgrading of dental assistants, hygienists and technologists will be established in following years.

One-day seminars or workshops for local dental personnel would also be provided in conjunction with the College of Dental Surgeons.

"We have the full support and encouragement of the College of Dental Surgeons," college director Lloyd Morin said.

"Local dentists are anxious to get involved," Morin added, "because they've been trying to do this sort of thing in their own offices."

The projected development of the program includes the 10-month dental assistant program to begin in September, 1973; the first year of dental hygenist program beginning Sept 1974; a first year dental technologist course and second year dental hygienist and assistant courses beginning in September, 1975, and a second year dental technologist course in Sept., 1976.

The program will be financed by the provincial government.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Garry George Brown, 35, of no fixed address, was sentenced in provincial court Monday to a total of two years in prison by Judge William Ostler.

Brown pleaded guilty Nov. 14 to a charge of uttering a $50 cheque on Oct. 21 in a Sooke grocery store and a later charge of attempting to utter a $160 cheque Nov. 3 at Canada Safeway, 3555 Douglas.

"You have a bad record for allied offences," said Ostler.

* * *

Paul Frederick Holden, 21, of 900 Tulip, was given a suspended sentence and put on 18 months probation on a charge of breaking and entering with intent.

He was also given the same sentence on two counts of breaking and entering and theft. Sentences are to run concurrently.

Holden was charged jointly on the breaking and entering with intent charge along with Peter Donald Moulton, 18, of no fixed address. Moulton was given four months definite and six months indefinite on this charge.

He was also given two months concurrent for breach of probation.

Holden and Moulton broke into Canada Safeway, 3400 Tillicum, by way of a roof hatch Oct. 8 and stole merchandise worth between $200 and $250.

* * *

A man was sentenced to four months concurrent on each of four counts of uttering forged cheques to a total value of $428.70.

George Ross Kelly, 22, of no fixed address, was also put on one year's probation for uttering the cheques between Oct. 20 and Nov. 3.

* * *

June Christine Carroll, 19, a U.S. citizen also known as Nancy Diane Rathborne, Crystal Mountain and Amber Rose was fine $100 by Judge Ostler for theft under $200.

Carroll pleaded guilty to stealing a pair of socks from F. W. Woolworth's on Nov. 25. Crown stated that when apprehended, Carroll was uncooperative with police and at first gave them false names and addresses.

* * *

On Nov. 24, Power stole a skein of wool, value $2.38, from Simpson-Sears. When apprehended, Power said there had been a long queue at the cashier's counter and "she couldn't be bothered to pay."

* * *

Walter Russell Jones, 36, of Tofino, was sentenced to three months in prison for impaired driving.

"Do you see the wretched position you've put yourself in?" asked Ostler, noting that this was accused's third conviction for driving while impaired.

The judge said the three months' sentence was "the least I can do for you."

Jones was in addition given one month concurrent for driving without insurance. His licence also was suspended.

MURDERERS 'BEST RISK FOR PAROLE'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Murderers are better parole risks than most criminals, the national council on crime and delinquency has reported.

The council, sponsoring a two-day conference of 55 parole agencies, said Monday that its team which conducted a five-year research program has a national research population of 6,903 paroled killers on which to base its parole findings.

Dr. Don Gottfredson, research director for the council, said the paroled slayers were compared with 72,192 other criminals placed on parole during the research period.

"Approximately 9.03 per cent of the other offenders were returned to prison in the first year, while the percentage of murderers returned—for all offences—was only 1.77 per cent," he said.

Park Vandalism Costly

Vandalism in Kinsmen Gorge Park has cost the taxpayers $2,000 in repairs so far this year, Esquimalt Ald. John Gourlay said Monday.

"Permitting drivers to raise hell in the parking lot, running over flower beds and green areas" has caused most of the damage, Gourlay said in a prepared statement.

He agreed with recent statements by some municipal sports officials expressing concern about vandalism.

Esquimalt Softball Association official J. A. McLeod said washrooms at Bullen Park would be sufficient for players if the facilities weren't always being broken by vandals.

Esquimalt recreation director Harold Moist said the Bullen Park washrooms were usually closed for repairs.

Don Page, president of the Esquimalt Soccer Association, said the major need for younger players at the park is for toilets, but that older boys need a changeroom as well.

Moist said that the recreation commission is waiting for cost estimates for a new field house at Bullen Park, and that it will likely be built.

If the recreation commission agrees to the field house, Moist said, sports organizers will be asked to supply materials and the municipality will supply the labor.

Esquimalt Rejects Bonuses

Esquimalt will be the only local municipality not paying Christmas bonuses to welfare recipients this year.

At a meeting Monday night Esquimalt council rejected a recommendation of its staff to continue the bonuses, which it has paid to families of three or more since 1968.

The provincial government's Christmas bonus was increased this year from $4 to $10 for a single recipient and from $10 to $20 for a family.

Incomes Up 2.2%

OTTAWA (CP) — Total labor income rose to $14.4 billion in July, August and September, up 10 per cent from a year earlier, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

The statistics bureau said that on a seasonally-adjusted basis, the increase amounted to 2.2 per cent for the third quarter of 1972, compared with the second quarter.

Total wages and salaries paid in the goods producing industries were up 2.5 per cent, and they advanced 2.2 per cent in the service industries.

$24,500 IN BLITZ

The Kiwanis Porchlite Blitz Monday evening collected $24,500 in donations, Kiwanis president Stan Britt said today.

Donations toward capital and maintenance costs in Kiwanis Village for senior citizens were collected by 1,100 volunteers in less than three hours, he said.

BADMINTON VICTORY

France Returns To Guillotine

PARIS (Reuter) — Two convicts who killed a nurse and a guard in a prison riot were guillotined in the Sante prison today—the first executions in France since President Georges Pompidou came to power in 1969.

Claude Buffet and Roger Bontemps had waited five months to meet their death. They were convicted in June and earlier this month their lawyers personally pleaded with President Pompidou for clemency. He refused to commute the death sentences.

The case had caused countrywide interest in the future of the death penalty in France.

A poll published Saturday in the mass-circulation newspaper France-Soir showed that 27 per cent of the French people want to see it abolished.

The last previous execution in France was March 11, 1969, when a child murderer and rapist was guillotined in Amiens. There have been four executions in the last 10 years.

Buffet had been convicted on another murder charge.

Buffet demanded to be guillotined and said that he would kill again if reprieved.

Stand, Be Counted, Pollen Tells Council

Mayor Peter Pollen is delaying city council's decision Monday on the Bay Village affair and sending it back to council for reconsideration because he feels "most aldermen don't know the full impact of the resolution they approved."

He also pointed out that his action to stall the matter for up to 30 days — part of his powers under the Municipal Act — will have the effect of delaying any further decision until after the Dec. 9 municipal election.

This means, he said, that the proposed highrise development in James Bay must become an election issue.

"The people who are for this inordinately high density in this area must stand up and be counted."

Council decided Monday to execute a long-unsigned land-use contract with developer J.A. Mace, provided he also enters a second agreement modifying that original contract and submits the amended proposal to a public hearing.

The effect of the amendments would be to reduce the height of the development at Menzies and Simcoe from the original 29 storeys to 24, and also to scale down the floor-space ratio (total floor area in relation to site area) to a maximum of 2 to 1.

At Monday's stormy meeting legal advice to council indicated that if the 24-storey proposal were thrown out after a public hearing, council would not necessarily be saddled with the original contract as the authorizing motion was subject to specific conditions being met.

But Pollen said later he was not convinced that this was the case.

Another reason he cited for delaying the decision was the absence due to illness of two aldermen — Mike Young and Ove Witt.

The mayor noted that their presence for such an important meeting could be significant, in view of the recent return to the former requirement of a two-thirds majority vote of council on all zoning matters.

Voting on the Mace contract resolution Monday was 5 to 2 in favor.

City hall sources pointed out, however, that if council eventually reaches the stage of voting on a bylaw to authorize a contract with Mace — after a public hearing has been held — at least six of the nine members of council will have to vote in favor.

Absence of certain members is not really relevant, as a "no" vote is automatically registered in such cases.

A statement issued Monday by the James Bay Community Association said council's action in entering into a contract with Bay Village Shopping Centre Ltd., under threat of legal action from the developer, "smacks of the groundjacking of James Bay with a licence supplied by the city."

The association says it opposes the project and all developments in James Bay that continue to increase the area's population density, traffic congestion and other problems.

"Why does James Bay have to be the population dumping ground for Victoria? This is the question most often asked by our members, for we have almost doubled the Victoria average.

"What is the population in the Uplands? Some have the nerve to ask."

The association says laboratory rats wouldn't be subjected to the density that could be the lot of residents in the Menzies-Simcoe area of James Bay where the proposed development would be located.

Urging a moratorium on all high-density development until a suitable plan for the area has been adopted, the association also asks council to "open a dialogue" with James Bay residents on their future.

'Pollen Abused Position'

In a prepared statement released today, lawyer Ian Stewart said the attack on him made by Mayor Peter Pollen at a council meeting Monday is nothing new and Pollen has abused his position before to make "sensational and unwarranted" attacks on others.

Stewart was commenting on statements by Pollen concerning his involvement in land development in James Bay while he (Stewart) was an alderman.

Stewart describes the remarks as a "disgraceful attempt" to prevent himself or a member of his firm from appearing on behalf of a client (Bay Village Shopping Centre Ltd., which is trying to get council to execute a land use contract for a highrise development in James Bay).

"Twice this year I have issued writs against him (Pollen) on behalf of others for slander and in both cases he offered unqualified apologies, that is, admitted what he had said and suggested was false and defamatory, and in both cases he paid costs," Stewart states.

Stewart says his former years of community service are in no way relevant to the issues surrounding the Bay Village controversy. At the time the developer applied to the city for designation leading to its present proposals he had been away from political life for more than a year.

He had never held any financial interest in the development.

Stewart maintains the mayor has no right to attack himself or any other lawyer representing his client before council.

"Does he take this position because I represented a woman employee of the Library Board who was unjustly and improperly retired — a decision made and formed while he sat on that board.

"Or was it when I represented a faithful municipal servant who was denied fair treatment on retirement?

"Or was it when I represented interests who spoke against the Harbor Commission and the development of an industrial complex in our harbor, a program which despite his revised stance was one which originally he fully supported just as he originally supported and voted for the Bay Village land-use contract?"

GOVERNOR COLLAPSES

Lieutentant-Governor John Nicholson is in satisfactory condition in Vancouver's St. Paul's Hospital after collapsing at the home of a friend Monday night.

A recurring lung infection, the same condition which sent him to hospital last January, after he collapsed at a Government House reception, was diagnosed as the cause of his latest attack.

Nicholson, who became lieutenant-governor in July, 1968, announced this summer he wished to step down before the end of the year because of his wife's poor health.

No successor has been named yet despite rumors that B.C. Supreme Court Justice Angelo Branca will be appointed.

"I've still heard nothing," 69-year-old Branca said from Vancouver. "I think it's a matter of waiting until they come to me and ask.

"It has caused me a lot of embarrassment," he said. "I'm getting so many wires and messages and I don't know anything about it."

Balk Shocks Firefighters

The president of the Victoria Firefighters Union said today he is "shocked" that city council won't sign a new contract "in the face of a recommendation by the mediation officer."

Fred (Whitey) Severson said council is not listening to its own negotiators.

"Both parties agreed with Clark Gilmour that we would recommend acceptance by our sides," said Severson.

Union firefighters ratified the new agreement last week. City council was to discuss the agreement at a special meeting Monday, but did not take any action except to disclose it is seeking a meeting of area municipalities on the whole subject of new contracts for all employees.

Referring to statements Monday by Victoria Ald. Harold Olafson, Severson said they are "coming from one individual. I hope it doesn't represent all of council."

Olafson told reporters it can be assumed city council is not prepared to sign the new contract and that recent wage settlements with municipal employees have been "excessive" and cannot be afforded by the community.

Neither side has disclosed the wage figure in the agreement approved by firefighters last week, except to say it is not as high as 16 per cent over 21 months.

Severson said the figure is the "going package" in British Columbia and Vancouver Island settlements for firefighters.

"I can't see where this is a 'shocking' situation or why Victoria should be different from the rest," he said.

Severson added that other Vancouver Island settlements will take monthly wages to $948 next year. This would indicate an increase of about 14 per cent in Victoria.

In the past, Victoria's settlement with its firefighters has been copied by Saanich and Oak Bay.

BLAZE CAUSED BY BOY

A seven-year-old boy playing with matches was found to be the cause of a $4,000 house fire Saturday after an investigation by Victoria fire department and police, Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said today.

Some neighbors had seen the youngster on the back porch of the S. J. MacAdam residence, 1437 Hillside, about 3 p.m. MacAdam was not home at the time.

The boy ignited some rubbish on the porch which burned through the door, into a hall, up a stairway and into two upstairs bedrooms.

Death Blame Shared

Blame in the refrigerator death of a nine-year-old Esquimalt boy was laid at the door of the boy's parents and the owner of the unused appliance by a coroner's jury Monday night.

Ernest Leonard Whitcomb, 1201 Colville, was found dead on the afternoon of Monday, Nov. 20. A pathologist testified last week he was asphyxiated.

The jury's verdict said the boy died Sunday, Nov. 19, the day he was reported missing by his parents.

"Parental supervision was minimal," the jury said, "particularly in the case of a handicapped child."

It was the jury's opinion, therefore, that the parents "should share, to a lesser degree, in the responsibility for the mishap."

The verdict also stated that Mr. Roy Kirby, owner of the unused fridge at 1138 Lockley, shared part of the blame for boy's death.

USC Seeking Donations for Bangladesh

Victorians have the chance to put a roof over somebody's head this Christmas.

A corrugated iron roof, to be exact, which covers a 10x14-foot house with bamboo matted walls.

It's not much of a house, by most standards. But for some family in Bangladesh it will be home and shelter from monsoon rains.

The Unitarian Service Committee of Canada has made Housing for Bangladesh the object of its annual fund-raising campaign this year. It has pledged to finish 1,000 of these $140 houses by Christmas Day.

Shelter is now the priority in Bangladesh, Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee said here today.

"Once they have shelter they can start a normal life," she said.

Dr. Hitschmanova is in Victoria until Wednesday to help the local campaign.

She hopes to have collected $1,500,000 across the country by Christmas. The money will go to the committee's partner agency in India, the Rama Krishna Mission, which will build the houses.

Victoria gave $16,641 last year to the Milk for Bangladesh campaign, the highest total since the annual campaigns started here in 1953.

Dr. Hitschmanova founded the Unitarian Service Committee in 1945 to help child victims of the Second World War.

She will speak tonight at a public meeting in St. John Ambulance auditorium, 941 Pandora, at 8 p.m.

Two films on Southern Africa and the Unitarian Service Committee's work with children around the world will be shown, as well as slides of India, Bangladesh and Korea.

All donations to the Housing for Bangladesh campaign may be sent to P.O. Box 300, Victoria, or taken to any Bank of Nova Scotia. Official receipts will be sent from Unitarian Service Committee headquarters in Ottawa.

TV Typing Experiment Planned

Victorians will soon be able to learn to type by watching television.

As an experiment in educational TV, a credit course in introductory typing will be offered by Camosun College starting in January over Channel 10 cablevision.

Approved by the college council's curriculum committee Monday night, the course is an experiment to determine whether education services provided via television are viable in the Victoria area.

College director Lloyd Morin said typing was chosen for the experiment because it closely parallels a course being offered in a more traditional setting at the college and thus can be evaluated comparatively.

Typing was also selected because it capitalizes on the visual capacities of TV, actively involves the participant and provides measurable results.

"I'm not concerned what subject is chosen for the project," council member Philip Ney said, "provided it's a properly designed and controlled experiment."

Taping of programs will begin in two weeks and the course will be on the air Tuesdays from 8:30 to 9 p.m., beginning Jan. 9 and continuing for 14 weeks.

Cost of the course for credit students will be the same as fees for students attending classes at the college, but with 50,000 households connected to cablevision in Victoria an immeasurable number of non-credit viewers will receive free lessons.

The report on the proposal for the course noted that most attempts at educational television "have been hopeless failures."

"With this list of disasters," council member Peter Bunn asked, "why are we trying it here? Is this the place for a new mousetrap?"

"There's no real monetary commitment," director Lorne Thompson said. "It seems like we should take a chance — we won't lose anything.

"It's hard to measure success," he added. "A lot of old people will be interested in typing but they won't be credit students — so it may not be a financial success."

Students registered for the course will be asked to take a test at the start of the program to measure their level of skill. A workbook costing $7.20 will be available to supplement the course.

The college proposes to establish contact with individuals following the course to determine their progress and their reaction to the program.

Burst Main Closes School

Water from a 12-inch high-pressure main exploded on Borden early today flooding two Lake Hill businesses and forcing the closure of Reynolds School.

Saanich waterworks department said the break occurred about 200 feet north of Reynolds shortly before 5 a.m., washing out about 75 square feet of the street and sending a cascade through the property of Slegg Bros. Lumber Ltd., across Quadra into the cellars of Growers' Wine Co. Ltd.

At Growers' the company's pumps were used to clear water away from the maturing and storage tanks, whose contents were unaffected by the flood. But some vinting supplies were lost when water reached a depth of 18 inches in some places, and a few electric pump motors were damaged.

Much silt was deposited in the building, necessitating a thorough cleanup, a spokesman said.

The flood damaged building supplies in Slegg's yard and seeped into the firm's warehouse and office building, where the extent of damage was still being assessed before noon.

Repair work on the main was expected to be finished about mid-day.

Floodwater meanwhile ran off below the winery into Swan Creek.

Puzzle letter in more ways than one

Where's Shannon?

Shannon's jigsaw puzzle letter has left the Victoria post office with a puzzle of its own.

Unless the post office can locate Shannon and find out where she wants her unusual letter delivered, it appears there may be some disappointed grandparents this Christmas.

* * *

The "letter," apparently mailed in Victoria last Friday, is made up of jigsaw puzzle pieces in a small cloth bag. But the tag on the bag has an incomplete address:

"Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Harper, RR 1, Site 1, 7 East Trailer Court."

While post office staff don't want and aren't permitted to assemble the puzzle pieces for more clues, they say it appears to be a letter from a little girl named Shannon to her grandparents.

Russian Increases Chess Lead

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Two of the favorites from the Soviet Union, Tigran Petrosian and Anapoly Karpov, played to a brilliant draw in 29 moves Monday as Karpov increased his lead in the international chess tournament.

Petrosian, former world champion, offered the draw which Karpov accepted although some observers felt that Karpov had a slightly better position at the time.

After seven rounds of play, Karpov has five points and one game adjourned. He is followed by Paul Keres, also of the Soviet Union, who has four points and two games adjourned.

Keres drew with Duncan Suttles of Vancouver Monday in 37 moves as the Canadian concentrated on defence. Suttles had three points and one adjourned match in the 15-round tournament.

Bent Larsen, Danish grand master, defeated Dr. Anthony Saidy of the United States in 28 moves after Saidy ran out of time. Vlastimil Hort of Czechoslovakia stayed near the leaders, defeating Walter Browne of Australia in 31 moves.

IWA to Pay Legal Fees

NANAIMO — The Port Alberni local of the International Woodworkers of America has voted to pay all legal fees accumulated by fallers during last summer's strike.

The unanimous decision to pay the $6,000 in fees was made at the local's annual meeting last week.

The fallers walked off the job in April and were out of work for most of the summer in a dispute involving a day rate for their work. Their strike continued after a master agreement was signed and other IWA members returned to work.

The rank and file committee report issued after the meeting said better industrial relations would exist if other locals realized that bills accumulated by the fallers are the responsibility of everybody in the organization and the money is not just a gift.

The report said the decision shows the unity which does exist among minority groups within the IWA.

Grey Cup Good Guide To Inflation

HAMILTON (CP) — The Grey Cup could be used as an accurate measuring stick of inflation.

The Canadian Football League began in 1964 to issue replicas of the cup to members of the winning team. Cost of the four-inch high miniatures: $55.

Last year, when CFL secretary Greg Fulton returned the Grey Cup from Montreal to the CFL offices to ready it for the 1971 presentation in Vancouver, it cost him $115 to have the cup cleaned and shined.

No Patents Allowed On Computer Feeding

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that methods of feeding instructions to general purpose digital computers are not patentable.

By a 6 to 0 vote the court held that the mathematicians' formulas for converting numbers into symbols the computer can use are ideas, not inventions, and belong in the public domain no matter how bright the idea is.

"It is conceded that one may not patent an idea," Justice William O. Douglas wrote for the court. He said that would have been the result if the Bell Laboratories were allowed to patent its coded instructions developed in connection with telephone dialing equipment.

After conducting a "new math" analysis of the claimed Bell invention, Douglas said if the court was wrong, and if the computer age required more patent protection for the software industry, "considerable problems are raised which only committees of congress can manage." He said "we are not competent to speak" about what the new policy should be.

The decision was a defeat for the software branch of the computer industry, which hoped to reap large royalties from the users of their patents, and a victory for the U.S. patent office and the "hardware" companies which manufacture the machines.

The patent office rejected the Bell patent application but was overruled by the U.S. Court of Customs and Patent Appeals. That court in turn was reversed by the Supreme Court.

Patent officials said claims like Bell's were so sweeping and so abstract that it couldn't keep track of all the possible patents, even with a computer.

Douglas agreed. He likened the case to the high court's 1853 decision upholding a patent for Samuel F. B. Morse's telegraph but refusing to give him a complete monopoly on all future methods of transmitting words electrically.

By contrast, Douglas noted that Alexander Graham Bell won his telephone patent in the Supreme Court in 1887 for two principal uses of electricity but didn't seek a monopoly on "all telephonic use of electricity."

Like the Morse claim, Douglas said the Bell claim "is so abstract and sweeping as to cover both known and unknown uses" of mathematical conversion formulas, locking up the technology far into the future.

Trust Units Now Listed

TORONTO (CP) — Something new is being added to the Toronto Stock Exchange list of daily quotes — "trust units."

The first such listing, TD Realty Investments, will start this week but will be separated from other quotes under the heading "trust unit" on the advice of exchange lawyers.

Exchange counsel said unit trusts "are not shares or stock and . . . should not be described as such." Since they are not a limited liability security, the exchange decided to list them separately to "avoid any misrepresentation."

Kelly, Douglas

Kelly, Douglas and Company Ltd. reports record sales of $185 million in the first nine months of 1972, $18 million more than during the same period last year.

Net profit after taxes was $1,852,000 or 71 cents a share for the nine-month period ended Sept. 2, compared with $1,559,000 or 59 cents a share in the same period last year.

Company president Victor F. MacLean said that at a time when criticism is being levelled against the profit motive in business, particularly in the retail and wholesale food industry, "a profit of one cent per dollar on sales of $185 million can hardly be regarded as being out of line."

Alminex

Alminex Ltd. had a net profit of $1,116,930 during the nine months ended Sept. 30 compared with $910,881 in the same portion of 1971.

Gross revenue was $5,563,381 compared with $4,718,534.

Great National Land

Great National Land and Investment Corp. reports net profit dropped 48 per cent to $64,496 in the fiscal year ended April 30, 1972, compared with the previous year's profit of $125,608.

Gross revenues were up 21.8 per cent to a record $6,378,382.

Company president Frank Ney said part of the drop in profit resulted from a new method of deferring income taxes, and partly from losses in several departments.

Trimac

Trimac Ltd., a Calgary-based transportation company, has purchased United Contractors Ltd. by acquiring the shares of United's parent, Mindevco Mineral Development Corp. Ltd. of Regina.

United has been involved in constructing small and medium-sized pipelines for the last 15 years and builds about 300 miles annually.

625 PAGES ON ONE FRAME

NEW YORK (AP) — Two inventors say they have developed — to a preliminary stage — a system to microfilm as many as 625 book-size pages onto a single frame of film and display the pages singly on a pocket-size screen.

The inventors say the technique could have wide application in mass producing books and other printed material at less cost.

The two are Dr. Adnan Waly, president of Personal Communications Inc. in Stamford, Conn., and Dr. George Yevick, a professor of physics at Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken, N.J.

The basic innovation involves replacing the single lens in a standard microfilming mechanism with 3,500 spheres — one per letter on a page. That reduces the distance between film and screen, making pocket-size plastic equipment possible, the inventors say.

The system also reduces the letters 25 times in size when recording them on film, leaving space between them for letters from other pages. By manoeuvring the sheet of plastic spheres, different pages come into view on the screen.

The system was demonstrated recently at the National Science Foundation, and a patent is expected to be issued next week.

Another Renegotiating Coal Price

EDMONTON (CP) — McIntyre-Porcupine Co. Ltd. officials are preparing to visit Japan to renegotiate its current coal contracts, says a company spokesman.

The visit will be to bargain for increased coal prices on a 15-year agreement under which McIntyre-Porcupine's Grande Cache, Alta., mine currently operates.

The company official said basis for the negotiation is the unsuitable price — in "the light of present world prices" — which McIntyre-Porcupine obtained in 1967.

He dismissed reports that a new contract also would be discussed.

Earlier this month, R. B. Fulton, president of McIntyre-Porcupine, reported a loss of $6.3 million during the first nine months of the year for the Grande Cache mine. For the same period in 1971, the mine, key industry in town of 4,000, about 230 miles west of Edmonton, showed an operating loss of $6.9 0million.

STUDENTS BOYCOTT THALIDOMIDE FIRM

LONDON (AP) — Britain's three million students began a boycott today of products of the Distillers Co., the whisky and chemicals combine which distributed the drug thalidomide in Britain.

The boycott was called by 1,000 delegates at the National Union of Students convention Monday to highlight charges that the company has not made adequate provision for deformed children born to mothers who had taken the drug.

Lists of Distillers' products will be sent to bars at the 700 student union buildings in Britain. These products include most of the better known brands of Scotch whisky.

Regional Forces Backed by Fisk

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver police chief John Fisk said Monday a regional police system in the Lower Mainland would be much more efficient than the current system of an individual force in every community.

"Certainly, we now enjoy a high level of co-operation with all police forces (on the Lower Mainland) but with regional policing we would greatly benefit in such areas as central communication system and one criminal laboratory," said Fisk, who has spent the last three weeks studying police systems in Britain.

"Ten years ago Britain had 200 police forces. Now it has 47 and will soon be down to 30. All are amalgamating into regional forces.

"I feel this is the kind of concept we should be looking to here. We already have regional systems dealing with water, sewers, parks and hospitals," he said.

"Well, our major criminal problems such as drugs are regional in nature and should be attacked on that basis."

To initiate regional policing locally, both federal and provincial governments would have to assume a large share of the costs, he added.

He said the British government carries 50 per cent of the cost of regional policing in Britain through the Home Office, lifting the direct financial burden off the taxpayers.

Air Hunt Called Off

EDMONTON (CP) — An air search for a light plane missing on a mercy flight in the Arctic since Nov. 8 with four persons aboard has been suspended, a spokesman for the Canadian Forces rescue co-ordination centre said Monday.

Search planes logged almost 1,000 hours of flying time and covered about 100,000 square miles, he added.

InfoCan Seeking Ways, Means To Get Grist to Local Mills

By VIC PARSONS

OTTAWA (CP) — An effort to make federal information programs more relevant to local conditions will be expanded this coming year, says an Information Canada official.

Last summer eight roving information officers were sent to selected areas of Manitoba and Nova Scotia, and Ian Hamilton, head of planning review for the agency, said in a recent interview the results were "damn good."

In the next year, the test program will be continued with the probable addition of inquiry and communications centres to the mobile information officer program. Last year the information officers were on their own.

However, Information Canada, the controversial agency established to speed information to the public and sound out public opinion for government, must consult with other departments before an expanded program is launched, Mr. Hamilton said.

HOSTILITY CREATED

Six roving information officers were sent to Manitoba and two to Nova Scotia after eight special studies suggested the idea might be tested.

The studies, done in various parts of Canada during the summer of 1971, said the public was not getting news about goverment programs. The resulting communications gap was creating hostility, suspicion and skepticism toward the federal government.

The mobile officers were given the job of providing information to the public and establishing links between communities and government officials.

Mr. Hamilton cited the test program as one of the first steps toward regionalization of government information programs. Findings of the mobile information officers will be used for planning development of regional programs.

The final result of regionalization might be mobile information officers working in a geographic area responsible for all federal government information, if the departments are agreeable, Mr. Hamilton said.

He conceded there might be problems finding people who could provide information on all government departments and programs, but said the real need is to find people who can communicate with others.

"We would like to use people from the areas involved as much as possible," Mr. Hamilton said.

But objectivity would have to be retained. Information Canada would not want information officers to be confused with community development officers or social animators.

1972 was a record year for Toronto Dominion. Marked expansion occurred in all phases of the bank's business. Today, we have more branches, more customers, more deposits, more loans and more assets than ever before. As the figures above show, total assets rose by 15.2 per cent, deposits by 15.1 per cent and loans by 18.4 per cent.

This increase in business has, of course, been reflected in our operating results. There was an increase of 18.5 per cent in balance of revenue to $78.4 millions. Accumulated appropriations for losses now total $71 millions and Rest Account shows an increase of $30 millions to $190 millions.

The excellent results for the year reflect the continuing confidence of our customers and the loyalty and teamwork of our personnel in 833 branches across Canada and abroad. To non-customers, a cordial invitation is extended to make use of our complete banking service.

FARM LABOR COSTS UP IN MANITOBA

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Agriculture Minister Sam Uskiw said Monday farmers are going to have to pay more for farm labor.

Speaking to a meeting of the Manitoba Farm Bureau, Uskiw said that paying a farm worker $400 a month plus room and board may sound like a good deal, but it isn't good when the employee is expected to work a 16-hour day.

The minister said the government is working on a possible solution to the farm labor problem which it hopes will be in effect by next summer.

The proposal calls for the government to establish a corps of farm laborers who would be on the provincial payroll. These workers would be available to farmers who would in turn be billed by the government for the work done.

Red Light Fails, City Must Pay

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench judge has ruled the city of Winnipeg liable for damages totalling nearly $12,000 as a result of serious injury to two motorists in 1970.

Mr. Justice Louis Deniset ruled the city was 10 per cent negligent when traffic lights failed at the intersection of Lagimodiere Boulevard and Dugald Road in the city's southeast section.

The judge also ruled that Marion Lycyk, 57, had been 90 per cent responsible for the accident which occurred when the car he was driving went through the intersection, striking a vehicle operated by Michael Gushowaty, 52. Both men are from Winnipeg.

He ordered that Lucyk pay 90 per cent of the $20,437 damages awarded Gushowaty for injuries received in the accident, with the city paying the remaining 10 per cent. The city was also ordered to pay 10 per cent of the $98,528 damages assessed for Lucyk.

In making the award, Mr. Justice Deniset, said the city signals department had misunderstood a message passed on by motorists prior to the accident, concerning the operation of the traffic signals. He also regretted that when the report of no red lights was received, the police were not instructed to take over until the defect could be remedied.

No Constitutionality

EDMONTON (CP) — There is no question of constitutionality involved in Alberta's demand for higher natural gas prices, Don Getty, Alberta minister of intergovernmental affairs, said Monday.

He was replying in an interview to Ontario's objection to the proposed price increase.

Tax Lottery Out

WINNIPEG (CP) — Attorney-General A. H. Mackling Monday informed the city's finance committee that the Criminal Code stipulates lottery licences be granted only to charitable or religious organizations.

Concern Over Land

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan Wheat Pool has expressed concern about non-Canadians taking over Saskatchewan farm land.

Delegates at the pool's annual meeting passed a resolution asking the federal and provincial governments to develop a land transfer program "which would ensure that the control of Canadian farm land remains in the hands of Canadian farmers."

Copter Squad Commander Dies

PETAWAWA, Ont. (CP)—Lt. Col. John Peter Harrison, commander of Canada Forces helicopter Squadron 427, died Sunday. Lt.-Col. Harrison, 48, was born in Kelowna, and joined the RCAF in 1943.

CHURCHES LACK CLOUT?

WINNIPEG (CP) — The triennial assembly of the Canadian Council of Churches Monday began its first full day of meetings with a heavy agenda of social ailments for study — poverty, racism and pollution.

But darkening the doors of the committee rooms is a record of limited successes in social action endeavors since the 11 member churches of the Protestant organization last assembled in Motreal in 1969.

"Perhaps we just lack clout," commented council president, Dr. A. B. B. Moore of Toronto, when asked why members of Parliament showed no interest in two council questionnaires on national and international issues.

Soccer and Drysdale, A Lottery and Curling

Sort of a humdrum weekend, or the question of the week has to be: where do the soccer fans go in the winter time?

The official count at Athletic Park on Saturday for the Coast League match between Cliff Avenue United and Victoria West United was 179 paid. This is unfortunate, not very good either, and certainly won't pay the bills.

True, it was an inclement day, but this must be a low for intercity competition. And the strange part of it is, the city teams in the Coast League are ranked one, two, and providing the fans with a calibre of football that must rate as high as in past seasons. Probably higher, and with a fine crop of young players the competitive future is bright indeed.

Truly, they deserve better.

Meanwhile, if the question in the past was: "Where does Cliff Drysdale, the South African tennis star, stand on the question of apartheid?" the answer is straight forward enough.

He is an avowed opponent of his country's apartheid policies, belongs to the Progressive Party which supports racial equality (and incidentally has only one seat out of 220 in the South African parliament), and in an excellent article in a recent isusue of Sports Illustrated magazine, he said:

"I have come to understand the militancy of the blacks (in the U.S.), because their preoccupation with the issue of race is forced upon them, just as it always is with me."

It will be recalled that Drysdale was one of two South Africans who competed in the recent Rothmans International tennis tournament at Vancouver, which was snubbed by newly elected MLA Emery Barnes of Vancouver because he disagreed with South Africa's racial policies.

What Emery forgot to do, and Premier Dave Barrett as well, for siding with him, was to check the credibility of this action against Drysdale and Ron Maud as representatives of South Africa in a sporting event.

Actually, Drysdale was on Barnes' side, and still is. South Africa's sins weren't his, and Barnes, a former player with the B.C. Lions, if he had considered the matter more thoughtfully, might have found a common bond with this professional in another sport, instead of being caught offside, and dragging his captain with him.

The note here a few days ago about the guessing game "sportstoto", brought a query regarding the ways and wherefores of the lottery.

Well, Sportstoto Canada, that's the official name, is a nonprofit organization owned by member provincial sports federations. Headquarters is in Winnipeg, where it got its beginning, and the objective is to provide amateur sport with a sound, fund-raising system.

It is a weekly lottery where the participant writes his own ticket by predicting the results of 13 weekend hockey games. Basically, 13 right means you win (or share) $15,000; 12 right, $5,000; 11 right, $1,000.

Out of every dollar, 27 cents is allotted for prize money, 15 cents for administrative expense, and 58 cents for provincial amateur sport. In Manitoba more than $100,000 has been raised; in Italy the high one year was $170 million for a similar type pool.

The odds: astronomical! The idea: great!

Lunch with Bruce Boreham is always an enjoyable occasion and an interesting experience. Bruce is a Macdonald's Brier trustee, and what he doesn't remember about the Canadian Curling championships, can be found in his book about the Brier. At any rate Bruce was explaining the new format for the playoffs next March, in Edmonton, which he feels will be a better deal for the competitors. Under the new schedule "Black Thursday" will be eliminated. No longer will a rink have to curl three games in one day, as has been the case up until now, and the ruination of many a championship dream as well.

Now, there will be an extra draw on Saturday morning to take care of the one that is being dropped from Thursday; and only on Tuesday will there be another morning draw, and that's because the Brier dinner is held that evening.

"We think is will be fairer all round," said Bruce, while admitting it might take away from some of the excitement when the draw is made Sunday evening, everybody in the past dreading the possibility of getting that Thursday back-breaker.

The Brier? In his opinion, the greatest sports playoff, especially in the field of goodwill and sportsmanship, in the Dominion. But Bruce may be prejudiced. Why not? He's missed only four of all the Briers.

Stockers Stalk To Four in Row

Stockers North Americans rang up a fourth consecutive victory Monday by tripping Ingraham Buckaroos 6-2 in a Victoria Intermediate Hockey League encounter at Memorial Arena.

Victory also extended Stockers' lead to three points over Buckaroos, now winless in five straight games.

Errol Goulden led Stockers with two goals while singles were contributed by Mark Bowles, Les Bergman, Murray Morrison and Gary Hales. Lorry Gloeckner and John Bassos scored for Buckaroos in the second period.

Goalie Ken Olsen had to make 29 saves for the victory while Ron Griffis turned aside 37 shots on the Buckaroo net.

Wheeler-Dealers, That's the Nats

Vancouver Nats continued to keep the trade pot boiling Monday in the Western Canada Hockey League by sending winger Doug Sweeting to Calgary Centennials in exchange for forwards Randy Andreachuk and Bruce Greig.

Goaltender Rich LeClaire, a junior "B" player from Smithers, was shifted to Calgary's protected list and two players will be traded to the Nats in June, said Calgary general manager Scotty Munro.

Earlier, Nats traded Sid Prysunka and Marv Lank to New Westminster Bruins in exchange for Doug Lindskog, currently with Red Deer Rustlers, and one future player.

In games tonight, Regina Pats visit Cougars in Memorial Arena beginning at 8, Vancouver meets Tigers in Medicine Hat and Brandon Wheat Kings take on Blades in Saskatoon.

Reynolds Girls Tops

HANEY — Reynolds nippped Burnaby North 33-32 Sunday to capture the second annual Garibaldi invitational high school girls' basketball tournament.

Reynolds defeated Abbotsford 41-32 and Garibaldi 28-17 earlier in the eight-team event.

Stowe Steps Out of Shadow While Fans Run With Players

MIAMI (AP) — Young Otto Stowe streaked out of Paul Warfield's shadow Monday night to catch two touchdown passes for Miami Dolphins and vowed not to remain backstage much longer.

"I love playing in Miami and winning is wonderful," said the sophomore pro from Iowa State, "but I'm not planning to sit on the bench for another season."

With Warfield resting an injured leg, Stowe ran past befuddled St. Louis cornerback Norm Thompson to catch a 37-yard touchdown pass from Earl Morrall and a 27-yarder from Jim Del Gaizo.

"These fans are crazy," said sportscaster Howard Cosell, who turned a threatening letter from a Miami follower over to the FBI earlier in the weekend.

The Dolphins are 11-0, three games from becoming the NFL's first undefeated regular-season team since the 1942 Chicago Bears. Ahead on the schedule are New England Patriots, New York Giants and Baltimore Colts.

Morrall, who's done nothing but win as replacement for the injured Bob Griese at quarterback, refused to take any opponent lightly . . . not even the bedraggled, 2-9 Patriots coming up Sunday at Foxboro, Mass.

"Once you start looking past them, you're in for a dogfight," said the 38-year-old Morrall. "We're not taking New England or anybody else lightly."

Stowe blazed past the napping Thompson for the first touchdown shot from Morrall. Thompson later was carried bodily into the end zone from five yards out as Jim Kiick smashed for another score.

Then, with the second-year defender from Utah on the ropes, Stowe burned him again as backup quarterback Del Gaizo arched the football into his arms.

"Otto sure gave that No. 43 the business," said Warfield, whom Stowe had credited for much of his improvement with the Dolphins.

Morrall hit 12 of 19 passes for 210 yards against the Cards.

The Dolphins, who began operations in 1966, reached a milestone Monday night. They hit the .500 mark at 46-41-1 in their seventh season, the earliest an expansion team has ever made it.

Yanks Aim At Flag

Before the last man was out Monday, 18 players, including such big names as Tommie Agee and Craig Nettles, had changed teams as the free-swinging officials got the annual session off to a fast start.

Even before the major league draft led off official business Monday, the Yankees dropped an early-morning bombshell announcement involving Nettles and five others.

The Yanks, badly in need of a slugger, snatched the power-hitting Nettles from Cleveland Indians along with catcher Jerry Moses for a covey of young hopefuls — catcher-first baseman John Ellis, outfielders Charlie Spikes and Rusty Torres and infielder Jerry Kenney.

WANT IT NEXT YEAR

"We traded tomorrow for today," New York general manager Lee MacPhail said. "The fans have waited long enough for a pennant.

"We want to win it next year — Yankee Stadium's 50th anniversary.

"I don't want to put our manager, Ralph Houk, on the spot. But I must say that now we've got as good a club as anybody in baseball."

HOUK AGREES

Houk, who apparently didn't mind being "on the spot," added: "We're going to go out and get the American League pennant next season."

The Yankees certainly seem serious about securing that long-elusive title. The six-man deal was the second trade the American League club has made in three days here.

The Yankees opened for business not long after their arrival by obtaining rightfielder Matty Alou from Oakland Athletics Saturday for pitcher Rob Gardner and a player to be named later.

The National Leaguers shipped centrefielder Agee to the Astros for outfielder Rich Chiles and pitcher Buddy Harris. The Mets then completed their day's business with the announcement that relief pitcher Phil Hennigan had been obtained from the Indians for minor league pitcher Brent Strom and Bob Rauch.

Pittsburgh Pirates and Detroit Tigers got into the act with a four-player deal only a few hours later. The Pirates obtained two minor league pitchers, left-hander Jim Foor and right-hander Norm McRae, for outfielder Dick Sharon and an undisclosed minor leaguer.

The trade-happy baseball people weren't finished, however. Cincinnati Reds then dealt outfielder Bill Voss too St. Louis Cardinals for pitcher Pat Jacquez.

YMCA Wins First Game

After jumping to a 43-17 lead at half time, YMCA went on to win its first game of the season by thumping Restoration Services 84-49 in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League game Monday at Central Junior High School.

Korean Volleyball Expert Named Provincial Coach

Officials of the B.C. Volleyball Association have confirmed appointment of Moo Park, former member of the Korean national team, to the position of provincial volleyball coach.

Currently completing studies for a master's degree at Pepperdine University in Los Angeles, Park coached the South Korean women's squad to a fourth-place finish in the 1968 Olympic Games. He directed Los Angeles teams to U.S. national women's (1971) and men's (1972) titles and has been engaged to direct American national clubs on several occasions.

Victoria has been included on the playing schedule of the South Korean women's volleyball team, which will tour Western Cannada along with the Korean national men's squad.

Date and site of the women's exhibition in Victoria has not yet been announced, but it will probably be at S. J. Willis Junior High School "between Dec. 16 and 20."

In their games at Victoria and Vancouver (Dec. 17), the Korean women will face Canada's national team, formed with Vancouver Chimos as a nucleus and expected to include former Victorian Anne Jeffrey Ireland.

The Korean men's club is slated to play against local all-star clubs at Vancouver (Dec. 17), Calgary (Dec. 18) and Edmonton (Dec. 19).

Richard Rejoins Habs' Workout

MONTREAL (CP) — Henri Richard, veteran centre and captain with Montreal Canadiens, was to practice today with the team, a spokesman for the National Hockey League club said Monday night.

The brief statement ended speculation that Richard, currently in his 18th NHL season, with the team, would retire following a dressing room altercation in Vancouver last Friday night with team-mate Serge Savard.

Richard dealt Savard an open-handed slap across the face after a dispute over whether to allow reporters into the dressing room after the Canadiens' 9-1 victory over the Canucks.

He did not play in Chicago and reports indicated he had asked coach Scotty Bowman to remove him from the lineup.

If there is trouble on the club, it isn't slowing down forward Jacques Lemaire.

Lemaire, who counted 22, 29, 32, 28 and 32 goals respectively in his first five NHL seasons, today leads the league in goals—19 after 22 games of the 78-game schedule.

Celtic Survives Scare To Keep Streak Intact

GLASGOW (CP) — Glasgow Celtic survived a big scare from Aberdeen Monday night before reaching the Scottish League Cup soccer final for the eighth successive season with a 3-2 semi-final triumph.

Celtic twice trailed before 35,000 Hampden Park fans before battling its way into the final against Hibernian on Dec. 9.

Aberdeen went ahead for the second time on Robb's header in the 74th minute, but Johnstone evened the score for Celtic less than a minute later.

Playing away, Blackburn rolled to a 4-1 triumph over Lincoln while Scunthorpe had a tougher chore in a home-pitch contest before nipping Hartlepools 2-1 in a second replay.

Johnny Came Bouncing Home

Miller 25, won his second tour title with a 72-hole total of 281 — three under par on the 6,655-yard Harbour Town golf links.

He was one stroke ahead of Tom Weiskopf, who came from five strokes off the pace to claim second place with a final-round 66.

Miller led all the way in the bright, warm sunshine — in contrast to the wind, cold and rain that wiped out Saturday's round and hampered play Sunday.

He held a two-stroke margin most of the way, but was one over on the 17th where he missed the green then managed to get down with two putts from 30 feet for the winning par on the tough, ocean-side finishing hole.

A turning point could have been the par-three seventh, a 167-yard hole. Miller pushed his tee shot to the right, far off target. But the ball hit a tree trunk, caromed off a limb, dropped onto the green and trickled within inches of the cup before running by some six feet.

Miller made the putt for a birdie.

Former PGA champion Bobby Nichols, rookie Jon Hinkle and youthful amateur Ben Crenshaw tied for third at 283. Crenshaw, a Texas University student and Nichols matched 67s while Hinkle had a 71.

George Knudson of Toronto, ho took a 76 on Sunday rebounded for a 66 Monday and a 287 total which earned him $1,688. Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg finished with 76 and 73 for 293. He pocketted $227.

Ticats Best on Paper

By The Canadian Press

For thise who get their kicks from statistics, Hamilton Tiger-Cats should be a sure thing over Saskatchewan Roughriders in next Sunday's Grey Cup game.

The Ticats, during the Canadian Football League regular season, were better on paper than the Roughriders — but so were Edmonton Eskimos and Winnipeg Blue Bombers. However, when the chips were down, the Roughriders had the edge where it counted — on the score board.

The Ticats played 14 games and Roughriders 16, with Hamilton winning 11 and losing three, compared with Saskatchewan which had an 8-8 record.

And the Ticats scored more points, 372 to 330, and gave up fewer, 262 to 283.

With its great performance, Hamilton placed seven men on the Eastern Football Conference all-star offensive team and three on the defensive team.

Saskatchewan has just two on offence and two on defence in the Western Football Conference.

Hamilton, led by sensational rookie quarterback Chuck Ealey, scored 46 touchdowns and converted 45. Saskatchewan scored 41 and converted 38.

When it comes to first downs and total yards, though, the Roughriders come out of top: Saskatchewan rolled up 283 first downs — 119 rushing and 147 passing with 27 on penalties — while the Ticats had 250 — 10 rushing, 130 passing and 17 by penalty.

Hamilton, thanks mainly to Dave Buchanan and Ealey, agained 2,132 yards along the ground while Saskatchewan netted 2,028.

The clubs had identical averages on yards per rush, 4.7, and were close in percentage of passes completed — 57.2 for Hamilton and 55.5 for the Roughies.

In punting, Saskatchewan's Bob Pearce and Al Ford had an advantage over Bill Van Burkleo and Paul McKay — 40.9 yards a punt to 37.9.

When looking at field goals, the Ottawa-Hamilton final play-off game notwithstanding — when Ian Sunter kicked five for the Ticats — Jack Abendschan had a slight edge for Saskatchewan, hitting on 10 of 24 compared with Sunter's 14 of 38.

One-Game Boxla Final

HALIFAX — Television has reduced Canada's senior lacrosse championship final from a seven-game series to a one-game, sudden-death affair.

The decision, made Sunday at the annual meeting of the Canadian Lacrosse Association, was prompted by arrangements with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation to televise the Mann Cup final live and during prime time on the national network.

The 1973 final between the Western and National Lacrosse Association champions will be held Sept. 8 in Ontario, probably at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

The best-of-seven junior "A" series for the Minto Cup will be held on the floor of the Western champion beginning Sept. 10.

Senior "B" competition will climax with a tournament here Sept. 4-7 for the President's Cup and the Founder's Cup competition for junior "B" play will be held starting Aug. 7 in Burnaby.

A national peewee tourney has been slated for Whitby, Ont., in July and dates and site of a national bantam tournament will be announced later.

The new executive includes Gordon Hammond of London, president, Wally Henderson of Vancouver, Neil Gray of Vancouver, Fred Arnold of Edmonton and Bill McBain of Halifax, vice-presidents.

Goalkeepers leaving the crease to take possession of the ball no longer will be able to bring the ball back to the crease. They must pass it off.

The definition of a shot on goal has been made the same across Canada. From now on, the ball must make contact with the net or goalkeeper for the shot to be officially recognized.

Grid Great Forgotten By CFL

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Mike Rodden has his Grey Cup tickets — but no thanks to the Canadian Football League.

On Thursday sports editor Ron Brown said in his column in the Whig-Standard that the 81-year-old Rodden, Canada's oldest-living member of the Football Hall of Fame and oldest living Grey Cup coach, could not get tickets to Sunday's game in Hamilton.

Art Slack. Kingston representative for Schenley Distilleries, got in touch with his head office after reading of the old-timer's plight and today Rodden has two tickets.

Jake Gaudaur, CFL commissioner, in commenting on the incident, had stated that he cannot give away Grey Cup tickets to anyone — even the premier.

Another complaint in Brown's column concerning Rodden's treatment by football officials dealt with the opening of the Football Hall of Fame building in Hamilton as part of the Grey Cup festivities. Brown wondered why the league had not invited the hall's oldest living member.

Larry Smith, director of the hall, has replied that Rodden was sent an invitation to the opening: "However, whether or not be ever received it, I have no way of knowing."

SASKATCHEWAN OUT IN FORCE

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders will have at least 2900 fans backing them in Sunday's Grey Cup game in Hamilton against the Tiger-Cats.

The Roughriders were allowed 2900 tickets and all have been sold. The ticket office returned about 2000 applications for tickets, which are scaled from $11.50 to $17.

Tickets were sold on a system that gave points for advertising in the team yearbook, attending the annual $100-a-plate dinner and for holding season tickets. There were 8811 season ticket holders.

Air Canada estimates 900 fans will fly to Hamilton. Regular flights are almost all filled and two extra planes will be added to handle the load. CP rail and Canadian National Railways will also add extra cars to their transcontinental trains.

Duncan Man Wins Race

SEATTLE — Wolf Schamberger of Duncan turned in an outstanding time of two hours, 25 minutes, 55 seconds Sunday to win the fourth annual Seattle invitational marathon.

Picked in its Prime

The more you know about whisky, the better for OFC 8-Year Old. The Prime Canadian.

For starters: New OFC 8-Year Old is aged a full 2 years longer than either Canadian Club or Seagram's V.O.

Thus, age alone, should make us better. But any good distiller will tell you, it takes more than time to make a whisky prime.

The truth about age

2-year Old Canadian rye is pale, harsh and unmatured. Around 12, it's darker and has begun to take on a heavy 'woody' taste. In between 2 and 12, at one point in time, Canadian whisky is in "The Prime of Life": golden, mellow, smooth and full-bodied.

8 years is "Prime"

In our opinion, 8 years old is "Prime." That's why OFC 8-Year Old is 8 years old. And only 8 years old.

"Prime" is more than time

Schenley puts a lot more into OFC than time: Only 100% Canadian grains, and only deep-welled water. Every drop is distilled four times, and aged in hand-charred, white oak barrels for a full 8 years.

Finally we blend after aging

Why after? So that, despite differences from barrel to barrel, OFC never differs from bottle to bottle. Or glass to glass. 120 separate taste tests ensure it and each bottle carries this numbered back label. This is Schenley's Guarantee of "Prime" 8-Year Old Quality. "Prime Quality."

Thousands are switching to OFC, and taste is the reason.

Try OFC 8-Year Old. We think you'll find it a very rewarding experience.

MARGUIRETTA'S MANSION PAYS OFF

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Charlottesville, Va., police shut down Marguiretta's brothel in 1949, and last week a wrecking ball smashed into the mansion, once described as the "most orderly house in Virginia."

But the good lady won't soon be forgotten...

She left behind money. Lots of it. And since last Wednesday, when wrecking crews first saw a wad of greenbacks pop out of the rubble, about 250 men, women and children have been combing the remains of Marguiretta's place with rakes, hoes, shovels, pitchforks, spoons and their hands.

No one knows how much has been found, but some 30 to 40 individuals reportedly have discovered hundreds of dollars, one 16-year-old girl, Darlene Harris, says she found $8,000 in a rusty metal box four feet in the ground.

The cash, in denominations as big as $1,000 bills, also has been found in glass jars buried in the yard, while some was molded into plaster walls of the one-time three-storey red brick house that is said to have had 23 bedrooms.

The bills mushy with age but otherwise in good condition, have usually been found tightly wrapped with rubber bands, Miss Harris said. Coins also have been found.

"I was digging with my hands, but then this man let me use a shovel," said Miss Harris, a Grade 9 student who works part-time as a cafeterial server at a Charlottesville hospital.

Darlene said she gave $200 each to two men who helped her dig her treasure and $4,000 to her mother to help buy a new house and spent another $500 for a used car.

Consumers Union Calls for Legal Pot

WASHINGTON (WP) — Consumers Union, the independent, non-profit organization usually known for its testing and rating of commercial projects, is now advocating the complete legalization of marijuana.

"It is much too late to debate the issue, CU said at the conclusion of a lengthy report on drug use in the United States published Monday, "marijuana is here to stay. No conceivable law enforcement program can curb its availability."

As envisioned in the report, all existing state and federal laws on marijuana would be repealed and new ones enacted regulating the "cultivation, processing and orderly marketing" of the drug.

A presidential commission, the American Bar Association, and the American Medical Association have all agreed this year that present criminal laws pertaining to use of marijuana are too stringent, but all the reforms they propose would keep the drug classified as an illegal substance.

A spokesman for the Ford Foundation-funded Drug Abuse Council here said that CU is apparently the first organization of national stature to urge full legalization.

"The report looks very good, very thorough," said Dr. Thomas Bryant, head of the council (which itself does not support complete repeal of existing laws), "when a group with the reputation of Consumers Union comes out with a survey of this kind, it is bound to upgrade the public discussion."

The drug-use report, begun in 1969, covers, in addition to marijuana, narcotics, stimulants, inhalants and hallucinogens. Stimulants include caffeine, nicotine and alcohol, what CU calls "licit drugs."

On narcotics, the report urges whatever steps are necessary to eliminate the existing black market in drugs.

"The one overwhelming objection to opium, morphine, heroin and the other narcotics is the fact that they are addicting," the report says.

"The other disastrous effects of narcotics addiction on mind, body and society are primarily the result of laws and policies."

Housing Plan Opposed

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A precendent-setting decision on flood-plain housing developments was promised Monday after a day-long hearing on whether to allow the controversial Cinnamon Ridge subdivision to proceed.

Lands and Forests Minister Bob Williams, chairman of the provincial cabinet's environmental land use committee, said after the hearing that a decision will be made within three weeks that probably will result in new legislation next year.

He heard 17 briefs from residents, consultants and developers, most of them opposed to the 600-home development on the Thompson River three miles east of here.

All work on the subdivision stopped after a restraining order was issued following the flooding June 2 of the similar Oak Hills subdivision two miles west of Kamloops on the North Thompson. A dike broke and made many residents homeless.

Most of the opposition to the Cinnamon Ridge development centred on the danger from flooding. Many pointed to the seepage through the development's dike, which covered about 50 acres with water at the time of the Oak Hills flood.

Wanted Man Caught

SALMON ARM (CP) — Nalszio Nagy, on the RCMP list of eight most-wanted men for escaping two years ago from Matsqui prison, has been recaptured here.

RCMP said Nagy, 49, who gave the alias George Marowich when arrested, was taken into custody after a store manager reported two men had broken in.

Hunger Strike Ends

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three Sons of Freedom Doukhobor women, imprisoned on arson charges and currently held at Shaughnessy Hospital, have broken a hunger strike which has been going on intermittently for almost two years.

Boy Recovering

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — A 12-year-old boy was in hospital here Monday recovering from serious leg injuries suffered as the result of a shooting accident.

The boy and his 11-year-old sister were walking along the edge of a cut line in heavy timber near the Alberta-British Columbia border when he was struck by a bullet from a large-calibre rifle.

The shot apparently was fired by a hunter who mistook the boy for big game.

Case Adjourned

VANCOUVER (CP) — An appeal by the Crown against a lower court decision declaring British Columbia's traffic demerit point system unconstitutional was adjourned Monday for one week in B.C. Supreme Court.

Provincial Court Judge Douglas Hume declared the point system unconstitutional earlier this month in dismissing a speeding charge against University of B.C. law student Nanthan Ganapathi, 29.

Supreme Court Justice F. Craig Munroe asked Crown counsel to urge the legal aid society to appoint a lawyer to represent Ganapathi.

Charge Dismissed

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Provincial Court Judge R. R. Holmes Monday dismissed a charge of unlawfully retaining part of a security deposit because the defendant was not named as a landlord at the time of the alleged offence. The charge, believed the first of its kind in B.C., was that Frank Kriz unlawfully kept $24 of a $60 security deposit, contrary to the Landlord and Tenant Act.

Contract Let

VANCOUVER TCP) — B.C. Hydro Monday awarded a $4.25 million contract for an insulation system for a 500,000-volt power conductor at Mica Dam to ITE Circuit Breaker Ltd. of Toronto. A new feature of the system will be the use of a gas, known as SF6, to insulate high voltage conductors, saving a great deal of space.

Unit Ready

VANCOUVER (CP) — Banfield Pavilion, the new extended-care unit for 200 patients at Vancouver General Hospital, will be opened Friday by Health Minister Dennis Cocke. It will mean the closure of an old wooden annex used to house 97 mainly elderly male patients.

Progress—A Few Miles Away

NAZKO (CP) — Progress is only a few miles away from the isolated Nazko Indian people of the Chilcotin district, about 400 miles north of Vancouver.

A two-lane gravel road from Quesnel is to replace the barely passable dirt trail that is the only link with the outside world for the Nazkos and the even more remote Kluskos Indians.

Brendan Kennedy, 25, a community development worker for the British Columbia Union of Indian Chiefs (BUIC), has been monitoring the road-building project and says there is not much time left to prepare the Indians to meet the 20th century.

Kennedy said the Nazko and Kluskos people, mostly hunters, fishermen and trappers, have led isolated and unchanged lives in their hilly jackpine country since before 1900.

Many are on welfare and have inadequate diets, health and housing standards, said Kennedy. Total population of the Nazko and Kluskos is 230 in a 400-square-mile area. Supplies are brought in twice a week to Nazko by truck over the dirt road.

Kennedy was hired by the union last May to help the Indians to organize. He had been living and working among them for five years, supporting himself by odd jobs and through the hospitality of the Indians.

"The kids, who go away to school, are the major carriers of information and communication, and many of the parents live vicariously through their kids."

Kennedy says the area is to be opened up, first for logging and then for tourism, and he hopes the Indian people will be able to cash in without having to pay too high a price.

As he travels from settlement to settlement, he acts as a sort of ombudsmen or information officer to let the Indians know how to take advantage of what outside help is available.

Parents Guilty Of Neglect

DUNCAN — Two Mill Bay couples were given two-year suspended sentences in court here Monday for failing to provide the necessities of life to their children.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Jack and Walden and Roseann Jack, were charged in October 1971, after a department of Indian Affairs nurse had reported severe malnutrition of one child in each family.

Prosecutor Don Young told the court that at that time, when the three-year-old Harry child was taken into custody by the welfare service, it weighed 18 pounds. Young said a similar situation existed with the Jack's child who was two-and-a-half years old.

The two children required hospital treatment when taken into custody, and, court was told, there is a possibility they could have suffered permanent damage due to malnutrition.

Defence counsel Thomas Lines described the situation as "somewhat of a mystery" because both the Harrys and the Jacks have three other children who were not neglected.

Judge Lance Heard said he gave the parents suspended sentences in order to maintain the family units, but if any other children are neglected during the two-year period, the parents will be given prison sentences.

He also ordered both men to attend upgrading courses while the women are to attend home and family care courses.

Fitness Centre Planned

Details of the project will be referred to council't advisory planning commission for consideration when received.

Future plans for the centre call for a 25-metre Olympic standard, heated, indoor training pool; a 25-foot in diameter mineral pool; sauna bath; individual wet and dry steam cabinets; 500-foot roof top jog track and yoga, judo, aikido, karate and gym areas.

A budget beauty and barber shop as wall as a health foods and juice bar are also contemplated.

Cowichan Liberals Elect Officers

Other officers elected were: George Baird, vice-president; Doreen Clements, secretary; Mrs. Allan MacKenzie, treasurer; and membership chairman Percy Clements.

Vote Delayed On Town Status

DUNCAN — No decision on the controversial reclassification bylaw for Duncan will be made until after the civic elections Dec. 9, council decided Monday evening.

Ald. Hamish Mutter, who suggested the city change its status to a town because he feels it will cut down on costs in many areas, moved that the bylaw be tabled until after the election when the issue can "be discussed intelligently."

Mutter is not running for re-election.

Council had contemplated holding a plebiscite along with civic elections but, when the bylaw came up for third reading Monday, decided to wait.

Mutter feels the bylaw should be delayed because "certainly there are pros and cons but they will undoubtedly become confused in an election."

He said there is also further information being sought on effects of the change.

Mutter said Duncan would save on police costs.

"The cost of the courthouse and court cases is a heavier burden on the city than we thought," Mutter added. "We can also apply this to a saving in police costs."

Hospital Hill Action Urged

DUNCAN — Council is looking for a temporary solution to improve thhe slippery conditions on Hospital Hill before there is a fatality.

Mayor Jim Quaife advised council Monday evening that there have been seven accidents on the hill, in the past month, three of them last weekend.

"We must look for something temporary until we have a long-range solution," Quaife said.

Quaife asked streets chairman Alan Kerr to look into having a street bump installed on the hill or having an anti-skid material applied.

"We have to do something before there is a fatality," he urged.

Although the speed limit on the hill is 30 miles per hour, Quaife said cars just going 20 miles an hour skid out of control.

The hill leads to the extended care facilities which will be ready for occupancy at the end of May.

The three accidents on the hill resulted in no serious injuries.

In other news council approved the Duncan Recreation Commission's plans to apply for a $9,500 grant through the local initiatives program to complete the multi-purpose playing are in Rotary Park.

Through a $12,000 grant from the program last year council was able to employ 15 men for six weeks to work on the 30-acre project on the Cowichan River.

Plane Wreckage Only for Practice

Wreckage of a light plane found near Courtenay at the weekend was being used to train civilian spotters who assist the armed forces in search and rescue missions.

The Pacific Rescue Co-Ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt said the plane had belonged to Cpl. Germain Roy of CFB Comox, who died when his plane crashed on Constitution Hill. The wreckage was removed from the crash site to the Comox rescue squadron practice area.

Originally it was believed the wreckage was that of a light craft which crashed Dec. 13, 1966. Bones found in the area, at first thought to be human, turned out to be deer bones.

The Galaxie 500 undergoing the shake test.

After more than one million bumps and shakes this 1973 Ford Galaxie 500 rides as quietly as ever.

This demonstration on television was simply a dramatization of our point that a quiet car is a well-made car. And the '73 Galaxie is one of the quietest Fords ever built.

A quiet well-made car is a strong car. The Galaxie 500 rides on a 121 inch wheelbase and has a rugged new frame, with five crossmembers. The frame is isolated from the body by cushioning rubber body mounts that help to shield you from road vibrations.

Quiet is also designed into the Ford Galaxie 500 with the use of advanced acoustical materials and soundproofing techniques. Fiberglass sound insulation has been inserted under the roof, under the hood, on the firewall, in the trunk and on the floor to help keep noise outside. A new door weatherstrip seals better and reduces wind noise to a new minimum.

Yet there's more to Galaxie 500 than a quiet ride. There are standard features like power front disc brakes, power steering, a 351 V-8 engine, and SelectShift automatic transmission. Another standard feature on the Galaxie 500 is the power ventilation system that quietly freshens air even with the windows closed.

Prove to yourself that quiet is the sound of a well-made car. You'll find that it's easy to slip into a Galaxie 500 and stretch out and relax in the big interior room as you take this big Ford for a smooth, quiet ride.

You'll discover the new standard of luxury in the Galaxie 500 interior. There are comfortably styled bench seats in rich looking, durable cloth and vinyl. Loop-pile carpeting is colour-keyed. There are new, full-length armrests. And a beautiful new instrument panel, illuminated for readability, and highlighted with pleasing woodtone accents.

The '73 Ford Galaxie 500 offers you the value of a well-made car, designed to keep its quiet quality year after year.

Security Talks Closer

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Thirty-four countries preparing for the conferencee on security and co-operation in Europe cleared another procedural hurdle today.

Romania, a member of the Communist Warsaw pact, had asked Friday that the rules of procedure pledge all countries to take part on a basis of equality and independence, regardless of military ties.

The United States, Canada and their Western allies, as well as Switzerland and Yugoslavia supported the motion, which the Soviet Union said was unnecessary.

DISREGARD ALLIANCES

A delegate said the compromise was worked out during a recess after the United states and its allies rejected a Polish proposal made with Soviet support. The Poles wanted to say "outside any category of bloc."

An informed source said this was unacceptable to the West because it might bar one spokesman from representing the nine countries of the enlarged European Common Market.

The compromise was officially presented by Romania — an indication that the country which had raised the issue was satisfied.

ITALIAN CENTRISTS REJECTED

ROME (AP) — Italy's governing Christian Democratic party lost a seat in the Senate and another in the Chamber of Deputies today, but Premier Giulio Andreotti's centrist coalition increased its vote slightly in local elections in which one-tenth of the electorate voted.

The two special parliamentary elections were held in the French-speaking northern region of Valle d'aosta, where two Christian Democrats were elected posthumously in the general election last May after being killed in an automobile accident two weeks before the voting.

This time leftist candidates edged out the replacements the Christian Democrats put forward. The government's majority in the 315-member Senate was reduced to four.

In the local elections, the Christian Democrats took 37.3 per cent of the vote compared with 38 per cent in the same localities last May.

LIBERALS SLIP

The Liberals, another government party, slipped to 2.7 from three per cent. But the coalition's percentage increased to 49.3 from 48.4, thanks to gains by the Democratic Socialists, who also are in the government, and the Republicans, who are not but who vote with Andreotti in parliament.

The local contests focused on such national issues as the deteriorating economy and rising crime rate. They also were the first electoral test for Andreotti.

The Socialist party, which was dropped from the government in favor of the Liberals, increased its share of the vote to 12.3 from 9.2 per cent six months ago. The Communist vote dropped to 26.1 from 29 per cent; the neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement, which doubled its parliamentary representation in May, slipped to 7.8 per cent of the vote.

The Socialist gains and the Liberal losses were expected to renew demands that the Marxist party replace the Liberals in the government. But political observers said Andreotti is likely to continue the present lineup.

News Union Quits Pact Over Pay

NEW YORK (AP) — Local 6 of the Mailers union has notified the four major daily newspapers in the New York area that it is terminating its contract in 60 days because of a government rollback of negotiated wages.

The federal Pay Board recently trimmed pay raises for the mailers and for members of nine other newspaper craft unions to eight from 11 per cent during the remainder of the final year of the unions' three-year contracts.

There was no immediate comment from any of the affected newspapers—the New York Times, The Daily News, the New York Post and the Long Island Press.

Some Helpful Hints On African Violets

African-violets (Saintpaulias) need studying in the same way as any other plants if the indoor gardener is to have success with them.

It happens occasionally that a single plant thrives without the owner knowing anything about it. But that is sheer luck.

Looking at illustrations of typical leaf forms among African-violets makes one realize the need of knowing the names of what is being grown.

When some leaves are spoon-shaped, others troughed, some narrow, some round, some only scalloped while others are wavy or bent — how can the gardener decide when the leaves are not developing normally unless the variety name and type is known?

* * *

The general rules for having healthy "violets" and good flowers are better known today than 25 years ago, before the formation of the Victoria African Violet Club.

Briefly their needs include growing as single-crowned plants in three to three-and-a-half-inch pots; keeping the pots in a window with direct strong light but not in sunlight after early morning; a temperature between 62° at night and a maximum of 75 degs. F. by day; humidity around the plants, but not soggy soil in the pots; a location free from draughts of hot air or cold air.

Since many of these lovely little plants are likely to be received as gifts this Christmas, why not keep these brief notes for reference. You will at least know what to do with one for the first few days after receiving the plant.

If limited on window aspect as happens with apartment dwellers, you will need to compromise and invent.

* * *

A south window when the sun shines (even in winter) will need a filming of gauze. One gardenia grower spread a sheet of white tissue paper over her plant to prevent sunscald.

For African-violet pots, an ingenious gardener makes screens of gauze curtain on little sharp-pointed sticks to thrust into the soil of larger pots to screen the plants not requiring direct sun.

Humidity around the plants is easily provided continuously by placing the pots on a tray or flat platter of small stones, containing water. Keep the bottom of the pots on the top of the stones, not touching the water. Warm air in the room, particularly in winter, evaporates the water giving a humid atmosphere to the plants.

Knowing a few of these things will help you to care for a gift even before you find out its name and type.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Quite often, the finding of the winning opening lead by the defenders is nothing more than sheer guesswork. But, also quite often, the best opening lead can be determined through reasoning and judgment. The latter was the case in today's deal, which arose in a rubber-bridge game. West's analysis of the situation is a good illustration of the functioning of the expert mind.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

NORTH
♡ A Q
◇ K Q

WEST
♠ 6
♡ K 10 7 6
◇ A 10 2
♣ Q J 10 9 4

EAST
♠ 7 3
♡ J 8 5 4 2
◇ 9 7 6 5 3
♣ 5

SOUTH
♠ K Q 10 9 8 5
♡ 9 3
◇ J 8 4
♣ 7 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♣	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♡.

According to the "book," North's hand did not meet the requirements for an opening game-forcing bid of two in a suit. Although his hand was an unbalanced one, two no-trump would have been the preferable opening bid. And when South bid two spades over two clubs, North, consistent in his aggressive bidding, drove on to a slam.

As West interpreted the bidding, North figured to have at least a five-card club suit (it is the relatively rare day when a forcing two bid is made on a four-card suit). And West knew, from his holdings in the club suit, that if South were going to try to establish winners out of North's club suit, South would run into a horrendous break in that suit.

That North had the three missing aces was also obvious. In response to North's Blackwood bid, South had denied the possession of any aces. And if North also had the heart queen (in combination with his known ace), then West's king of hearts could be finessed against successfully.

So West opened a low heart, on the sound assumption that if North had the A-Q of hearts, South wouldn't risk a finesse at trick one unless no other hope existed. South, of course, wasn't going to learn about the "bad" division in clubs until later on.

When South saw the dummy, he went right up with the ace of hearts, figuring that if the adversely-held clubs were divided no worse than 4-2, he could make a winner out of dummy's fifth club, upon which he would discard his losing heart.

After drawing trumps with his king and queen, the ace and king of clubs were cashed, East discarding a diamond on the second lead. Declarer now had to lose a diamond and a heart.

Had West not led a heart originally, South, after encountering the bad club division, would have had no choice but to take a (successful) heart finesse.

The Einstein Papers . . . Many Secrets Bared

WASHINGTON POST

The fact that many of his admirers don't understand a letter of it has only added to the awe surrounding him.

Now, however, there has come to light — along with other formulae and thoughts from his later years, that are expected to bring between $6,000 and $8,000 in auction at Sotheby Parke Bernet galleries in New York City—a marvel that anyone can understand (sort of), and which is expected to add nothing to the esteem in which he is held:

"I shan't be absent,' little Snookie,
"Though I am not a sugar cookie;
"What life has brought you up to now
"May sweeten the farewell somehow."

This is a translation from a poem scrawled in German by Einstein on the back of an old letter. The translation was provided by a German-born poet, Monday, who guaranteed that it kept the rhyme scheme and general feeling of the original.

In contrast, the rest of the Einstein material being offered for auction probably can be understood "by about 100 people in this country and perhaps 150 abroad," according to Prof. Paul Savet, a specialist in general relativity, who catalogued the papers.

"I showed them to friends of mine who are physicsts, some of them quite well known, and they didn't understand them," he said Monday.

"If I had not spent the last 20 years in just this field, I would not have been able to understand them either."

The scientific work is on 452 pages — the backs of scholarly, political business letters that Einstein received, and on their enveleopes. All of it is in German.

Prof. Savet said it represents "unfinished intermediary calculations for the unitary theory which he never found."

The work is mainly useful now "as a source of inspiration, and to show (Einstein's) frame of mind and reasoning," Savet said.

JUST SO WE KNOW WHAT IT REALLY IS

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A 22-year-old British traveller who calls himself a "conceptual artist" says he is halfway through the letter E in a plan to write the word earth across five continents.

"The only way to see my sculpture is just to know it's there, that somebody did it," said Simon English.

English said he plodded into the marshes of the Great Salt Lake last week and piled up rocks and woods to form the middle dot on the middle bar of his his E, nailing an aluminum and brass engraved plaque to a nearby oil drum.

Other dots on the E are in Canada, the Tobacco Root mountains in Montana and a spot near Laramie, Wyo., English said.

The A is planned for South America, which he said will require trips high into the Andes and may take a year.

The R would be in Africa, the T in India and the H in Australia, English said.

"I first thought of writing 'universe' on the universe," he said, but there were technological limitations, "so I thought I'd do the earth just to prove I could do it."

The concept began with a yen to "writing the names of objects on the objects — like 'table' on a table — as a statement of the obvious."

Last summer he wrote the word England on England, the bearded artist said.

WASHINGTON — You're worth more than you may have thought.

It used to be common knowledge that the chemical value of the human body was 98 cents.

This was pretty deflating to some egos. But inflation has come along to make them feel a bit better.

Chemical and Engineering News reported last month that, "at current chemical prices, the adult human body is worth $3.50."

This was somewhat restorative to wounded egos. But now there is even better news.

Biochemist W. D. Noteboom of the University of Missouri at Columbia wrote to C and EN taking issue with its estimate.

What C and EN failed to feed into its computer, Dr. Noteboom said, is the value of human serum.

This serum, indispensable in many medical situations is worth $130 to $170 per litre (1.06 quarts), Noteboom said.

One kind, known as type AB, retails for $270 per litre.

An adult male human being contains about five litres of blood, source of the precious, life-saving serum.

So this alone would be worth "an absolute minimum of roughly $650."

Add $650 to $3.50 and you get $653.50, presumably the rockbottom value "at current prices."

So, don't sell yourself short.

OXFORD, England — A 100-year-old woman is to receive an honorary Master of Arts degree from Oxford University — 80 years after studying there.

When Miss Mabel Purefoy Fitzgerald took her exams at the turn of the century, she was denied a degree despite her high marks, because they were not then available to women.

Now the university has decided to put things right and Miss Fitzgerald, who became a well-known scientist, will get her degree Dec. 14.

"It's a wonderful honor," she said.

HOLLYWOOD — The veteran movie company, Universal, has a new president, Henry H. Martin, who had been vice-president and general sales manager. Martin replaces Milton Rackmil, designated president emerituss.

NEW YORK — Vietnam peace negotiators Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho engaged in some light-hearted banter about teaching.

Time magazine says the exchange came last week when Kissinger, a former professor at Harvard, met Tho at the start of their now-recessed peace talks.

"My dear Henry, when our talks are completed, can you arrange a position for me as a visiting professor of Marxism at Harvard?" Time quotes Tho as saying.

Time says Kissinger's response was:

"With pleasure. But of course, I must be permitted to teach a course in political science in Hanoi."

ALCONBURY, England — Col. Daniel Nelson, commander of the U.S. Air Force Phantom jet squadron at Alconbury Royal Air Force base, said in a proclamation to his men:

"I'm glad I am in England. The natives are friendly and the language is quite similar to ours."

SCHIRNDING, West Germany — Czechoslovak frontier guards today again refused to allow Czechoslovak chess grandmaster Ludek Pachman to cross into West Germany.

Pachman, 49, convicted on four charges including subversion last May, arrived at the frontier with his wife, mother-in-law and his cat. But frontier guards refused to let him pass through the passport check.

BUGSY'S SAFE NOT WORTH EFFORT

LAS VEGAS — A mystery safe reported to have been hidden by the late Flamingo Hotel owner, Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel, was opened Monday.

It was empty.

"There was no paper, not even a paper clip," said a hotel spokesman. "We were not surprised."

The safe was opened behind closed doors after more than four hours of drilling.

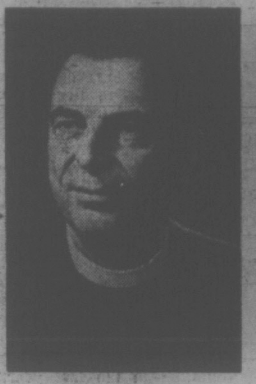
Women Clergy for B.C.?



BISHOP GARTRELL
... no reason

... acceptance

In spite of strong opposition from some members, the general synod of the Church of England is expected to rule in favor of ordination for women in the summer of 1973.

The ruling will undoubtedly influence the decision of the Anglican Church of Canada which is also considering the question.

The Anglican Bishop of British Columbia, the Rt. Rev. Roy Gartrell, says the question of holy orders for women will be discussed at a meeting of the general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada in May 1973.

Gartrell said last week that a report recommending the ordination of women will be presented to synod. So will a minority report disagreeing with the recommendation.

"Scripturally, there is no reason why women should not be ordained priests," Gartrell said.

But he expects that "sociologically" there will be considerable opposition to the move.

The bishop pointed out that the Anglican Church now considers women deacons the equal of male deacons. In the past, deaconesses received the same ordination as deacons but were not allowed to administer the sacraments.

"People who find the idea of a woman priest repugnant do not represent the church," Gartrell said.

Father Michael O'Connell, Vicar General of Victoria Diocese, says women may not be ordained priests or deacons in the Catholic Church.

"A world-wide committee is still studying the question of ordination for women," Father O'Connell said.

He said the chancery received notice from the Vatican in September of this year that women may not be ordained "at the present time."

Rev. Laura Butler, associate minister for the past 18 years at Metropolitan United Church, can't understand the attitude of churches that deny ordination to women.

Miss Butler says she has "never sensed anything other than acceptance" from church members of both sexes.

"Sex has nothing to do with the ministry," she said.

Miss Butler points out that in the church all Christians minister to one another.

"Certain tasks are reserved for the minister, but the ministry is carried on by all Christians in their everyday living and witnessing.

"The church would amount to very little if left to ordained ministers alone."

Miss Butler says being a minister has nothing to do with male or female roles but is "a way of responding to the need of the world."

As associate minister, Miss Butler shares in all the work of the church reserved for men in most other denominations.

Miss Butler commends the ministry "to any man or woman who feels called.

Barrett's Statement 'Disappoints' Women

Premier Dave Barrett's statement that a ministry of women's rights is "not a high priority thing" has disappointed women members of the legislature and women's rights leaders.

The New Democratic Party's annual convention in Vancouver passed a resolution Sunday calling for the provincial government to establish a ministry of women's rights.

The convention recommended that the department be headed by a woman cabinet minister.

Barrett has said repeatedly that the resolution will not hold high priority on the government's action list.

Phyllis Young (NDP—Van.-Little Mountain) is "disappointed to say the least" by the premier's reaction.

"Inasmuch as the convention passed the resolution and wants action the premier's remarks are not desirable," Ms. Young said.

She sees the new ministry as a type of ombudsman service that will look into women's grievances and correct injustices.

More Pressing

"I know a lot of women who would become NDP members tomorrow if the ministry were established," Ms. Young said.

Rosemary Brown (NDP-Van.-Burrard) is also "disappointed," but believes legislation on other matters such as education to be "more pressing at this time."

She points out that establishing the ministry will take time because the government is "starting from scratch."

Ms. Brown thinks the new ministry should "do for women what the department of labor does for workers" in the way of introducing legislation, education and counselling.

She said that at present problems concerning women's rights are "scattered through various government departments and get lost."

"There is no vehicle for enhancing legislation for women," Ms. Brown said.

Daisy Webster (NDP — Van.-South) has doubts about special legislation for special groups. She fears a women's department would be "patronized."

Ombudsman

"It's much better to have legislation for all," Ms. Webster said.

"I understand the premier favors an ombudsman service for people — not just women."

Kathleen Ruff, president of the Status of Women Action Group, says that she was not in favor of the resolution at first because she feared a women's department might become "another ghetto."

"Most politicians feel the way Barrett does," Ms. Ruff said. "The NDP has more sympathy towards women's rights than any other party but is not committed the way many women are."

Ms. Ruff would like to see the proposed department implement the recommendations in the report of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women and introduce legislation in areas such as day care, discrimination in pay and discrimination in opportunity for promotion.

She pointed out that the aim of the new department would be to "make itself obsolete as quickly as possible."

Joan Wallace, president of the Status of Women Council in Vancouver, says the council issued a press release Sunday commenting on Barrett's statement.

The release questions the government's priorities and asks the premier to "reconsider his refusal to set up a ministry for women's rights."

Ms. Wallace said the government was elected on a "new deal for people" platform. She found it hard to believe the premier would not give top priority to the "long neglected area of women's rights."

Ignoring Rights

"I think Barrett is ignoring the fact that women's rights are way behind men's rights and need some help to catch up," Ms. Wallace said.

Education Minister Eileen Dailly and Karen Sandford (NDP — Comox) were unavailable for comment.

... And in Britain, Conflict Rages

Following is the first of two articles on women as priests.

By MARY STOTT
Special to The Times

LONDON — Since the Archbishop of Canterbury said, allegedly, that the ordination of women would not come for 10,000 years, the situation and the climate of opinion have changed so radically that he must be aware that it might even come during his primacy.

Today the opponents of ordination have to marshal their arguments at least as carefully as its advocates, and have to examine in honesty their reason for denying the church the service of women priests.

Decision Soon

In fact, the Church of England now has to move rapidly to some kind of a decision, even if it is to ask for more time. The world wide Anglican Consultative Council, meeting in Kenya early in 1971, not only approved the wish of the Bishop of Hong Kong to ordain two women as priests — and they were so ordained last November — but declared that discussion of the ordination of women was now urgent, and laid a charge on "all the metropolitians and primates of the Anglican communion" to report their churches' view to its next meeting, due in February, 1973.

The church's general synod, which met earlier this month, agreed that the ordination of women should not be confused with women's lib.

The synod advised that the issue was bedevilled by the prestige which was accorded ordained men. This attitude could not be convincingly defended on Christian and theological grounds.

The repeated appeal for calm, endorsed by the Archbishop of York, Dr. Donald Coggan, did not stop one clergyman, Prebendary Henry Cooper, Rector of St. George's, Bloomsbury, London. He said that he would have to resign his orders if the church made women priests.

The reformers, a bishop among them, thought differently. These are the synod members leading an increasing number in the church who do not regard Jesus' 12 male apostles as the immutable pattern. They seek to free women from what is regarded as a perpetual curacy.

The synod is expected to give a preliminary answer about possible ordinations next summer. If it is in favor, the issue will have to be referred to the 43 dioceses.

Dr. Coggan summed up much of the debate. He said there had been a transformation in the past 10 to 20 years in the attitude towards the place of women in the church. The whole movement was towards a liberalization of thought on the topic. The church is becoming accustomed and thankful for the ministry of women."

In July the ministerial session of the Methodist church confirmed the decision of last year's "representative session" to accept the ordination of women; and the House of Lords select committee on the anti-discrimination bill heard a forceful and urgent plea from the Anglican group not to exclude the church from its provisions.

Many Involved

That is the current scene. What about the dramatis personae? The thousands of people who are involved, not only clerics but the men and women in the pews, cannot all be brought on the stage, but it seems right that doubters should be aware of the reality of the vocation of women and the high quality of some of them.

Una Kroll was ordained a deaconess in Southwark Cathedral in December, 1970, alongside "classmates" who were ordained priest or deacon. Deaconess is not the feminine of deacon. She is not in holy orders; she cannot solemnize a marriage nor consecrate the sacraments, though she can administer them and preach — as indeed can lay people. The one difference between a deaconess and lay church workers is that the deaconess makes a lifelong commitment.

Una Kroll is not alone in her belief that the church must be part of the society in which we live and must not maintain barriers against women when they are being dropped in every other field. The Anglican Group for the Ordination of Women believes this, too. When its evidence was presented to the house of lords select committee, its able and forthright spokesman, Miss Miillie Batten, begged, "please don't add the church to the list of exceptions in any anti-discrimination legislation."

Here an acute clash may come. Many churchwomen who support ordination, like Mrs. Betty Ridley, the highly respected church leader who is a rota chairman of the general synod, feels that fear of such legislation would harden the opposition and that if it were passed it would be desperately divisive.

There are notable feminists, among them Lady Summerskill, a member of the lords select committee, who see no reason why the church should be excluded from anti-discrimination legislation, "even if it means a head-on clash." There are others who fear that passions would run so high in parliament over interference with the church's right to interpret its own doctrine and practice that this might wreck every chance such a bill had.

Uniformity

What the Anglican group hopes is that the church itself should ask parliament to agree that in the act of uniformity it should be made clear that where in the prayer book and ordinal the word "man" is used, it should apply also to women, except in appropriate places such as the marriage service. There are many objections to be cleared out of the way before that is likely to happen.

Free swimming and popcorn attracted 872 Sunday afternoon, and 472 swimmers in the evening got free hot dogs and pop.

Course to Help Women Find Role

An escalating number of requests from housewives for something meaningful to do has spurred Victoria's Health Education Centre to offer a course called Fascinating Womanhood.

"We felt we could help a woman to work through the trying periods of life to find a role that is meaningful," the centre's executive director said in a recent interview.

R. H. Ferris, a former Seventh Day Adventist minister, said the course — scheduled for Dec. 1 to 3 — will be a blueprint for a better and happier life.

The guide for workshop discussions will be Helen B. Andeline's book, Fascinating Womenhood.

The book claims to show "clearly the way to married happiness — how a woman can win and maintain a man's complete love and devotion, and obtain from marriage the things every woman needs.

The leader of the workshop, Mrs. Nancy Van Pelt, a wife, homemaker, and mother of three, is serving as director of women's programs for the Calgary Health Education Centre.

The Victoria centre is acting on the assumption that many women today are puzzled by the rapid changes and new ideas of the liberation of their sex.

"Apart from the media, they have little to base their thinking on," said Ferris.

The centre — located at 3019 Shakespeare St. — receives calls daily from women and referrals from doctors who want the centre to offer programs to keep women busy.

"They need something to do," Ferris said.

"The older woman, whose family has matured, faces a problem of keeping herself busy.

"She's spent years devoting herself to a role which she thought would last the rest of her life," he said.

Registration for the course, a three-day, ten-hour workshop, has been set at $15 per person.

The positive aspects of the traditional woman's role and the ideal woman from a man's point of view are among topics to be discussed.

Otter Raids Beacon Hill Duck Pond

An enterprising otter has taken up residence at Goodacre Lake in Beacon Hill Park, to the discomfort of diminishing duck population.

Free lunches may be ducky from the otter's point of view but parksmen feel differently about their feathered fowl.

They have called in the SPCA to trap and banish the furry felon, barring which they have orders to shoot to kill.

'Safe' Popular Tranquilizer Now Said Addictive

By DANIEL ZWERDLING
Special to The Times

A tranquilizer and sleeping pill drug—advertised as being safe and non-addictive and sold widely in Victoria pharmacies — is addictive and widely abused, American authorities report.

Methaqualone — available under trade names Quaalude, Mequelon and Mandrax — was introduced in the American market in 1965 by William F. Rorer Drug firm and is the number six best-selling hypnotic in the U.S..

Pharmacists surveyed in Victoria say the drug is available only on prescription but it is widely prescribed.

Bruce Blay, of Blay's Pharmacy Ltd., said "one of the biggest advantages of the drug was that it was non-addictive. It's the first I've heard that it is considered harmful."

Getting Bigger

Quaaludes "pave the streets in Columbus, Ohio," according to a street drug clinic, and people carry them "by the bagful" in College Park, Md. In New York City "it's all over the place, and getting even bigger," says a spokesman at the city's Addiction Services Agency. Growing number of Methaqualone poppers are being rushed from "Quaalude parties" with near-lethal overdoses.

Even more troubling is the still little-known fact that Methaqualone, far from being "safe" and "non-addictive" as advertised, can hook people on a habit as tight as barbiturates and give a withdrawal "far worse than heroin," says University of Michigan Hospital psychiatrist Richard Kunnes. Unlike heroin, Methaqualone can cause "fatal convulsions," he says.

"The potential threat is equally dangerous as barbiturates," warns Ernest Carabillo of the U.S. federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs. "For every Quaalude addict we come across, that addict seems to know five or six others," Junnes says. "We're only seeing the tip of the Quaalude addict iceberg."

Alternative

When Rorer started promoting Quaalude as a "non-barbiturate" tranquilizer, doctors welcomed the drug as a valuable alternative. Soon, other drug manufacturers jumped into the Methaqualone business: Arnar-Stone with Sopor, Parke-Davis with Parest, Wallace with Optimil and others.

Rorer and the other Methaqualone manufacturers insist their product is different. "psychological dependence rarely occurs, physical dependence rarely reported," the Quaalude ads proclaim.

The PDR, or physicians' Desk Reference, the doctor's bible published by physicians and drug companies, reports "physical dependence has not been clearly demonstrated."

Spurred by these advertising claims, Methaqualone has become the hottest drug on the streets and college campus market — bigger than marijuana and LSD. "People who are into downers are constantly looking for a non-addicting drug which will give them a 'buzz' but not get them hooked," says Kunnes.

Methaqualone poppers claim the drug has aphrodisiac qualities: they call it "Heroin for lovers."

Since then the University of Michigan Hospital has treated a handful of Methaqualone addicts in its psychiatric ward. "Most of them were taking about 1,200 milligrams a day, or just four pills," Resident James Shapiro says.

Doctors know little about the addictive qualities of Methaqualone, so they treat addicts by transferring the habit to barbiturates and then gradually reducing the daily dose until they're cured. "It usually takes five days to withdraw the Quaalude addicts completely," Shapiro says.

The Methaqualone craze worries officials at FDA and the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, who have always endorsed the "safe" image which the drug's producers have fostered. BNDD still rates Methaqualone on a level with aspirin and vitamins on its drug control list, which means it's drug doctors don't need to worry about.

No Prescription

Anybody can buy it: just ask a doctor to give your neighborhood pharmacy a call, no written prescription needed. But since the epidemic has hit the college campuses and the street freaks and news of Quaaludes fills the underground press, BNDD has assigned its Project DAWN (Drug Abuse Warning Network) investigators to find just how much Methaqualone is really abused. FDA is reviewing medical literature on the drug. BNDD officials expect to place Methaqualone on their control list before the end of the year, perhaps at a level with barbiturates.

Drug manufacturers have received piles of letters from drug clinics around the country reporting dangers of Methaqualone, but they don't seem ruffled. "We're unaware of any true addiction cases," says Dr. John Zaroslinski, vice-president for research at Arnar-Stone. "Addiction is a fuzzy area," Rorer vice president C. Charles McCallister says.

"According to reports in our hands, Methaqualone has been declared non-addictive. We have heard reports from widely separated areas — doctors who say they are seeing signs of addiction. But it's unlike anything they've seen before."

And if Methaqualone is getting pill takers hooked, drug corporations and government officials say, it's a new phenomenon brought on by irresponsible uses of the drug.

"This problem has only come up in the last year," says FDA bureau of drugs director Henry Simmons.

"We hadn't heard of it before, because people weren't abusing it."

There's one question which puzzles both local drug clinics and Project DAWN investigators: Where are all the Methaqualone pills coming from?

"I have never ever seen any drugs in this quantity," says David Furr, director of Help Centre in College Park, site of the University of Maryland. "Pushers tell me if you give them a week, chances are 80 per cent they can get you anywhere from 300 to 1,000 pills.

"Most other drugs on the street are very rarely company-made — they're manufactured underground," Furr says. "But almost all the Methaqualone we get around here is legitimate." BNDD confirms the same story nationwide: It's company pills everyone's popping.

But one thing is certain about the Methaqualone epidemic: it's making the drug manufacturers a bundle. Sales of the drug have increased 360 times since the year it was introduced. The better Methaqualone does on the black market, the more money its producers make — because the more drugs that are diverted from legal channels, the more the companies must produce to replace them. "The drug companies always tell us that once the drug leaves their warehouse platform, they're not responsible any more," says one FDA scientist who is studying Methaqualone." But in the final analysis, it's illegal sales of their drugs and there's a profit in it."

Dispensing Records

The government will probably put Methaqualone under control, doctors will have a bit more difficulty prescribing it, pharmacists will have to keep special dispensing records and perhaps sales will level off.

In Canada, a spokesman for the federal department of national health and welfare's health protection branch said it is "pretty hard to predict what action Canada would take."

He said the branch would look into the ramifications of the American studies of the drug.

"We are quite familiar with Methaqualone but these particular problems have not come to my attention yet — no one has raised complaints. The branch will look into it, however," he said.

Widow Won't Wed

DEAR ABBY: Widowed five years after a long and happy marriage, I've found a widow I desperately want to marry. And that's my problem. She refuses to marry me.

I am about average in all respects except one. Financially, I am very well off, but that doesn't seem to influence her. We both have married children who are independent. I never knew this lady's husband, but understand theirs was a good marriage, so I know she's not soured on marriage.

She says she wants her "freedom." I have tried everything to change her mind. My last attempt was a two-carat diamond, which she refused to wear, even on her right hand because of the "implications" (whatever that means).

I want to take her on a cruise in December. She said she would go — sans marriage, but how proud and happy she would make me if she would accompany me as my wife.

How can I persuade her to marry me by December? If any of your ideas are successful, I will send you a postcard from Rome—the first stop on the cruise. — Hoping

DEAR HOPING: My advice to you is to go on the cruise alone. Send me a postcard anyway, if you have time to write one, which I'll bet against. No man should have to beg or bribe a woman to marry him, so get off your knees and survey the market. Your only chance for winning this woman is to play the field and show some dignified independence. And if that fails, you could be lucky.

DEAR ABBY: Is there any way a woman can buy insurance on her husband's life without letting him know about it?

I know he would have to take a physical and there's no way of tricking him into doing it.

My husband has a real hang-up on this score and we can't even discuss the matter intelligently.

I can't shop around in my hometown for an insurance company that might have an angle on how to accomplish this and I have too much pride to admit to the world that my husband doesn't want to provide for his wife and children in the event of his death.

Please answer this in your column as I'm sure other wives must have the same problem. — Ashamed And Not Protected

DEAR ASHAMED: There is no way you can accomplish this without your husband's signature. Discuss this with your own insurance agent and ask him to suggest an approach that will be effective and inoffensive to your husband.

Parents Should Be Pals—With Authority

JELLY SIDE DOWN

nancy stahl

I don't believe that when I was little any adult ever worried about communicating with me. Present-day child psychologists warn against this and plead with parents to become pals with their children while still retaining parental authority. This is about as easy as whistling "Bye Bye Blackbbird" with a mouth full of Tokay grapes.

I tried communicating with our daughter, Laurie, but I couldn't get past threesies at jacks, and when I stood on my head I got a nosebleed. Not only was I a pretty hopeless pal, but I found that it's hard to retain parental authority while you're hemorrhaging on your last clean blouse. When I nearly strangled myself trying to skip Double Dutch, Laurie got a pained expression on her face and asked whether she could be excused to go and do her homework.

I decided that my husband would have more success with our son Eric.

"What do you mean, I don't communicate with him?" my husband exclaimed. "I said 'hello' to him just yesterday."

"I mean really communicate. Sit down and talk to him. Find out what he thinks."

"I know what he thinks. He thinks his sister is a creep. He said so at supper. He also thinks that Brussels sprouts taste like paint remover."

"Don't you ever share your opinions with him?" I asked.

"I shared my opinion that he'd better eat his Brussels sprouts even if they do taste like paint remover."

"That's not what I mean. You should share your views on life and establish a meaningful relationship."

"All right," he sighed, "I'll try." Half an hour later he returned, holding a bloody handkerchief to his nose.

"It was going pretty well. He showed me his bubblegum wrappers, and I let him look at my Playboy centerfold collection. Then he asked me whether I could stand on my head. I think we could have established a meaningful relationship if my nose just hadn't started bleeding."

If one picture really were the equivalent of ten thousand words, Highway Patrol, the official safety manual of the Child Safety Council of Canada, would not be a 12-page booklet but a sizeable tome.

This important publication illustrates dozens of hazardous situations in which young children get involved and how they can avoid them. If parents will take the time to study this booklet together with their youngsters, many accidents could be prevented and lives saved.

For example, the booklet urges bicycle users always to ride in a single file and to obey all traffic signs. It also warns children not to trust strangers and never to accept a ride, candy or money from anybody they don't know.

One page features eight rules of road safety. Another warns youngsters never to play with fire. It also pictures other forms of play which harbor danger. There is a warning, for instance, not to climb on a pile of lumber which might tumble and not to play at the rim of a gravel pit, to prevent falling in.

Single copies can be obtained from Child Safety Council of Canada, 6 Ladykirk Avenue, Toronto 8, Ontario. Please allow at least three to four weeks for delivery.

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Vitamin E and Aging

I have a book entitled "Vitamin E and Aging," by Dr. Irwin DiCyan of New York City, a fine pharmacologist who for years has worked as an expert adviser to drug firms. Because he is such an expert on drugs, his opinions must be listened to.

Vitamin E has been a "stepchild of medicine" since its discovery in 1922. Because there has been so much controversy about whether or not there is any actual medical value in taking Vitamin E, Dr. DiCyan wants to give his readers as much factual information about this vitamin as possible.

People either brag about Vitamin E, or they say it has no definite value as a medicine for men and women. Obviously, both cannot be right. But, as Dr. DiCyan says, "We need an assessment without passion."

I remember particularly well one drug which, as soon as it was discovered, I tested on 25 patients, all suffering with the one disease which it was supposed to cure. When not a single one of the 25 was helped, I suspected that the drug had no value, and so I never prescribed it again. But soon, it became the most popular and frequently prescribed drug in America. Every druggist was selling it. Then, as I expected, its use was so completely given up that after a few years, when I asked my druggist if he had any of the stuff on hand, he said, "No, I haven't seen any of it for years."

Generally, even though tremendous claims are made by enthusiasts about the advantages of a certain treatment, vitamin, drug, or special diet, when people discover that after their first excitement about it wears off, it fails to have the wonderful results they hoped for, the miraculous "cure" dies out on its own.

In his book, the wise and scrupulously honest Dr. DiCyan describes all the many good things that Vitamin E is now supposed to do, and also the counterclaims. "Vitamin E and Aging" was published by Pyramid Publications, 919 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022.

In a supplement to the volume, he tells us what happened at the International Conference on Vitamin E (held under the auspices of the great New York Academy of Sciences) in December, 1971. There the scientists all agreed that much more research on the vitamin is necessary, and that such research is likely to be worth the time and money that it takes.

COUNTRY STYLE

The property, almost ½ acre in beautiful Queenswood worth at least $15,000 plus a rambling family three-bdrm. rancher with 1,600 sq. ft. and two fireplaces. House alone could not be replaced for $30,000. Needs T.L.C. but you can have house and all for $32,500! $2,000 will handle. You could be in for Christmas!

Another country home in quiet Gordon Head cul-de-sac but this one is brand new and the styling is quietly traditional. The living and dining rooms were created for fine furnishings and there are four big bedrooms plus 1 full bath and 2 half baths. A joy to show at $44,250 on excellent terms. MLS No. 2384.

SOOKE TOOTENANNY SET FOR DEC. 6, 7, 8

The annual Sooke tootenanny will be held Dec. 6, 7 and 8.

The first performance, at Edward Milne School, will feature the voices of 250 children from Sooke, Saseenos, John Muir and Edward Milne high schools.

More than 400 students from John Stubbs, David Cameron, Colwood, Wishard, Sangster, Metchosin and Hans Helgesen schools will perform in the second musical show at Dunsmuir junior high.

The third performance, with 600 pupils of Happy Valley, Glen Lake, Savory, Millstream and Langford schools in a mass choir, will be at Elizabeth Fisher junior high school.

Test Kits Warning Confirmed

Tests of a children's environmental test kit by the federal consumer affairs department confirm warnings first carried by The Times that the kits could cause dangerous diseases.

Part of the kit which enables children to grow disease-causing bacteria will be withdrawn by the manufacturer, Parker Bros. Ltd. of Concord, Ont.

Stuart Robertson, Parker's marketing manager, said in a telephone interview that warnings will be issued to stores about a nutrient pad in the "Pollution Patrol" sets.

"Future kits will not contain the pads," Robertson said.

Children using the pads and a covered petri dish can grow bacteria from samples of polluted water. The test analyzes the coliform count, an indicator of how much human waste is contained in a given sample of water.

Tests performed last month by Victoria pathologist Dr. G. A. Montessori revealed that children performing this test could grow such dangerous bacteria as stapylococcus aureus or typhoid.

The kit's instruction booklet warns that "the dish may now contain disease-causing bacteria. Do not remove the top of the petri dish."

The kit is recommended for use by children at least 10 years of age working under adult supervision.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer for the Metropolitan Health Board, first expressed his fears about the kit several weeks ago to provincial authorites and the federal consumer affairs department.

He said today that Parker Bros. hasn't gone far enough. "The whole kit should be withdrawn—they are still enticing children to get dirty water from outfalls.

He warns that children sampling polluted water run the risk of contacting dysentry, typhoid, polio or hepatitis.

Whitbread says the health board has written to local school boards asking them to warn children "not to paddle in sewage effluent."

J. W. Black, director of the Hazardous Products Division of the consumer affairs department, said from Ottawa that a study had "confirmed that under some circumstances the culture media contained in the kits could produce some undesirable organisms."

Write MPs Pensioners Advised

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal pensioners were urged Monday to join a nation-wide letter campaign demanding protection from escalating living costs.

Corabel Penfold, acting president of Pensioners Concerned, Canada, Ltd., told the gathering, "Take up your pens and let the people who hold the pursestrings know about our struggle to keep your dignity."

Mrs. Penfold is on the last leg of a cross-Canada speaking tour for the Toronto-based organization.

"We ask no membership fee. We are not in competition with any other group or club. We only ask endorsement of our program which involves a restructure of the tax system for the benefit of people over 65 who live on fixed incomes," she said.

The group supports income tax exemptions of $3,332 for single persons and $4,998 for married couples.

She urged the Montreal pensioners to write to Finance Minister John Turner, Marc Lalonde, health and welfare minister, local national assembly members and MPs, and Premier Robert Bourassa.

Work Hours Driving Cleared By Court

TORONTO (CP) — Persons convicted of impaired driving can be allowed to drive during their working hours, the Ontario Supreme Court said in a precedent-setting decision Monday.

The court said in its ruling that the federal law must have precedence over the provincial Highway Traffic Act.

Many cases could be affected by the ruling of the three-judge panel which said the provincial registrar of motor vehicles can't suspend a licence when a judge allows a convicted driver to use his car for work.

Justices John H. Osler and William D. Parker and Chief Justice Dalton C. Wells were reviewing the case of Windsor truck driver Robert Lamoureux who was convicted of impaired driving last July.

Provincial Judge J. P. McMahon ruled Lamoureux, 41, couldn't drive except on the job from 3 p.m. to midnight but the motor vehicles registrar suspended his licence under the Highway Traffic Act.

Lamoureux was convicted under the federal Criminal Code which was amended in June to allow judges to prohibit driving "at such times and places as may be specified."

R. H. Humphries, registrar of motor vehicles, said Monday he did not know how many cases will be affected by the decision but many lawyers with impaired driving clients have been awaiting the outcome of the Lamoureux case.

$307 Cheque For Clinic

A cheque for $307.58 will be presented to directors of the G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children by A. L. G. van den Broek, president of the Inter-cultural Association of Greater Victoria at a ceremony Wednesday, Dec. 13, at 8 p.m. at the clinic.

Money was raised at an international variety show July 26 sponsored by the Esperanto Club of Vancouver Island and the Inter-cultural Association.

CITY MEN DISCOVER DOUBLE STAR

A double star, one of which revolves around the other much as the earth goes around the sun, has been discovered about 6,000 light years from the earth by two astronomers here.

Dr. David Crampton and Dr. John Hutchings have also found something else unique in astronomy — one of the stars is hotter on one side than the other.

They used the 72-inch telescope of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory here to check earlier U.S. satellite findings of variable x-rays coming from a spot in the sky known as HZ Hercules.

The satellite was trained on the area because since 1940 an object in the vicinity was found to be emitting variable light waves. The satellite picked up x-rays, finding that they intensified every 36 days. It also determined that variations in light and temperature occurred ever 1.7 days.

SAW TWO STARS

The two astronomers established by early August this summer that the single star in that area believed to be emitting the x-rays was in fact two stars. One of them, called a neutron start, is a super-dense remnant of an ordinary star that existed probably 10 billion years ago, and revolves around the second ordinary star every 1.7 days.

The two scientists said this explains why x-rays emanating from HZ Hercules stopped every 1.7 days, since the neutron star disappeared behind the regular star.

The regular star has temperatures ranging from 6,008 degrees centigrade on one side to 15,000 degrees on the other said Dr. Crampton. This caused the observed variations in light and temperature as it rotates on its axis.

The double-star formation is particularly interesting, said Crampton, because it may provide information on the dimension and properties of neutron stars — only two of which are known—and gives clues as to what will eventually happen to the sun.

The second neutron star exists on its own in the Crab nebula. Like the one in the double-star configuration, it is an exploded star or nova.

B.C. Man Is Carnegie Hero

John Walter Bruce, 22, an apprentice mechanic from Greenwood, B.C., who saved another man from drowning, was one of three Canadian winners of bronze medals announced today.

The awards are among 14 given in Canada and the United States by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, which honors persons who save or attempt to save lives at extraordinary personal risk. The 14 medals were accompanied by a total of $9,500 in money grants.

The other Canadian winners were Grafield Babcock, a Weston, Ontario physical education teacher who lost his life trying to save two students from drowning, and John Kruszelnicki of Vanguard, Sask.

Bruce was honored for saving Allan J. Petty, a 24-year-old highway engineer, from drowning after the latter's canoe capsized in a lake near Greenwood, Nov. 9, 1971. Bruce, an apprentice mechanic, had to break a path through a 20-foot apron of ice at the back before swimming with a log raft to Petty. Both men recovered.

The citations say that Babcock, 24, died last April 15 while trying unsuccessfully to save two brothers, H. Edward and John A. Thorneloe, from drowning in the Humber River at Weston, a suburb of Toronto.

The youths' canoe went over a low dam and capsized. Babcock jumped into the river but was caught in the undertow and sank. Edward Thorholoe, 18, was pulled out by a constable but could not be revived. The bodies of John, 15, and of the teacher were recovered downstream.

RESCUED FARMER

Kruszelnicki rescued John Holenski, a 69-year-old farmer, from burning at Vanguard last May 5. Holenski was in diabetic shock on the driver's seat of a tractor stalled on a pile of planks which had been ignited by the tractor's spinning wheels. Mrs. Holenski summoned Kruszelnicki and he pulled Holenski to safety just before the fuel tank exploded. Both men were admitted to hospital with burns and only Kruszelnicki recovered.

Stanfield Vows Que. Rebuilding

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Stanfiled promised Monday to make a major effort to rebuild the Conservative party in Quebec.

"I accept the reality that the Progressive Conservative party has a historical disadvantage in Quebec," Mr. Stanfield told the Montreal Chamber of Commerce " . . . but I am not prepared to live with it."

The Conservatives, who won only two of 74 Quebec seats in the Oct. 30 federal election, must work harder to win support in the province, he said.

"I believe that such intensified efforts will not be at the cost of support for my party in the rest of the country."

He said the election, which gave the Liberals their strongest support in Quebec and the Conservatives in the rest of the country, must be analysed with prudence, circumspection and reserve.

VOTE FOR FRENCH

Although his party's failure in Quebec had been real, he rejected the election outcome in the province as a vote in favor of French power and a vote against himself because he happens to be an English Canadian.

"I believe that we failed in Quebec because our message . . . concerning economic problems did not reach Quebec with the same force it reached other provinces, because of a short-coming in out own methods of communication."

He said a renewed effort must be made and he had "every reason" to be optimistic it would succeed.

There must be both a strong Progressive Conservative presence in Quebec and a strong Quebec presence in the party.

Bringing this about would require hard work by Conservatives in the province and firm determination and understanding by party supporters elsewhere in Canada.

In the same way, a majority of Quebecers would have to identify themselves "a little more with our national policies" if they wish to remain part of Confederation.

Hijacker Faces Life Term

SEATTLE (AP) — Frank Marloe Sibley Jr., who hijacked a United Air Lines passenger jet Aug. 18 and forced it to Vancouver and Seattle before being captured, was sentenced to life imprisonment Monday.

Federal judge Morell Sharp ruled that the sentence was contigent on the results of a complete study of the 43-year-old former navy pilot's physical and mental condition.

On the day of the hijacking Sibley rode up to the Reno airport on a bicycle carrying a rifle as passengers boarded the Boeing Tri-Jet for an early morning flight. The passengers were taken off, and the plane carried only the crew of three and the hijacker on the flight to Vancouver and then to Seattle.

Four hours were spent on the ground in Vancouver, during which Sibley ordered broadcast from radio station CJOR saying he acted in protest against the war in Vietnam.

In Vancouver, his demand for $15,000 in gold bars was met, and in Seattle he renewed his demands for $2 million in cash.

FBI agents shot and overpowered him in the cabin of the plane on a runway at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport after hours of setting up delivery of cash by an agent to distract Sibley's attention.

Meanwhile, negotiations are under way between the United States and Cuba on ways of resolving an air hijacking problem that causes difficulties for both countries.

The latest exchange of communication occurred following the hijacking to Cuba Nov. 12 of a Southern Airways DC-9 by three men.

retary of the treasury, Weinberger was promoted to director.

Laird's departure is no surprise. He publicly announced early this year that he would bow out as civilian head of the nation's defence establishment at the end of Nixon's first term.

Ziegler said that Ash would divest himself of any relationship with Litton Industries as of Dec. 9. The firm is a major government contractor.

The nominations were the first major in Nixon's announced plans to revamp his official family—an intention he announced immediately after his landslide re-election Nov. 7.

He told newsmen at Camp David Monday he interpreted his big victory a "mandate for change" to prevent his second term administration from running out of steam and coasting downhill.

Young Inquiry Opens

perintendent more power over Grade 11 and 12 students.

"It is possible the new regulations resulted partly from the events which took place here," Laxton said.

He said the hearing, which he predicted would be a lengthy one, would show a conflict between two visions of the education that schools should supply in the 1970s.

"You will see a clash of educational philosophies—on one side the traditional and authorative type, on the other side the modern, more humane view as espoused by Young and the staff of his school," Laxton said.

"The conflict is between those who believe children should be made to go to school and made to learn, and those who believe children can only learn if they want to."

"The latter involves the creation of a free educational atmosphere in which children can be induced and encouraged to learn," Laxton said. "On this issue the reputation of the staff and the prinipal and the regard they are held in here and in the rest of Canada is very material, as we will be able to show."

Young's lawyer said a 40-page report made by an evaluation team was "by and large laudatory to the school."

"Campbell River School Board has seen fit to extract 20 allegations of deficiency from the report to use in their grounds of dismissal," Laxton said.

He said whether the school was good or bad was very much at the root of the case.

Young was fired by the school board Sept. 8 on grounds of misconduct and neglect of duty. The firing brought to a head lengthy wranglings between Young, his staff, vocal members of the community and a strong faction on the school board.

The education department stepped in in 1970 by withdrawing accreditation of the school, which gave graduates no official standing.

Following an official evaluation of the school which Young immediately branded worthless, the school board laid down a set of rules. Young fought implementation of the rules.

If the board of reference accepts Young's appeal of his dismissal, the elegant, silver-haired innovator must be reinstated.

PHILIP, NIXON TOP POLL

The poll said both were cited as the most popular man by nine per cent of the Britons surveyed.

Queen Elizabeth was cited by 25 per cent of those surveyed as the woman they most admired.

Williams Would Like To Bill Engineers

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Resources Minister Robert Williams said Monday repairs to the dike in the Kamloops suburb of Oak Hills, which burst June 2, will cost about $1.57 million and the provincial government "is not too sure where the money is going to come from."

Williams said he would like to be able to present the bill "to the engineers of the highways department who initially approved plans for the area and its diking."

Several hundred acres and more than 60 mobile homes and 100 houses were flooded when the North Thompson River burst through the dike.

Levi: Job Guarantee

Levi and Quebec's Social Affairs Minister Claude Castonguay appear to agree on the need to more closely relate the size of a family to income when assessing the need for assistance.

Levi said that a minimum income level must be established as the "general objective of income security programs" through direct cash.

As an interim measure, priority should be given to people outside the labor force consistent with the NDP government's new guaranteed income level of $200 a month for old age pensioners and handicapped persons.

Levi's paper says that the present welfare system has failed "not because it has expended large amounts of public money, but because it has largely ignored the human factors associated with poverty and because it has treated the symptoms of poverty and left the disease itself untouched."

Earlier in the day, Castonguay said Quebec is now willing to accept funds from Ottawa in the amount formerly spent in specific welfare programs.

The statement marked a withdrawal from Quebec's former position in which it maintained the province should obtain complete jurisdiction over all social security programs.

Castonguay said since it did not appear that Quebec's recommended constitutional changes would be implemented "in the immediate future, short term steps should be taken to assure the provinces such authority."

Quebec attempted in 1971 to have certain changes made in the constitution which would give the provinces complete jurisdiction in social welfare matters. Quebec's failure to get these changes resulted in its rejecting the charter for constitutional change drawn up here in June 1971 by a meeting of provincial premiers.

Castonguay said the "legislative primacy" would allow the provinces to change existing programs or to take over their administration. Ottawa would them transfer to the provinces the funds it would have given them under current programs.

. . . VIETNAM

—Almost 38,000 South Vietnamese troops have been killed in action in the first 10 months of 1972—January through October. This toll—estimated at 37,972—compares with 280 American battle deaths for the same period of 1972. Thus, the torch of war has indeed been passed to the South Vietnamese under the "Vietnamization" program.

—Right now, in the midst of peace talks, South Vietnamese losses are averaging over 400 men a week as both sides struggle to gain territory before a ceasefire freezes their positions. This casualty rate—though lower than that of recent months—works out to a higher annual battlefield loss than the record high of 14,592 Americans killed in Vietnam in 1968.

—More North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers have been killed in 1972 than in any year since 1969 when the American forces in Vietnam reached their peak strength of 543,000 men. The admittedly rough but only available estimates show 117,255 enemy troops killed from January through October of 1972. This compares with the previous high of 156,954 men killed on the battlefield for the full year of 1969.

National Trust's Deferred Profit Sharing Plan and Registered Retirement Savings Plans for small businesses and executive groups.

The new Income Tax Act provides unusual opportunities for employers and employees alike to obtain maximum tax advantages. And a combination of National Trust's Deferred Profit Sharing Plan, operated by the employer, and voluntary Registered Retirement Savings Plans, paid for by employees, can mean total tax exempt contributions up to $6,500 annually per employee.

Incentive to work

With National Trust's deferred profit sharing plan there is also a strong incentive to work. Work for better performance and better profits, because it ensures that employees have a stake in both. And contributions can be directly related to the profit performance of the business.

How the 'combined' plans work

The deferred profit sharing plan provides for the accumulation and investment of employer contributions on the employee's behalf. At the same time, the employee can voluntarily supplement his employer benefits by participating in a Registered Retirement Savings Plan.

A flexible programme

The deferred profit sharing plan is a sensible alternative to employee pension arrangements for small businesses. With the National Trust Plan the employer determines who is to participate as well as the method of allocating contributions. The contribution amounts can be determined from year to year at the discretion of the company or may be geared to a formula setting out the percentage of profits to be allocated. Similarly, the employee can determine the amount he wishes to contribute to his RRSP.

Tax advantages

All employer plan contributions, investment gains and earnings of the trust fund are tax exempt, the employee being taxed on amounts withdrawn. And, at the time of withdrawal, the employee has important options available which may include tax free transfers to his Registered Retirement Savings Plan.

Professional management and total administration

National Trust provides professional investment management of the deferred profit sharing trust fund through participation in its 'pooled' stock, bond and mortgage funds which show an impressive record of investment performance. The plans are handled in every phase by experienced and expert administrative staff. The reporting and accounting phases are automatically taken care of, which relieves the businessman of day-to-day handling. At the same time, National provides the administrative facilities for the employees' own registered retirement savings plans.

Tax advantages for all is just one of the benefits. National Trust's Deferred Profit Sharing Plan in combination with a Registered Retirement Savings Plan represents an excellent way to contribute to an employee's future security while providing strong motivation for work performance and employee interest.

MAILMAN COMES . . . A DAY LATE

When Mrs. Stephenson, who lives at 1842 Feltham, phoned the post office to tell them their own mail was too late for her to make the meeting, she was told:

"Sorry, all the day jobs are filled. All we can do is put you on the reserve list."

While there were vacancies on night shifts, Mrs. Stephenson, who is separated and caring for three children, felt she could just work while they were at school.

With experience in post office work, she had applied for the Christmas rush job Nov. 1, the first day applications were being accepted.

A post office spokesman said today there was no way he could account for the notice arriving late.

But after looking into the matter, he said there have been a couple of drop-outs and Mrs. Stephenson will be advised there is a day-shift job for her.

Irish Border Aflame

BELFAST (UPI) — Heavy fighting broke out today along the 300-mile border between Ulster and the Irish Republic, the British army reported.

"It looks as though the whole border has caught alight," a British army spokesman said. "We are fighting gun battles from north and south of the border and we are up to our eyes in it at the moment."

The battles in various border villages started after two bazooka attacks on police posts at Belleek and at Strabane, a border village in County Tyrone 90 miles southwest of Belfast.

There was also an explosion in a Catholic house in the Old Park Road, North Belfast. The blast occurred next to a Protestant school.

An explosion in a house in the Bogside Roman Catholic district of Londonderry killed two youths, police said, and one policeman died in a rocket attack on a police station at Belleek, 45 miles southwest of Londonderry.

The deaths brought the toll for almost 3½ years of violence in Northern Ireland to 643 dead.

Bazooka rockets also struck an army vehicle checkpoint near Newtonbutler, 60 miles south of Londonderry, a border police station at Crossmaglen, 30 miles farther east and an army post outside a school in the Old Park Road district of Belfast.

None caused any casualties, the army said.

The battles began when gunmen operating from across the border in the republic fired a rocket at the station at Belleek. It penetrated steel shutters on a window and struck the policeman, killing him.

The army spokesman said five gunmen had been seen firing on the station from a wood on the republic side of the border. Police in the station fired back but claimed no hits. The battle ended after 25 minutes when Irish troops arrived on the scene, he said.

In Dublin police mounted guard on leading Irish politicians, to prevent any attempt to take hostages in return for the release of IRA chief of staff Sean MacStiofain.

Thousands of soldiers were placed on alert to deal with an IRA threat to fight "in the streets" against new government legislation cracking down on illegal organizations. Police guarded prominent politicians.

Meanwhile Ireland broke its official silence today on the condition of MacStiofain, the alleged leader of the provisional wing of the IRA who has been on a hunger strike for 10 days.

A statement from the Irish department of defence — the first official word on MacStiofain's condition — said his physical status was unchanged and he was "mentally alert and lucid."

Nixon Picks 'New Broom' Cabinet

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon initiated his "new broom" policy today by naming Elliot Richardson to be defence secretary in his second term cabinet and budget director Caspar W. Weinberger to succeed Richardson as head of health, education and welfare.

Nixon also announced that Roy Ash, a California businessman and an expert adviser on government reorganization, would take Weinberger's place as director of the office of management and budget.

Nixon also has another immediate cabinet vacancy to fill, created by the resignation of George Romney Monday as secretary of housing and urban affairs. Richardson, 52, and Weinberger, 55, have been in the Nixon administration since the outset in 1969.

Ash, 54, has been president of Litton Industries and in 1969 was tapped by the president to head his advisory council on government reorganization.

Nixon's press secretary, Ronald Ziegler announced the changes. He said they were "part of the president's broad plan to bring fresh perspective and new vitality to the second four years of his administration."

"The president feels these three men will be strong members of an executive team that has as its mandate bringing about constructive change—change that will work—to build a better life for all Americans," Ziegler said.

Richardson, a native of Massachusetts, was undersecretary of state before being named HEW secretary in June, 1970.

Weinberger first served Nixon as chairman of the federal trade commission, then moved into White House orbit as deputy director of the office of management and budget under George Shultz. When Shultz was named sec-

Job Guarantees Urged by Levi

Levi's plan — relying on dramatic changes in federal-provincial cost sharing — came in a white paper read to the conference.

What Levi called a "two-pronged" program of guaranteed incomes and guaranteed jobs is needed to replace the "gross failure" of the present systems, which have been built on the "free-enterprise myth . . . that poverty is primarily the result of personal weaknesses . . ."

Going to the root causes of poverty, instead of to the surface symptoms, the Levi plan would attempt to eradicate unemployment through a new emphasis on "socially profitable" rather than economically profitable jobs.

Levi said the "billions upon billions" spent on current welfare programs would help create the jobs and result in "a drastic reduction of the welfare rolls."

"Thus a new job creation program could be financed largely out of funds saved through a decrease in present welfare expenditures."

Levi explained later that last year in B.C., a total of $768 million was spent in welfare and income support.

Levi's statements and discussion at the conference indicated there is a new consensus developing around Quebec's attitude to social welfare programs.

Levi later summed up B.C.'s attitude to the use of funds from Ottawa:

"Shared-cost programs have not been effective. We require new arrangements whereby the provinces can acquire, without restrictions, revenue resources sufficient to undertake more effective welfare programs."

Earlier in his statement, Levi said he wants the provinces to start talks with Ottawa with the aim of getting a greater share of income taxes or outright grants replacing

B.C. INTERESTED IN WINTER WORKS

A cabinet committee to look into winter works programs has been established but has yet to meet, Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi said today.

The programs are usually initiated by Ottawa to lower the winter unemployment rates, but provincial and municipal money is often involved.

Levi said the committee is comprised of six cabinet ministers, but could not recall all the names.

The committee has no budget or agenda as yet, he said.

13 Survivors In Moscow Crash

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Japan Air Lines (JAL) DC8 jet with 76 persons aboard crashed in flames at Moscow's Sheremetyevo airport tonight shortly after takeoff for a flight to Tokyo. Airline officials said there were indications it exploded in flight a few minutes after becoming airborne.

A JAL spokesman in Tokyo said he had received telephone reports from Moscow there were at least 13 survivors and that they were hospitalized. Fate of the others was not known. The plane carried 62 passengers and a crew of 14, although normally it has a crew of seven or eight, JAL said.

"Yes, a plane has gone down," a JAL spokesman at the airport said. "I can say nothing more. I am too busy."

Initial reports from unofficial western airline sources said the plane crashed in flames about 500 yards from the end of the runway.

WILLISTON HIRED IN N.B.

FREDERICTON (CP) — The New Brunswick government has hired Ray Williston, former Socred resources minister, to help implement recommendations in a recent report on the pulp and paper industry in the province.

Williston, who was defeated in the August election, will work as a consultant to the provincial government and the forest industry in New Brunswick.

Young Charges Unbased, Lawyer Tells Inquiry

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

CAMPBELL RIVER — Campbell River School Board's formal grounds of dismissal are "difficult to follow, not coherently written in some places and ungrammatical," counsel for high school principal John Young told an official inquiry which opened here today.

In addition, lawyer John Laxton said, the dismissal report, filed at the department of education Sept. 22, listed an apparent 70 grounds for dismissal.

"It will be our submission that none of the charges against Mr. Young or reasons for his dismissal have any basis — indeed, the very number of reasons suggests an inability to find one good one," he said.

"Many of the grounds are transparently inconsequential and trivial, indicating an emotional reaction by the school board," Laxton told a board of reference headed by B. J. B. Morahan.

"This is not merely a case involving the loss of a job or even the loss of a profession. It involves the life-long attempt of a dedicated educator to improve the educational lot of the student in British Columbia and, for that matter, in the whole of Canada."

Laxton said he would submit that the school board had no power under the Public Schools Act to issue a set of rules earlier this year which the board complained Young disobeyed in a "divisive, inflammatory, insulting and insubordinate memorandum circulated Aug. 9."

Laxton said he would argue furthermore, that the relationship between a school board and a principal of a public high school was not that of master and servant and the legal precedents related to that relationship would have no application in this case.

He said there is no legal requirement for a person over 15 to attend school.

"The only power a school board has over people of over 15 who do not attend school is to prohibit them from attending school if both the principal and the district superintendent decided the student is beyond reform," Laxton argued.

He pointed out that since April of this year Section 33 of the regulations gave the su-

N-PLAN DENIED

PARIS (UPI) — The French defence ministry said today the government has no intention at present of conducting any new nuclear tests in the Pacific.

A ministry spokesman made the statement after a warning by New Zealand's premier-elect Norman Kirk that he would send a ship into the test zone to block possible resumption of the tests.

"There will be no reaction to Mr. Kirk's statement, the more so since we have at present no tests scheduled," the spokesman said.

CON MAN'S PLAN WAS DYNAMITE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 50-year-old woman was robbed of more than $2,180 in savings by a man who threatened to blow her up by detonating a belt of dynamite strapped to her waist, police say.

What appeared to be dynamite to Erla Mae Williams turned out to be wired flares, police said Monday. Mrs. Williams was uninjured.

He summoned Mrs. Williams, a saleswoman, to his apartment and forced her to put on the belt by threatening her with a pellet gun, police said.

Bomb Accident Kills 19

Times News Services

SAIGON—Six American jet fighter-bombers accidentally bombed a populated area near the upper South Vietnamese coast today, killing at least 19 persons and injuring 29, the U.S. command said.

The command said two air force F-4 phantoms and four navy A-7s dropped "several" 500-pound bombs in an area about 2½ miles west of the town of Hoi An, about 357 miles north of Saigon and about 13 miles south of Da Nang. The command said the jets were flying missions supporting South Vietnamese ground forces at the time.

The command said it was not immediately known how the jets happened to mistakenly bomb the area.

Meanwhile the Washington Post reports that this is by far the bloodiest year of the war for South Vietnamese troops, as their casualties remain high despite the talk about a cease-fire.

Also, just in 1972 alone, American and South Vietnamese warplanes have dropped more bombs on Indochina than the U.S. unleashed all during the Korean War.

These and other statistics indicate a red-hot war for Vietnamese on both sides of the demilitarized zone even though the American focus is on the negotiating table rather than the battlefield as U.S. battle deaths stay low.

Stand, Be Counted, Pollen Tells Council

Mayor Peter Pollen is delaying city council's decision Monday on the Bay Village affair and sending it back to council for reconsideration because he feels "most aldermen don't know the full impact of the resolution they approved."

He also pointed out that his action to stall the matter for up to 30 days — part of his powers under the Municipal Act — will have the effect of delaying any further decision until after the Dec. 9 municipal election.

This means, he said, that the proposed highrise development in James Bay must become an election issue.

"The people who are for this inordinately high density in this area must stand up and be counted."

Council decided Monday to execute a long-unsigned land-use contract with developer J.A. Mace, provided he also enters a second agreement modifying that original contract and submits the amended proposal to a public hearing.

The effect of the amendments would be to reduce the height of the development at Menzies and Simcoe from the original 29 storeys to 24, and also to scale down the floor-space ratio (total floor area in relation to site area) to a maximum of 2 to 1.

At Monday's stormy meeting legal advice to council indicated that if the 24-storey proposal were thrown out after a public hearing, council would not necessarily be saddled with the original contract as the authorizing motion was subject to specific conditions being met.

But Pollen said later he was not convinced that this was the case.

Another reason he cited for delaying the decision was the absence due to illness of two aldermen — Mike Young and Ove Witt.

The mayor noted that their presence for such an important meeting could be significant, in view of the recent return to the former requirement of a two-thirds majority vote of council on all zoning matters.

Voting on the Mace contract resolution Monday was 5 to 2 in favor.

City hall sources pointed out, however, that if council eventually reaches the stage of voting on a bylaw to authorize a contract with Mace — after a public hearing has been held — at least six of the nine members of council will have to vote in favor.

Absence of certain members is not really relevant, as a "no" vote is automatically registered in such cases.

A statement issued Monday by the Jawes Bay Community Association said council's action in entering into a contract with Bay Village Shopping Centre Ltd., under threat of legal action from the developer, "smacks of the groundjacking of James Bay with a licence supplied by the city."

The association says it opposes the project and all developments in James Bay that continue to increase the area's population density, traffic congestion and other problems.

"Why does James Bay have to be the population dumping ground for Victoria? This is the question most often asked by our members, for we have almost doubled the Victoria average.

"What is the population in the Uplands? Some have the nerve to ask?"

The association says laboratory rats wouldn't be subjected to the density that could be the lot of residents in the Menzies-Simcoe area of James Bay where the proposed development would be located.

Urging a moratorium on all high-density development until a suitable plan for the area has been adopted, the association also asks council to "open a dialogue" with James Bay residents on their future.

'Pollen Abused Position'

In a prepared statement released today, lawyer Ian Stewart said the attack on him made by Mayor Peter Pollen at a council meeting Monday is nothing new and Pollen has abused his position before to make "sensational and unwarranted" attacks on others.

Stewart was commenting on statements by Pollen concerning his involvement in land development in James Bay while he (Stewart) was an alderman.

Stewart describes the remarks as a "disgraceful attempt" to prevent himself or a member of his firm from appearing on behalf of a client (Bay Village Shopping Centre Ltd., which is trying to get council to execute a land use contract for a highrise development in James Bay).

"Twice this year I have issued writs against him (Pollen) on behalf of others for slander and in both cases he offered unqualified apologies, that is, admitted what he had said and suggested was false and defamatory, and in both cases he paid costs," Stewart states.

Stewart says his former years of community service are in no way relevant to the issues surrounding the Bay Village controversy. At the time the developer applied to the city for designation leading to its present proposals he had been away from political life for more than a year.

He had never held any financial interest in the development.

Stewart maintains the mayor has no right to attack himself or any other lawyer representing his client before council.

"Does he take this position because I represented a woman employee of the Library Board who was unjustly and improperly retired — a decision made and formed while he sat on that board.

"Or was it when I represented a faithful municipal servant who was denied fair treatment on retirement?

"Or was it when I represented interests who spoke against the Harbor Commission and the development of an industrial complex in our harbor, a program which despite his revised stance was one which originally he fully supported just as he originally supported and voted for the Bay Village land-use contract?"

GOVERNOR COLLAPSES

Lieutentant-Governor John Nicholson is in satisfactory condition in Vancouver's St. Paul Hospital after collapsing at the home of a friend Monday night.

A recurring lung infection, the same condition which sent him to hospital last January, after he collapsed at a Government House reception, was diagnosed as the cause of his latest attack.

Nicholson, who became lieutenant-governor in July, 1968, announced this summer he wished to step down before the end of the year because of his wife's poor health.

No successor has been named yet despite rumors that B.C. Supreme Court Justice Angelo Branca will be appointed.

"I've still heard nothing," 69-year-old Branca said from Vancouver. "I think it's a matter of waiting until they come to me and ask.

"It has caused me a lot of embarrassment," he said. "I'm getting so many wires and messages and I don't know anything about it."

Balk Shocks Firefighters

The president of the Victoria Firefighters Union said today he is "shocked" that city council won't sign a new contract "in the face of a recommendation by the mediation officer."

Fred (Whitey) Severson said council is not listening to its own negotiators.

"Both parties agreed with Clark Gilmour that we would recommend acceptance by our sides," said Severson.

Union firefighters ratified the new agreement last week. City council was to discuss the agreement at a special meeting Monday, but did not take any action except to disclose it is seeking a meeting of area municipalities on the whole subject of new contracts for all employees.

Referring to statements Monday by Victoria Ald. Harold Olafson, Severson said they are "coming from one individual. I hope it doesn't represent all of council."

Olafson told reporters it can be assumed city council is not prepared to sign the new contract and that recent wage settlements with municipal employees have been "excessive" and cannot be afforded by the community.

Neither side has disclosed the wage figure in the agreement approved by firefighters last week, except to say it is not as high as 16 per cent over 21 months.

Severson said the figure is the "going package" in British Columbia and Vancouver Island settlements for firefighters.

"I can't see where this is a 'shocking' situation or why Victoria should be different from the rest," he said.

Severson added that other Vancouver Island settlements will take monthly wages to $948 next year. This would indicate an increase of about 14 per cent in Victoria.

In the past, Victoria's settlement with its firefighters has been copied by Saanich and Oak Bay.

BLAZE CAUSED BY BOY

A seven-year-old boy playing with matches was found to be the cause of a $4,000 house fire Saturday after an investigation by Victoria fire department and police, Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said today.

Some neighbors had seen the youngster on the back porch of the S. J. MacAdam residence, 1437 Hillside, about 3 p.m. MacAdam was not home at the time.

The boy ignited some rubbish on the porch which burned through the door, into a hall, up a stairway and into two upstairs bedrooms.

Death Blame Shared

Blame in the refrigerator death of a nine-year-old Esquimalt boy laid at the door of the boy's parents and the owner of the unused appliance by a coroner's jury Monday night.

Ernest Leonard Whitcomb, 1201 Colville, was found dead on the afternoon of Monday, Nov. 20. A pathologist testified last week he had asphyxiated.

The jury's verdict said the boy died Sunday, Nov. 19, the day he was reported missing by his parents.

"Parental supervision was minimal," the jury said, "particularly in the case of a handicapped child."

It was the jury's opinion, therefore, that the parents "should share, to a lesser degree, in the responsibility for the mishap."

The verdict also stated that Mr. Roy Kirby, owner of the unused fridge at 1138 Lockley, shared part of the blame for boy's death.

A Roof for Christmas

USC Seeking Donations for Bangladesh

Victorians have the chance to put a roof over somebody's head this Christmas.

A corrugated iron roof, to be exact, which covers a 10x14-foot house with matted bamboo walls.

It's not much of a house, by most standards. But for some family in Bangladesh it will be home and shelter from monsoon rains.

The Unitarian Service Committee of Canada has made Housing for Bangladesh the object of its annual fund-raising campaign this year. It has pledged to finish 1,000 of these $140 houses by Christmas Day.

Shelter is now the priority in Bangladesh, Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee said here today.

"Once they have shelter they can start a normal life," she said.

She hopes to have collected $1,500,000 across the country by Christmas. The money will go to the committee's partner agency in India, the Rama Krishna Mission, which will build the houses.

Victoria gave $16,641 last year to the Milk for Bangladesh campaign, the highest total since the annual campaigns started here in 1953.

Dr. Hitschmanova founded the Unitarian Service Committee in 1945 to help child victims of the Second World War.

She will speak tonight at a public meeting in St. John Ambulance auditorium, 941 Pandora, at 8 p.m.

Two films on Southern Africa and the Unitarian Service Committee's work with children around the world will be shown, as well as slides of India, Bangladesh and Korea.

All donations to the Housing for Bangladesh campaign may be sent to P.O. Box 300, Victoria, or taken to any Bank of Nova Scotia. Official receipts will be sent from Unitarian Service Committee headquarters in Ottawa.

Puzzle letter in more ways than one

Where's Shannon?

Shannon's jigsaw puzzle letter has left the Victoria post office with a puzzle of its own.

Unless the post office can locate Shannon and find out where she wants her unusual letter delivered, it appears there may be some disappointed grandparents this Christmas.

★ ★ ★

The "letter," apparently mailed in Victoria last Friday, is made up of jigsaw puzzle pieces in a small cloth bag. But the tag on the bag has an incomplete address:

"Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Harper, RR 1, Site 1, 7 East Trailer Court."

While post office staff don't want and aren't permitted to assemble the puzzle pieces for more clues, they say it appears to be a letter from a little girl named Shannon to her grandparents.

TV Typing Experiment Planned

Victorians will soon be able to learn to type by watching television.

As an experiment in educational TV, a credit course in introductory typing will be offered by Camosun College starting in January over Channel 10 cablevision.

Approved by the college council's curriculum committee Monday night, the course is an experiment to determine whether education services provided via television are viable in the Victoria area.

College director Lloyd Morin said typing was chosen for the experiment because it closely parallels a course being offered in a more traditional setting at the college and thus can be evaluated comparatively.

Typing was also selected because it capitalizes on the visual capacities of TV, actively involves the participant and provides measurable results.

"I'm not concerned what subject is chosen for the project," council member Philip Ney said, "provided it's a properly designed and controlled experiment."

Taping of programs will begin in two weeks and the course will be on the air Tuesdays from 8:30 to 9 p.m., beginning Jan. 9 and continuing for 14 weeks.

Cost of the course for credit students will be the same as fees for students attending classes at the college, but with 50,000 households connected to cablevision in Victoria an immeasurable number of non-credit viewers will receive free lessons.

The report on the proposal for the course noted that most attempts at educational television "have been hopeless failures."

"With this list of disasters," council member Peter Bunn asked, "why are we trying it here? Is this the place for a new mousetrap?"

"There's no real monetary commitment," director Lorne Thompson said. "It seems like we should take a chance — we won't lose anything.

"It's hard to measure success," he added. "A lot of old people will be interested in typing but they won't be credit students — so it may not be a financial success."

Students registered for the course will be asked to take a test at the start of the program to measure their level of skill. A workbook costing $7.20 will be available to supplement the course.

The college proposes to establish contact with individuals following the course to determine their progress and their reaction to the program.

Burst Main Closes School

Water from a 12-inch high-pressure main exploded on Borden early today flooding two Lake Hill businesses and forcing the closure of Reynolds School.

Saanich waterworks department said the break occurred about 200 feet north of Reynolds shortly before 5 a.m., washing out about 75 square feet of the street and sending a cascade through the property of Slegg Bros. Lumber Ltd., across Quadra into the cellars of Growers' Wine Co. Ltd.

At Growers' the company's pumps were used to clear water away from the maturing and storage tanks, whose contents were unaffected by the flood. But some vinting supplies were lost when water reached a depth of 18 inches in some places, and a few electric pump motors were damaged.

Much silt was deposited in the building, necessitating a thorough cleanup, a spokesman said.

The flood damaged building supplies in Slegg's yard and seeped into the firm's warehouse and office building, where the extent of damage was still being assessed before noon.

Repair work on the main was expected to be finished about mid-day.

Floodwater meanwhile ran off below the winery into Swan Creek.

IWA to Pay

NANAIMO — The Port Alberni local of the International Woodworkers of America has voted to pay all legal fees accumulated by fallers during last summer's strike.

The unanimous decision to pay the $6,000 in fees was made at the local's annual meeting last week.

The fallers walked off the job in April and were out of work for most of the summer in a dispute involving a day rate for their work. Their strike continued after a master agreement was signed and other IWA members returned to work.

The rank and file committee report issued after the meeting said better industrial relations would exist if other locals realized that bills accumulated by the fallers are the responsibility of everybody in the organization and the money is not just a gift.

The report said the decision shows the unity which does exist among minority groups within the IWA.

Ticats Best on Paper

By The Canadian Press

For thise who get their kicks from statistics, Hamilton Tiger-Cats should be a sure thing over Saskatchewan Roughriders in next Sunday's Grey Cup game.

The Ticats, during the Canadian Football League regular season, were better on paper than the Roughriders — but so were Edmonton Eskimos and Winnipeg Blue Bombers. However, when the chips were down, the Roughriders had the edge where it counted — on the score board.

The Ticats played 14 games and Roughriders 16, with Hamilton winning 11 and losing three, compared with Saskatchewan which had an 8-8 record.

And the Ticats scored more points, 372 to 330, and gave up fewer, 262 to 283.

With its great performance, Hamilton placed seven men on the Eastern Football Conference all-star offensive team and three on the defensive team.

Saskatchewan has just two on offence and two on defence in the Western Football Conference.

Hamilton, led by sensational rookie quarterback Chuck Ealey, scored 46 touchdowns and converted 45. Saskatchewan scored 41 and converted 38.

When it comes to first downs and total yards, though, the Roughriders come out of top: Saskatchewan rolled up 283 first downs — 119 rushing and 147 passing with 27 on penalties — while the Ticats had 250 — 10 rushing, 130 passing and 17 by penalty.

Hamilton, thanks mainly to Dave Buchanan and Ealey, agained 2,132 yards along the ground while Saskatchewan netted 2,028.

The clubs had identical averages on yards per rush, 4.7, and were close in percentage of passes completed — 57.2 for Hamilton and 55.5 for the Roughies.

In punting, Saskatchewan's Bob Pearce and Al Ford had an advantage over Bill Van Burkleo and Paul McKay — 40.9 yards a punt to 37.9.

When looking at field goals, the Ottawa-Hamilton final play-off game notwithstanding — when Ian Sunter kicked five for the Ticats — Jack Abendschan had a slight edge for Saskatchewan, hitting on 10 of 24 compared with Sunter's 14 of 38.

One-Game Boxla Final

HALIFAX — Television has reduced Canada's senior lacrosse championship final from a seven-game series to a one-game, sudden-death affair.

The decision, made Sunday at the annual meeting of the Canadian Lacrosse Association, was prompted by arrangements with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation to televise the Mann Cup final live and during prime time on the national network.

The 1973 final between the Western and National Lacrosse Association champions will be held Sept. 8 in Ontario, probably at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

The best-of-seven junior "A" series for the Minto Cup will be held on the floor of the Western champion beginning Sept. 10.

Senior "B" competition will climax with a tournament here Sept. 4-7 for the President's Cup and the Founder's Cup competition for junior "B" play will be held starting Aug. 7 in Burnaby.

A national peewee tourney has been slated for Whitby, Ont., in July and dates and site of a national bantam tournament will be announced later.

The new executive includes Gordon Hammond of London, president, Wally Henderson of Vancouver, Neil Gray of Vancouver, Fred Arnold of Edmonton and Bill McBain of Halifax, vice-presidents.

Goalkeepers leaving the crease to take possession of the ball no longer will be able to bring the ball back to the crease. They must pass it off.

The definition of a shot on goal has been made the same across Canada. From now on, the ball must make contact with the net or goalkeeper for the shot to be officially recognized.

Grid Great Forgotten By CFL

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Mike Rodden has his Grey Cup tickets — but no thanks to the Canadian Football League.

On Thursday sports editor Ron Brown said in his column in the Whig-Standard that the 81-year-old Rodden, Canada's oldest-living member of the Football Hall of Fame and oldest living Grey Cup coach, could not get tickets to Sunday's game in Hamilton.

Art Slack, Kingston representative for Schenley Distilleries, got in touch with his head office after reading of the old-timer's plight and today Rodden has two tickets.

Jake Gaudaur, CFL commissioner, in commenting on the incident, had stated that he cannot give away Grey Cup tickets to anyone — even the premier.

Another complaint in Brown's column concerning Rodden's treatment by football officials dealt with the opening of the Football Hall of Fame building in Hamilton as part of the Grey Cup festivities. Brown wondered why the league had not invited the hall's oldest living member.

Larry Smith, director of the hall, has replied that Rodden was sent an invitation to the opening: "However, whether or not be ever received it, I have no way of knowing."

SASKATCHEWAN OUT IN FORCE

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders will have at least 2900 fans backing them in Sunday's Grey Cup game in Hamilton against the Tiger-Cats.

The Roughriders were allowed 2900 tickets and all have been sold. The ticket office returned about 2000 applications for tickets, which are scaled from $11.50 to $17.

Tickets were sold on a system that gave points for advertising in the team yearbook, attending the annual $100-a-plate dinner and for holding season tickets. There were 8811 season ticket holders.

Air Canada estimates 900 fans will fly to Hamilton. Regular flights are almost all filled and two extra planes will be added to handle the load. CP rail and Canadian National Railways will also add extra cars to their transcontinental trains.

Duncan Man Wins Race

SEATTLE — Wolf Schamberger of Duncan turned in an outstanding time of two hours, 25 minutes, 55 seconds Sunday to win the fourth annual Seattle invitational marathon.

Picked in its Prime

The more you know about whisky, the better for OFC 8-Year Old. The Prime Canadian.

For starters: New OFC 8-Year Old is aged a full 2 years longer than either Canadian Club or Seagram's V.O.

Thus, age alone, should make us better. But any good distiller will tell you, it takes more than time to make a whisky prime.

The truth about age

2-year Old Canadian rye is pale, harsh and unmatured. Around 12, it's darker and has begun to take on a heavy 'woody' taste. In between 2 and 12, at one point in time, Canadian whisky is in "The Prime of Life": golden, mellow, smooth and full-bodied.

8 years is "Prime"

In our opinion, 8 years old is "Prime." That's why OFC 8-Year Old is 8 years old. And only 8 years old.

"Prime" is more than time

Schenley puts a lot more into OFC than time: Only 100% Canadian grains, and only deep-welled water. Every drop is distilled four times, and aged in hand-charred, white oak barrels for a full 8 years.

Finally we blend after aging

Why after? So that, despite differences from barrel to barrel, OFC never differs from bottle to bottle. Or glass to glass. 120 separate taste tests ensure it and each bottle carries this numbered back label. This is Schenley's Guarantee of "Prime" 8-Year Old Quality. "Prime Quality."

Thousands are switching to OFC, and taste is the reason.

Try OFC 8-Year Old. We think you'll find it a very rewarding experience.

MAILMAN COMES . . . A DAY LATE

When Mrs. Stephenson, who lives at 1842 Feltham, phoned the post office to tell them their own mail was too late for her to make the meeting, she was told:

"Sorry, all the day jobs are filled. All we can do is put you on the reserve list."

While there were vacancies on night shifts, Mrs. Stephenson, who is separated and caring for three children, felt she could just work while they were at school.

With experience in post office work, she had applied for the Christmas rush job Nov. 1, the first day applications were being accepted.

A post office spokesman said today there was no way he could account for the notice arriving late.

But after looking into the matter, he said there have been a couple of drop-outs and Mrs. Stephenson will be advised there is a day-shift job for her.

Irish Border Aflame

BELFAST (UPI) — Heavy fighting broke out today along the 300-mile border between Ulster and the Irish Republic, the British army reported.

"It looks as though the whole border has caught alight," a British army spokesman said. "We are fighting gun battles from north and south of the border and we are up to our eyes in it at the moment."

The battles in various border villages started after two bazooka attacks on police posts at Belleek and at Strabane, a border village in County Tyrone 90 miles southwest of Belfast.

There was also an explosion in a Catholic house in the Old Park Road, North Belfast. The blast occurred next to a Protestant school.

An explosion in a house in the Bogside Roman Catholic district of Londonderry killed two youths, police said, and one policeman died in a rocket attack on a police station at Belleek, 45 miles southwest of Londonderry.

The deaths brought the toll for almost 3½ years of violence in Northern Ireland to 643 dead.

Bazooka rockets also struck an army vehicle checkpoint near Newtonbutler, 60 miles south of Londonderry, a border police station at Crossmaglen, 30 miles farther east and an army post outside a school in the Old Park Road district of Belfast.

None caused any casualties, the army said.

The battles began when gunmen operating from across the border in the republic fired a rocket at the station at Belleek. It penetrated steel shutters on a window and struck the policeman, killing him.

The army spokesman said five gunmen had been seen firing on the station from a wood on the republic side of the border. Police in the station fired back but claimed no hits. The battle ended after 25 minutes when Irish troops arrived on the scene, he said.

In Dublin police mounted guard on leading Irish politicians, to prevent any attempt to take hostages in return for the release of IRA chief of staff Sean MacStiofain.

Thousands of soldiers were placed on alert to deal with an IRA threat to fight "in the streets" against new government legislation cracking down on illegal organizations. Police guarded prominent politicians.

Meanwhile Ireland broke its official silence today on the condition of MacStiofain, the alleged leader of the provisional wing of the IRA who has been on a hunger strike for 10 days.

A statement from the Irish department of defence — the first official word on MacStiofain's condition — said his physical status was unchanged and he was "mentally alert and lucid."

Nixon Picks 'New Broom' Cabinet

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon initiated his "new broom" policy today by naming Elliot Richardson to be defence secretary in his second term cabinet and budget director Caspar W. Weinberger to succeed Richardson as head of health, education and welfare.

Nixon also announced that Roy Ash, a California businessman and an expert adviser on government reorganization, would take Weinberger's place as director of the office of management and budget.

The major cabinet reshuffle was triggered by the long anticipated resignation of Melvin Laird as head of the defence department.

Nixon also has another immediate cabinet vacancy to fill, created by the resignation of George Romney Monday as secretary of housing and urban affairs. Richardson, 52, and Weinberger, 55, have been in the Nixon administration since the outset in 1969.

Ash, 54, has been president of Litton Industries and in 1969 was tapped by the president to head his advisory council on government reorganization.

Nixon's press secretary, Ronald Ziegler announced the changes. He said they were "part of the president's broad plan to bring fresh perspective and new vitality to the second four years of his administration."

"The president feels these three men will be strong members of an executive team that has as its mandate bringing about constructive change—change that will work—to build a better life for all Americans," Ziegler said.

Richardson, a native of Massachusetts, was undersecretary of state before being named HEW secretary in June, 1970.

Weinberger first served Nixon as chairman of the federal trade commission, then moved into White House orbit as deputy director of the office of management and budget under George Shultz. When Shultz was named sec-

He will have lunch Monday with the Queen at Windsor Castle, and likely will return to Ottawa Tuesday.

Job Guarantees Urged by Levi

Levi's plan — relying on dramatic changes in federal-provincial cost sharing — came in a white paper read to the conference.

What Levi called a "two-pronged" program of guaranteed incomes and guaranteed jobs is needed to replace the "gross failure" of the present systems, which have been built on the "free-enterprise myth . . . that poverty is primarily the result of personal weaknesses . . ."

Going to the root causes of poverty, instead of to the surface symptoms, the Levi plan would attempt to eradicate unemployment through a new emphasis on "socially profitable" rather than economically profitable jobs.

Levi said the "billions upon billions" spent on current welfare programs would help create the jobs and result in "a drastic reduction of the welfare rolls."

"Thus a new job creation program could be financed largely out of funds saved through a decrease in present welfare expenditures."

Levi explained later that last year in B.C., a total of $768 million was spent in welfare and income support.

Levi's statements and discussion at the conference indicated there is a new consensus developing around Quebec's attitude to social welfare programs.

Levi later summed up B.C.'s attitude to the use of funds from Ottawa:

"Shared-cost programs have not been effective. We require new arrangements whereby the provinces can acquire, without restrictions, revenue resources sufficient to undertake more effective welfare programs."

Earlier in his statement, Levi said he wants the provinces to start talks with Ottawa with the aim of getting a greater share of income taxes or outright grants replacing

B.C. INTERESTED IN WINTER WORKS

A cabinet committee to look into winter works programs has been established but has yet to meet, Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi said today.

The programs are usually initiated by Ottawa to lower the winter unemployment rates, but provincial and municipal money is often involved.

Levi said the committee is comprised of six cabinet ministers, but could not recall all the names.

The committee has no budget or agenda as yet, he said.

13 Survivors In Moscow Crash

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Japan Air Lines DC 8 jet with 76 persons aboard crashed in flames at Moscow's Sheremetyevo airport tonight shortly after takeoff for a flight to Tokyo. Airline officials said there were indications it exploded in flight a few minutes after becoming airborne.

A JAL spokesman in Tokyo said he had received telephone reports from Moscow there were at least 13 survivors and that they were hospitalized. Fate of the others was not known. The plane carried 62 passengers and a crew of 14, although normally it has a crew of seven or eight, JAL said.

"Yes, a plane has gone down," a JAL spokesman at the airport said. "I can say nothing more. I am too busy."

Initial reports from unofficial western airline sources said the plane crashed in flames about 500 yards from the end of the runway.

The crash was the second major one at Sheremetyevo airport in six weeks.

Young Charges Unbased, Lawyer Tells Inquiry

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

CAMPBELL RIVER — Campbell River School Board's formal grounds of dismissal are "difficult to follow, not coherently written in some places and ungrammatical," counsel for high school principal John Young told an official inquiry which opened here today.

In addition, lawyer John Laxton said, the dismissal report, filed at the department of education Sept. 22, listed an apparent 70 grounds for dismissal.

"It will be our submission that none of the charges against Mr. Young or reasons for his dismissal have any basis — indeed, the very number of reasons suggests an inability to find one good one," he said.

"Many of the grounds are transparently inconsequential and trivial, indicating an emotional reaction by the school board," Laxton told a board of reference headed by B. J. B. Morahan.

"This is not merely a case involving the loss of a job or even the loss of a profession. It involves the life-long attempt of a dedicated educator to improve the educational lot of the student in British Columbia and, for that matter, in the whole of Canada."

Laxton said he would submit that the school board had no power under the Public Schools Act to issue a set of rules earlier this year which the board complained Young disobeyed in a "divisive, inflammatory, insulting and insubordinate memorandum circulated Aug. 9."

Laxton said he would argue furthermore that the relationship between a school board and a principal of a public high school was not that of master and servant and the legal precedents related to that relationship would have no application in this case.

He said there is no legal requirement for a person over 1[illegible] attend school.

"The only power [illegible] school board has over people of over 15 who do not attend school is to prohibit them from attending school if both the principal and the district superintendent decided the student is beyond reform," Laxton argued.

He pointed out that since April of this year Section 33 of the regulations gave the su-

N-PLAN DENIED

PARIS (UPI) — The French defence ministry said today the government has no intention at present of conducting any new nuclear tests in the Pacific.

A ministry spokesman made the statement after a warning by New Zealand's premier-elect Norman Kirk that he would send a ship into the test zone to block possible resumption of the tests.

"There will be no reaction to Mr. Kirk's statement, the more so since we have at present no tests scheduled," the spokesman said.

CON MAN'S PLAN WAS DYNAMITE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 50-year-old woman was robbed of more than $2,180 in savings by a man who threatened to blow her up by detonating a belt of dynamite strapped to her waist, police say.

What appeared to be dynamite to Erla Mae Williams turned out to be wired flares, police said Monday. Mrs. Williams was uninjured.

He summoned Mrs. Williams, a saleswoman, to his apartment and forced her to put on the belt by threatening her with a pellet gun, police said.

After telling Mrs. Williams he could detonate the belt by radio, the man ordered her to drive to her bank and withdraw her savings, police said. She was left handcuffed in the man's apartment when he fled.

Hanoi Seeks Moscow Aid

Times News Services

North Vietnam, its private peace negotiations with the United States in recess, is arranging for extended military aid from Moscow and Peking, Communist radio broadcasts said today.

A Radio Hanoi broadcast said Chinese Premier Chou En-lai has "severely condemned" the United States for failure to agree to an Indochina ceasefire agreement and signed a 1973 Hanoi-Peking accord on military and economic aid. Communist diplomatic sources in Paris said the Chinese agreed to supply Hanoi free of charge.

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass said a North Vietnamese delegation was in the Russian capital to discuss the "rendering of assistance in the strengthening of the economy and defensive capacity of the DRV (Democratic Republic of Vietnam)."

Negotiations between U.S. presidential adviser Henry Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho were suspended Saturday until Dec. 4.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu strengthened his negotiating team in Paris today with the arrival of his nephew and personal aide Hoang Duc Nha. Nguyen Phu Duc, another Thieu envoy, has scheduled a meeting with President Nixon on Wednesday. Indications are that the talks were snagged on Saigon's demand — and Hanoi's refusal — that North Vietnamese troops be removed from South Vietnam.
